No payment or composition made or security given after an arrest made under this section shall be exempt from the provisions of this Ordinance relating to fraudulent preferences.

Discovery of debtor's property. 25. 1. The Court may, on the application of the official receiver or assignee, at any time after a receiving order has been made against a debtor, summon before it the debtor or his wife, or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects belonging to the debtor or supposed to be indebted to the debtor, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the debtor, his dealings or property, and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the debtor, his dealings or property. 2. If any person so summoned, after having been tendered a reasonable sum for his travelling expenses and attendance, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, or refuses to produce any such document, having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of its sitting and allowed by it, the Court may, by warrant, cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination. 3. The Court may examine upon oath, either by word of mouth or by written interrogatories, any person so brought before it concerning the debtor, his dealings or property. 4. If any person, on examination before the Court, admits that he is indebted to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver or assignee, order him to pay to the official receiver or assignee, at such time and in such manner as to the Court may seem expedient, the amount admitted or any part thereof, either in full discharge of the whole amount in question or not, as the Court may think fit, with or without costs of the examination. 5. If any person, on examination before the Court, admits that he has in his possession any property belonging to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver or assignee, order him to deliver to the official receiver or assignee such property or any part thereof, at such time, and in such manner, and on such terms as to the Court may seem just. 6. The Court may, if it thinks fit, order that any person who, if in the Colony, would be liable to be brought before it under this section shall be examined in any place out of the Colony.

Imp. § 27.

Discharge of insolvent.

Order of discharge. 26. 1. An insolvent may, at any time after being adjudged insolvent, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall appoint a day for hearing the application, but the application shall not be heard until the public examination of the insolvent is concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court. 2. On the hearing of the application the Court shall take into consideration a report of the official receiver as to the insolvent's conduct and affairs (including a report as to the insolvent's conduct during the proceedings under his insolvency) and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent, or with respect to his after-acquired property: Provided that the Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the insolvent has committed any misdemeanour under section 222, section 223, section 224 or section 225 of the Indictable Offences Ordinance, 1893, or any other misdemeanor connected with his insolvency or any felony connected with his insolvency, unless for special reasons the Court otherwise determines, and shall, on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned, either: i) Refuse the discharge; or ii) Suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years; or iii) Suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than fifty cents in the dollar has been paid to the creditors; or iv) Require the insolvent as a condition of his discharge to consent to judgment being entered against him by the official receiver or assignee as the case may be for any balance or part of any balance of the debts provable under the insolvency which is not satisfied at the date of the discharge, such balance or part of any balance of the debts to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the insolvent in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; but execution shall not be issued on the judgment without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the insolvent has since his discharge acquired property or income available towards payment of his debts. Provided that if any at time after the expiration of two years from the date of any order made under this section the insolvent shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit. 3. The facts hereinbefore referred to are: a) That the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to fifty cents in the dollar on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to fifty cents in the dollar on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible; b) That the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position for the three years immediately preceding his insolvency; c) That the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent; d) That the insolvent has contracted any debt provable in the insolvency without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it; e) That the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities; f) That the insolvent has brought on, or contributed to, his insolvency by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs; g) That the insolvent has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any action properly brought against him; h) That the insolvent has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order incurred unjustifiable expense by bringing a frivolous or vexatious action; i) That the insolvent has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors; j) That the insolvent has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order incurred liabilities with a view of making his assets equal to fifty cents in the dollar on the amount of his unsecured liabilities; k) That the insolvent has on any previous occasion been adjudged insolvent, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors; l) That the insolvent has been guilty of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust. 4. For the purposes of this section an insolvent's assets shall be deemed of a value equal to fifty cents in the dollar on the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that the property of the bankrupt has realized, or is likely to realize, or with due care in realization might have realized, an amount equal to fifty cents in the dollar on his unsecured liabilities, and a report by the official receiver or the assignee shall be prima facie evidence of the amount of such liabilities. 5. For the purposes of this section the report of the official receiver shall be prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained. 6. Notice of the appointment by the Court of the day for hearing the application for discharge shall be published in the prescribed manner, and sent fourteen days at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the official receiver and the assignee (if any) and may also hear any creditor. At the hearing the Court may put such questions to the debtor and receive such evidence as it may think fit. 7. The powers of suspending and of attaching conditions to an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently. 8. A discharged insolvent shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the assignee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the assignee, and if he fails to do so he shall be guilty of a contempt of court; and the Court may also, if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payments duly made or thing duly done subsequent to the discharge but before its revocation. 9. Where the insolvent is discharged subject to the condition that judgment shall be entered against him under this section or subject to any other conditions as to his after-acquired property or income, it shall be his duty, until the judgment or condition is satisfied, from time to time to give the official receiver or assignee such information as he may require with respect to his after-acquired property or income, and not less than once a year to file with the official receiver or assignee a statement showing the particulars of any property or income which he may have acquired subsequent to his discharge.

Fraudulent settlement. 27. In either of the following cases, that is to say: 1. In the case of a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage where the settlor is not, at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement; or 2. In the case of any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not, at the date of his marriage, any estate or interest (not being money or property of or in right of his wife); if the settlor is adjudged insolvent or compounds or arranges with his creditors, and it appears to the Court that such settlement, covenant, or contract was made in order to defeat or delay creditors or was unjustifiable, having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when it was made, the Court may refuse or suspend an order of discharge, or grant an order subject to conditions, or refuse to approve a composition or arrangement as the case may be, in like manner as in cases where the debtor has been guilty of fraud.

Imp. § 29.

Effect of order of discharge. 28. 1. An order of discharge shall not release the insolvent: a) From any debt on a recognizance or from any debt with which the insolvent may be chargeable at the suit of the Crown or the Colony, or of any person, for any offence against a statute relating to any branch of the public revenue, or at the suit of any public officer on a bail bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence; and he shall not be discharged from such excepted debts unless the Attorney-General certifies in writing his consent to his being discharged therefrom; or b) From any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party; or c) From any debt or liability whereof he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was party; or d) From any liability under a judgment against him in an action for seduction or under an affiliation order or under a judgment against him as a co-respondent in a matrimonial cause, except to such an extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability. 2. An order of discharge shall release the insolvent from all other debts provable in insolvency. 3. An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the insolvency and of the validity of the proceedings therein; and in any proceedings that may be instituted against an insolvent who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by the order, the insolvent may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge, and may give this Ordinance and the special matter in evidence. 4. An order of discharge shall not release any person who, at the date of the receiving order, was a partner or co-trustee with the insolvent or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him, or any person who was surety or in the nature of a surety for him.

The Court may grant or withhold such certificate as it thinks fit, but any refusal of such certificate shall be subject to appeal. 4. No disqualification arising under the Insolvency Ordinance, 1884, or this section, shall exceed a period of five years from the date of any discharge which may have been granted or may hereafter be granted under this Ordinance.

Power to the Court to annul adjudication in certain cases. 31. 1. Where, in the opinion of the Court, a debtor ought not to have been adjudged insolvent, or where it is proved, to the satisfaction of the Court, that the debts of the insolvent are paid in full, the Court may, on the application of any person interested, by order, annul the adjudication. 2. Where an adjudication is annulled under this section, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the official receiver, assignee, or other person acting under their authority, or by the Court, shall be valid, but the property of the debtor who was adjudged insolvent shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or, in default of any such appointment, revert to the debtor for all his estate or interest therein, on such terms and subject to such condition, if any, as the Court may declare by order. 3. Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising from obligations ex delicto or quasi ex delicto or otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise, or breach of duty or breach of trust shall not be provable in insolvency. 2. A person having notice of any act of insolvency available against the debtor shall not prove under the order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice. 3. Save as aforesaid, all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject at the date of the receiving order, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of the receiving order, shall be deemed to be debts provable in insolvency. 4. An estimate shall be made by the assignee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid, which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value. 5. Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the assignee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court. 6. If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall for the purposes of this Ordinance, be deemed to be a debt not provable in insolvency. 7. Where the liability of the debtor depends on questions of fact or of law which are in dispute, the assignee may state such questions in writing to the Court, and the Court shall thereupon proceed to determine such questions in the prescribed manner. 8. If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed before the Court, and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable in insolvency. 9. "Liability" shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, include any compensation for work or labour done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth (other than an obligation arising ex delicto or quasi ex delicto where the amount of damages is still unliquidated) on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement, or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement, agreement, or undertaking to pay, or any obligation to pay or capable of resulting in the payment of money or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount fixed or unliquidated, as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency or on two or more contingencies, and, as to mode of valuation capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or as matter of opinion.

Any existing law or Ordinance to the contrary notwithstanding, any secured creditor may with the consent of the assignee and the approval of the official receiver if he is not assignee, but without any sentence or order of the Court being obtained, realize any moveable property upon which his security exists if the same is unaffected by any other security, by selling the same at public auction, or by tender after a notice of such intended sale or calling for tenders has been inserted in the Gazette and one newspaper for three successive Saturdays. 2. The assignee, with the approval of the official receiver if he is not assignee, if more creditors than one hold securities affecting the same property or if he deems it inexpedient to consent under the preceding subsection, or the official receiver withholds his approval, shall without any sentence or order of the Court being necessary realize such property by selling the same at public auction or by tender after notice of such intended sale or calling for tenders has been inserted in the Gazette and one newspaper, for three successive Saturdays, and shall distribute the proceeds of sale in accordance with section 37 of this Ordinance, after making the payments thereout in that section specified. The assignee, with the approval of the official receiver if he is not assignee may, with leave of the Court, transport or transfer such property to any secured creditor having a claim thereon, and may set off wholly or in part as the case may be, the claim of such creditor against the purchase money thereof. 3. Any secured creditor who is dissatisfied with any intended action of the assignee or with any action of the official receiver in dealing with the property in respect of which security is given may apply to the Court to issue directions to the assignee in respect of the rights of such secured creditor and the mode in which such property shall be dealt with.

Priority of debts. 37. 1. In the distribution of any assets of an insolvent at any time being distributed the assignee, after paying thereout the expenses properly incurred in realizing the same or in carrying on the plantation or business from which the same are obtained, all fees and commissions relating thereto and any costs, charges, and expenses payment whereof is prescribed or allowed by the Court, shall pay thereout in the order hereinafter specified the following debts or such of them or such part of any of them as have not previously been paid, namely: a) All such taxes, imposts, dues, debts, and sums of money other than fines or penalties due to the Crown or the Colony at the date of the receiving order (other than sums payable by instalments and secured under any Ordinance by preferent lien on the assets then being distributed or on the plantation or business from the sale or carrying on of which they have been obtained), as have become due and payable within twelve months next before the date of the receiving order; b) All sums due and payable to the Crown or Colony at the date of the receiving order (including sums due in respect of immigration) forming part of a sum payable by instalments and secured under the provisions of any Ordinance by a preferent lien on the assets then being distributed or the plantation or business from the sale or carrying on of which they have been obtained, whether such preferent lien affects such assets, plantation, or business alone or also affects other property of the insolvent; c) All municipal, village, or local rates, for which such assets, plantation, or business may be liable and executable, due at the date of the receiving order and which have become due and payable within the rating year in which the receiving order has been made; d) If such assets were obtained from the sale or carrying on of any plantation or business, salaries of the servants of the plantation, including the engineer if employed at a salary or of the clerks employed in the business for the three months preceding the receiving order; e) Legal mortgages and special conventional mortgages, affecting the assets then being distributed or the plantation or business from the sale or carrying on of which they have been obtained, (whether such mortgages affect such assets, plantation, or business alone or also affect other property of the insolvent.) such mortgages ranking between themselves in accordance with the priority given to each by the existing law, and in default of any different rule of law as to priority according to the order of their dates of origin; f) All wages or salary of any manager employed on any mining claim, woodcutting, or ballata bleeding business and all wages of any labourer or workman employed thereon in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during four months before the date of the receiving order, and all wages of salesmen in retail provision shops and menial and other servants in respect of services rendered the insolvent for the two months before such date; g) General conventional mortgages according to the order of their dates; h) All other debts not hereinbefore mentioned, including in cases where part only of any debt or claim is entitled under the provisions hereinbefore contained, to priority of payment out of the assets then being distributed or any other undistributed assets, the remainder of such debt or claim. All such debts shall be paid pari passu. 2. Where any mortgage affects not only the assets at any time being distributed or the plantation, or business from the sale or carrying on of which such assets have been obtained, but also other property of the insolvent, and such assets and other property affected thereby are together more than sufficient to pay such mortgage in full and such mortgage has priority over or ranks equally with any mortgage affecting only such assets, plantation or business, the holder of the last mentioned mortgage shall be entitled to stand in the place of the holder of the first mentioned mortgage in respect of such other property to the extent to which the payment of such first mentioned mortgage debt has exhausted such assets. 3. If the property of the insolvent is insufficient to pay in full the debts in the foregoing class marked f such debts shall rank equally between themselves and shall abate in equal proportions between themselves. 4. In this section the term "legal mortgages" shall mean: a) The lien of the wife of an insolvent who has executed an antenuptial contract on all the insolvent's property in respect of the property secured by such contract in cases where the provisions relating to such contracts hereinafter contained have been complied with; b) The lien of any person who has been under the guardianship or curatorship of an insolvent, and of the heir of such person on all the insolvent's property in respect of maladministration or neglect of the estate of such person; c) The lien of the children of an insolvent by a deceased wife, to whom he was married in community of goods on all his property in respect of such of the property held in community during the marriage as devolved on them on their deceased parent's death; d) The lien of a landlord on any growing crop or moveables which are at the date of the receiving order on property rented from him by the insolvent in respect of arrears of rent due from the insolvent for the six months next before the date of the receiving order; e) The lien of a legatee as a security for his legacy on property to which the insolvent has succeeded as heir under a will. 5. No contract for the sale of any interest in immovable property or for any charge or incumbrance on any immoveable property, and no conventional mortgage, shall be of any force or give any right of preference which has not been completed by transport or mortgage duly passed before the Court or a Judge; except that the creditor may claim under his contract as a concurrent creditor against the debtor's estate. 6. No married woman shall in case of her husband's insolvency be entitled to claim as a creditor of his estate by reason of her antenuptial contract unless all the following provisions have been complied with, viz: a) The contract if made after the commencement of this Ordinance has been made in writing and duly deposited in the Registrar's Office or recorded therein within three months after the execution thereof or if made before the commencement of this Ordinance has been reduced to writing (if not so made) and duly deposited in the Registrar's Office or recorded therein not later than three months after such commencement; b) The money or other property affected by such contract and belonging to her at the date of the execution thereof has been clearly specified in such contract or an inventory annexed thereto, at such date, or in case of any contract made before the commencement of this Ordinance and not having any such specification therein or any inventory annexed thereto, in an inventory deposited or recorded not later than three months after such commencement; and c) A statutory declaration by two or more independent witnesses, testifying to the facts that the property specified in the contract or inventory to the contract is or was at the date of the contract the property of the woman to whose marriage such contract relates, that such property was at that date actually transferred, and that the value of such property is correctly specified in such contract or inventory has been duly deposited in the Registrar's Office or recorded therein along with the inventory or in cases where a contract having such specification therein has or a contract and inventory have been recorded before the commencement of this Ordinance not later than three months after such commencement. 7. No married woman shall in case of her husband's insolvency be entitled by reason of her antenuptial contract to any preferent claim on his estate for any money or other property acquired by her during the marriage, unless an inventory thereof and a statutory declaration by two or more independent witnesses verifying the fact of such property still existing and how it has been acquired by her are deposited or recorded in the Registrar's Office within two months after the acquisition thereof and before any loan thereof to her husband, or within three months after the commencement of the Ordinance if acquired before such commencement, but her claim in respect thereof shall rank concurrently with the claims of all other unsecured creditors on his estate. 8. If there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date of the receiving order at the rate of six per cent. per annum on all debts proved in the insolvency. 9. In the case of partners, the joint estate shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of their joint debts, and the separate estate of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. If there is a surplus of the separate estates, it shall be dealt with as part of the joint estate. If there is a surplus of the joint estate, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate estates in proportion to the right and interest of each partner in the joint estate. 10. Nothing in this section shall alter the effect of section 5 of the Partnership Ordinance, 1900, or prejudice the provisions of any Ordinance for the time being in force relating to friendly societies.

Imp. § 40; 51 & 52 Vic. c. 62, § 1. A contract for the purchase of land does not confer an absolute right to transport of the land, but only a right to compel the vendor to transport the land, provided the rights of the vendor's creditors are not interfered with. If the vendor is unable by reason of such rights being enforced, to pass transport, the purchaser can claim compensation from him. — In re Andrews, (19th September, 1904). Preferential claim in case of apprenticeship. 38. 1. Where, at the time of the presentation of the insolvency petition, any person is apprenticed or is an articulated clerk to the insolvent, the adjudication of insolvency shall, if either the insolvent or the apprentice or clerk gives notice in writing to the assignee to that effect, be a complete discharge of the indenture of apprenticeship or articles of agreement; and if any money has been paid by or on behalf of the apprentice or clerk to the insolvent as a fee, the assignee may, on the application of the apprentice or clerk or of some person on his behalf, pay such sum as the assignee, subject to an appeal to the Court, may think reasonable, out of the insolvent's property, to or for the use of the apprentice or clerk, regard being had to the amount paid by him or on his behalf, and to the time during which he served with the insolvent under the indenture or articles before the commencement of the insolvency, and to the other circumstances of the case. 2. Relation back to assignee's title. 39. The insolvency of a debtor, whether the same takes place on the debtor's own petition or on that of a creditor or creditors, shall be deemed to have relation back to, and to commence at, the time of the act of insolvency being committed on which a receiving order is made against him, or, if the insolvent is proved to have committed more acts of insolvency than one, to have relation back to, and to commence at, the time of the first of the acts of insolvency proved to have been committed by the insolvent within three months next preceding the date of the presentation of the insolvency petition; but no insolvency petition, receiving order, or adjudication shall be rendered invalid by reason of any act of insolvency anterior to the debt of the petitioning creditor.

Imp. § 43.

Description of property divisible amongst creditors. 40. The property of the insolvent divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Ordinance referred to as the property of the insolvent, shall not comprise the following particulars: 1. Property held by the insolvent on trust for any other person. 2. The tools, if any, of his trade and the necessary wearing apparel and bedding of himself, his wife and children, to a value, inclusive of tools and apparel and bedding, not exceeding ninety-six dollars in the whole. But it shall comprise the following particulars: i) All such property as may belong to or be vested in the insolvent at the commencement of the insolvency, or may be acquired by or devolve on him before his discharge; ii) The capacity to exercise and to take proceedings for exercising all such powers in, or over, or in respect of property as might have been exercised by the insolvent for his own benefit at the commencement of his insolvency or before his discharge; and iii) All goods being, at the commencement of the insolvency, in the possession, order, or disposition of the insolvent in his trade or business by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner of such goods: Provided that things in action, other than debts due or growing due to the insolvent in the course of his trade or business, shall not be deemed goods within the meaning of this section: Provided also, that nothing in this section shall affect the rights of minors or persons under disability.

Imp. § 44. See Mendonca v. Vieira, (9th January, 1904).

Effect of insolvency on antecedent transactions.

Restriction of rights of creditor in execution. 41. 1. Where a creditor has issued execution against the goods or immoveable property of a debtor, or has attached any debt due to him, he shall not be entitled to retain the benefit of the execution or attachment against the assignee, unless he has completed the execution or attachment before the date of the receiving order, and before notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against the debtor or of the commission of any available act of insolvency by the debtor. 2. For the purposes of this Ordinance, an execution against goods is completed by seizure and sale; an attachment of a debt is completed by receipt of the debt; and an execution against immoveable property is completed by seizure and sale.

Imp. § 45.

Duty of the marshal in respect of goods taken in execution by creditor. 42. Where any goods of a debtor are taken in execution and, before the sale thereof or the completion of the execution by the receipt or recovery of the full amount of the levy, notice is served on the marshal, that a receiving order has been made against the debtor, the marshal shall, on request, deliver the goods and any money seized or received in part satisfaction of the execution to the official receiver, but the cost of the proceedings up to and including the cost of execution shall be a first charge on the goods or money so delivered, and the official receiver or assignee may sell the goods or an adequate part thereof, for the purpose of satisfying the charge. 2. Where under an execution in respect of a judgment for a sum exceeding one hundred dollars, the goods of a debtor are sold or money is paid in order to avoid sale, the marshal shall deduct the costs of the execution including the taxed costs of the plaintiff from the proceeds of sale or the money paid, and retain the balance for fourteen days, and if, within that time, notice is served on him of an insolvency petition having been presented against or by the debtor, and a receiving order is made thereon or on any other petition of which the marshal has notice, the marshal shall pay the balance to the official receiver, or, as the case may be, the assignee, who shall be entitled to retain the same as against the execution creditor. 3. An execution levied by a seizure and sale of the goods of a debtor is not invalid by reason only of the same being an act of insolvency, and a person who purchases the goods in good faith under a sale by the marshal shall in all cases acquire a good title to them against the assignee.

Imp. § 46; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, §§ 11, 12.

Effect of insolvency on certain settlements. 43. 1. Any settlement of property, not being a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or made in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration, or made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage, in right of his wife, shall, if the settlor becomes insolvent within two years after the date of the settlement, be void against the assignee, and shall, if the settlor becomes insolvent at any subsequent time within ten years after the date of the settlement, be void against the assignee, unless the parties claiming under the settlement can prove that the settlor was, at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement, and that the interest of the settlor in such property had passed under such settlement on the execution thereof. 2. Any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of marriage any estate or interest, whether vested or contingent, in possession or remainder, and not being money or property of or in right of his wife, shall, on his becoming insolvent before the property or money has been actually transferred or paid pursuant to the contract or covenant, be void against the assignee: Provided that if such money or property has been actually transferred or paid in contemplation of insolvency, the wife or children shall not be entitled to retain the same against the assignee, unless they or the parties claiming under them can prove that the settlor was, at the time of making the covenant or contract able to pay his debts in full, but they shall nevertheless be entitled to claim in respect of such covenant or contract concurrently with the other creditors, unless it appears to the Court that such covenant or contract was made in order to defeat and delay creditors or was unjustifiable, having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when such covenant or contract was entered into, and that the wife had notice, from the circumstances or otherwise, that such was the case. 3. Every settlement of any property made in contemplation of insolvency or with intent to delay, hinder, defeat, or defraud creditors, shall be void against any assignee and against every person who or any of whose remedies for the recovery of his debt shall or may be in any wise disturbed, hindered, delayed, defeated, or defrauded, any pretence, colour, or feigned consideration to the contrary notwithstanding: Provided always that this subsection shall not affect the validity of any settlement made in good faith and for valuable consideration in favour of any person not having at the date thereof any manner of notice or knowledge of such settlement having been made in contemplation of insolvency or with any such intent as aforesaid. 4. Where a settlement, covenant, or contract is void under this section against the assignee, the assignee shall have and exercise all necessary rights and powers for acquiring title to and possession of the money or property affected or purporting to be affected by such settlement, covenant, or contract. 5. "Settlement" shall, for the purposes of this section, include any conveyance or transfer of money or property.

Imp. § 47. The word "settlement" means a transfer or conveyance of property or money with the intention that the property or money should be preserved for the enjoyment of some person other than the transferor. — In re Macedo, Ex parte The Administrator-General, (14th June, 1902).

Avoidance of preferences. 44. 1. Every conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred, and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying, or suffering the same is adjudged insolvent on an insolvency petition presented within three months after the date of making, taking, paying, or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the assignee. 2. The fact that the debtor was pressed by his creditor shall not prevent the transaction being void, but in such case the Court, if it considers the insolvent's conduct was excusable, may direct that the transaction shall not affect his discharge. 3. This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title, in good faith and for valuable consideration, through or under a creditor of the insolvent.

Imp. § 48. See In re De Souza, (8th July, 1902, 16th August, 1902).

Protection of bonâ fide transactions without notice. 45. Subject to the preceding provisions of this Ordinance with respect to the effect of insolvency on an execution or attachment and with respect to the avoidance of certain settlements and preferences, nothing in this Ordinance shall invalidate, in case of an insolvency: 1. Any payment by the insolvent to any of his creditors; or 2. Any payment or delivery to the insolvent; or 3. Any conveyance or assignment by the insolvent for valuable consideration; or 4. Any contract, dealing, or transaction by or with the insolvent for valuable consideration: Provided that both the following conditions are complied with, namely: i) The payment, delivery, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction, as the case may be, takes place before the date of the receiving order; and ii) The person (other than the debtor) to, by, or with whom the payment, delivery, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction was made, executed, or entered into has not, at the time of the payment, delivery, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction, notice of any available act of insolvency committed by the insolvent before that time.

Imp. § 49.

Realization of property.

Possession of property by the assignee, etc. 46. 1. The assignee shall, as soon as may be, take possession of the deeds, books, and documents of the insolvent, and all other parts of his property capable of manual delivery. 2. The assignee shall also take possession of the other property of the insolvent, and in relation to and for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the insolvent shall be in the same position as if he were a receiver of the property appointed by the Court and the Court may on his application enforce such acquisition or retention accordingly. 3. The official receiver on taking possession of any property, shall, by himself or by any person authorized by him in writing, make a full and articulate inventory of such property. The inventory shall be made in the presence of one witness, and shall be signed by the person making such inventory and by the witness. The debtor or person giving up or delivering such property shall be bound to sign such inventory or state in writing on such inventory the particulars in which it is incorrect, in default whereof the official receiver shall apply to the Court for an order to compel him to do so. Such inventory shall be deposited as of record in the Registrar's Office. 4. Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of stock, scrip, shares in ships, shares, or any other property transferable in the books of any company, office, or person, the assignee may exercise the right to transfer the property to the same extent as the insolvent might have exercised it if he had not become insolvent. 5. Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of things in action, such things shall be deemed to have been duly assigned to the assignee. 6. Any treasurer or other officer, or any banker, attorney, or agent of an insolvent, shall pay and deliver to the assignee all money and securities in his possession or power, as such officer, banker, attorney, or agent, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the insolvent or the assignee. If he does not, he shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and may be punished accordingly on the application of the assignee.

Imp. § 50. See In re Teekah, (17th July, 1901).

Seizure of property of insolvent. 47. Any person acting under warrant of the Court may seize any part of the property of an insolvent in the custody or possession of the insolvent or of any other person, and with a view to such seizure, may break open any house, building, or room of the insolvent where the insolvent is supposed to be, or any building or receptacle of the insolvent where any of his property is supposed to be; and where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that property of the insolvent is concealed in a house or place not belonging to him, the Court may, if it thinks fit, grant a search warrant to the Registrar or any marshal or any constable, who may execute it according to its tenor.

Imp. § 51.

Appropriation of portion of pay or salary of insolvent to creditors. 48. 1. Where an insolvent is an officer or clerk or otherwise employed or engaged in the civil service of the Crown or the Colony, the assignee shall receive for distribution amongst the creditors so much of the insolvent's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the assignee, with the consent of the Governor, may direct. Before making any order under this subsection, the Court shall communicate with the Government Secretary as to the amount, time, and manner of the payment to the assignee and shall obtain the written statement of the Government Secretary that the Governor consents to the terms of such payment. 2. Where an insolvent is in the receipt of a salary or income other than as aforesaid, or is entitled to any pay or pension or to any compensation, gratuity, or allowance granted by the Government, the Court, on the application of the assignee shall from time to time make such order as it may think just for the payment of such salary, income, pay, pension, compensation, gratuity, or allowance or of any part thereof, to the assignee to be applied by him in such manner as the Court may direct. 3. Nothing in this section shall take away or abridge any power of the Governor to dismiss an insolvent, or to declare the pension allowance of any insolvent to be forfeited.

Imp. § 53.

Vesting and transfer of property. 49. 1. Until an assignee is appointed the official receiver shall be the assignee for the purpose of this Ordinance and immediately on a debtor being adjudged insolvent, the property of the insolvent shall vest in the assignee. 2. On the appointment of an assignee, the property shall forthwith pass to and vest in the assignee appointed. 3. The property of the insolvent shall pass from assignee to assignee including under that term the official receiver when he fills the office of assignee, and shall vest in the assignee for the time being during his continuance in office, without any transport, conveyance, assignment, or transfer whatever.

Imp. § 54.

Disclaimer of onerous property. 50. 1. Where any part of the property of the insolvent consists of lands of any tenure burdened with onerous covenants, of shares or stock in companies, of unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is unsaleable, or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act or to the payment of any sum of money, the assignee, notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of the property or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, but subject to the provisions of this section, may, by writing signed by him, at any time within six months after the date of the receiving order, or at any time with leave of the Court, disclaim the property: Provided that where any such property has not come to the knowledge of the assignee within one month after such date, he may disclaim such property at any time within six months after he first became aware thereof. 2. The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date of such disclaimer, the rights, interests, and liabilities of the insolvent and his property in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the insolvent and his property and the assignee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person. 3. The assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim a lease without the leave of the Court, except in any case, which may be prescribed by general rules, and the Court may, before or on granting such leave, require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and make such orders, with respect to fixtures, tenant's improvements, and other matters arising out of the tenancy, as the Court may think just. 4. The assignee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to the assignee by any person interested in the property requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and the assignee has, for a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the property or not; and, in case of a contract, if the assignee after such application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or extended period disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it. 5. The Court may on the application of any person who is, as against the assignee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the insolvent, make an order rescinding the contract, on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise, as to the Court may seem equitable, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt under the insolvency. 6. The Court may, on application by any person either claiming any interest in any disclaimed property or under any liability not discharged by this Ordinance in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or delivery thereof to any person entitled thereto or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or any person on his behalf and for his benefit and on such terms as the Court thinks just; and, on any such vesting order being made, the moveable property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose and, the Registrar is hereby directed to pass the necessary conveyances of any immoveable property: Provided always that where the property disclaimed is of a leasehold nature, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the insolvent, as under-lessee, except upon the terms of making such person subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the insolvent was subject to under the lease in respect of the property at the date when the insolvency petition was filed; or (if the Court thinks fit) the person in whose favour the vesting order is made may be made subject only to the same liabilities and obligations as if the lease had been assigned to him at the date when the insolvency petition was filed, and (if the case so requires) as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order; and any under-lessee declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms shall be excluded from all interest in the property; and if there is no person claiming under the insolvent who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the insolvent's estate and interest in the property in any person liable, either personally or in a representative character and either alone or jointly with the insolvent, to perform the lessee's covenants in such lease, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances, and interests created therein by the insolvent. 7. Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the insolvent to the extent of the injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the insolvency.

Imp. § 55; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 13.

Powers of the assignee to deal with property. 51. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to any general rules, the assignee may do all or any of the following things: 1. Sell all or any part of the property of the insolvent (including the goodwill of the business, if any, and the book debts due or growing due to the insolvent), by public sale or by tender, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels; 2. Give receipts for any money received by him, which receipts shall effectually discharge the person paying the money from all responsibility in respect of the application thereof. 3. Prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend in respect of any debt due to the insolvent; and 4. Exercise any powers the capacity to exercise which is vested in the assignee under this Ordinance, and execute any powers of attorney, deeds, and other instruments for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 56.

Powers exerciseable with permission of committee of inspection. 52. 1. The assignee with the permission of the committee of inspection may do all or any of the following things: a) Carry on the business of the insolvent, so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same; b) Bring, institute, or defend any action or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the insolvent; c) Employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the committee of inspection; d) Accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the insolvent a sum of money payable at a future time, subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the committee may think fit; e) Mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the insolvent for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts; f) Refer any dispute to arbitration, compromise all debts, claims, and liabilities, whether present or future, certain or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the insolvent and any person who may have incurred any liability to the insolvent, on the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally on such terms as may be agreed on; g) Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, in respect of any debts provable under the insolvency; h) Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim arising out of or incidental to the property of the insolvent made or capable of being made on the assignee by any person or by the assignee on any person; and i) Divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot be readily or advantageously sold. 2. The permission given for the purposes of this section shall not be a general permission to do all or any of the above-mentioned things, but shall only be a permission to do the particular thing or things for which permission is sought in the specified case or cases. Provided always that the assignee shall not carry on any business of the insolvent except with the permission of the committee of inspection expressly given or, in the absence of such committee, with the consent of the Court, and shall not carry on any plantation in cultivation except with the permission of the committee of inspection expressly given if one is appointed, and of the Court: Provided, also that every plantation in cultivation shall while it remains under the administration of the assignee be conducted in the prescribed manner and subject to the directions of the Court.

Imp. § 57.

Distribution of property.

Declaration and distribution of dividends. 53. 1. Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the assignee shall, with all convenient speed, declare and distribute dividends amongst the creditors who have proved their debts. 2. The first dividend, if any, shall be declared and distributed within four months after the conclusion of the first meeting of creditors unless the assignee satisfies the committee of inspection or the Court that there is sufficient reason for postponing the declaration to a later date. 3. Subsequent dividends shall, in the absence of sufficient reason to the contrary, be declared and distributed at intervals of not more than six months. 4. No dividend, except a final dividend, shall be declared of less amount than one cent in the dollar. Where the amount finally to be divided will give less than one-quarter of one cent in the dollar, no dividend shall be declared and the administration shall be closed. 5. Before declaring a dividend, the assignee shall publish in the prescribed manner, a notice of his intention to do so, and shall also send a reasonable notice thereof to each creditor mentioned in the insolvent's statement, who has not proved his debt. 6. When the assignee has declared a dividend, he shall publish a notice stating the amount of the dividend and when and how it is payable and shall prepare for the inspection of creditors a statement in the prescribed form as to the particulars of the estate.

Imp. § 58.

Joint and separate dividends. 54. 1. Where one partner of a firm is adjudged insolvent, a creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the insolvent until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts. 2. Where joint and separate properties are being administered, dividends of the joint and separate properties shall, subject to any order to the contrary that may be made by the Court, on the application of any person interested, be declared together; and the expenses of and incident to such dividends shall be fairly apportioned by the assignee between the joint and separate properties, regard being had to the work done for and the benefit received by, each property.

Imp. § 59.

Provision for creditors residing at a distance. 55. In the calculation and distribution of a dividend, the assignee shall make provision for debts provable in insolvency appearing from the insolvent's statements, or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant from the Colony that in the ordinary course of communication, they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs or to establish them if disputed, and also for debts provable in insolvency, the subject of claims not yet determined. He shall also make provision for any disputed proofs or claims and for the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise, and, subject to the foregoing provisions, he shall distribute as dividend all money in hand.

Imp. § 60.

Right of creditor who does not prove debt before declaration of dividend. 56. Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being in the hands of the assignee any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

Imp. § 61. As to circumstances when relief is granted where a secured creditor proves as unsecured, see In re Mendonca, (9th January, 1904). As to solicitor's lien, see In re Winter Gold Mine, Ltd., (26th April, 1901).

Final dividend. 57. 1. When the assignee has realized all the property of the insolvent, or so much thereof as can, in the joint opinion of himself and the committee of inspection, be realized without needlessly protracting the assigneeship, he shall declare a final dividend but before doing so, he shall give notice, in the prescribed manner, to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified to him, but not established to his satisfaction, that, if they do not establish their claims to the satisfaction of the Court within a time limited by the notice, he will proceed to make a final dividend, without regard to their claims. 2. After the expiration of the time so limited, or, if the Court, on application by any such claimant, grants him further time for establishing his claim, then on the expiration of such further time, the property of the insolvent shall be divided among the creditors who have proved their debts, without regard to the claims of any other persons.

Imp. § 62.

Barring of action for dividend. 58. No action for a dividend shall lie against the assignee, but if he refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

Imp. § 63.

Procedure where property is withheld under claim of right. 59. 1. Where the assignee claims property belonging to the insolvent, and possession of the same is refused or withheld by any person under a bona fide claim of right which raises any question of law or of fact, the assignee may apply, in the prescribed manner, to the Court, and the Court may either order the immediate delivery of such property to the assignee or, when the question cannot be properly decided in a summary way, may order that a suit be instituted in the ordinary manner. 2. When any property is so withheld as aforesaid, and the circumstances appear to the Court to require immediate steps to be taken to preserve the property, the Court may make an interim order authorizing the assignee to take possession of such property under further order therein.

See note to § 37. supra.

Procedure where property is claimed by third person. 60. When any person lays claim to any property which is in the custody or possession of the assignee such person may apply to the Court, in the prescribed manner, to issue directions to the assignee.

Employment of and allowance to insolvent for maintenance. 61. 1. The assignee with the permission of the committee of inspection may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade, if any, of the insolvent for the benefit of his creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the assignee may direct. 2. The assignee with the permission of the committee of inspection may from time to time make such allowance as he may think just to the insolvent out of his property for the support of the insolvent and his family, or in consideration of his services, if he is engaged in winding up his estate, but any such allowance may be reduced by the Court on the application of any creditor. The assignee shall report the amount of such allowance to the Court.

Imp. § 64.

Right of insolvent to surplus. 62. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest, as by this Ordinance provided, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of the proceedings under the insolvency petition.

Imp. § 65.

Imp. § 68.

Duties as regards debtor's conduct. 64. As regards the debtor, it shall be the duty of the official receiver: 1. To investigate the conduct of the debtor and to report to the Court, stating whether there is reason to believe that the debtor has committed any act which constitutes a misdemeanour under any Ordinance for the time being in force providing for the punishment of fraudulent debtors, or under this Ordinance, or under any amendment thereof, or which would justify the Court in refusing, suspending, or qualifying an order for his discharge. 2. To make such other reports concerning the conduct of the debtor as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 69.

Duty as regards administration of estate. 65. 1. Where a receiving order is made or the official receiver is appointed interim receiver, the official receiver shall immediately take possession of the property of the debtor. 3. For the purpose of his duties as interim receiver or manager the official receiver shall have all powers necessary to protect the estate as if the same vested in him, but shall as far as practicable consult the wishes of the creditors with respect to the management of the debtor's property and may for that purpose, if he thinks it advisable summon meetings of the persons claiming to be creditors and shall not save as provided by subsection 1, h, of this section, unless the Court otherwise orders, incur any expense beyond such as is requisite for the protection of the debtor's property or the disposing of perishable goods.

Imp. § 70.

The Governor may from time to time, by order, direct that any officer mentioned in the order shall be capable of discharging the duties of the Administrator-General under this Ordinance, or any general rules, either in any particular county, or for any particular time during any temporary vacancy in the office, or during the temporary absence of the Administrator-General. 4. The Administrator-General may, with the consent of the Governor, depute any of the officers in the Office of the Administrator-General to perform any of the duties of his office under this Ordinance, whenever he is unable to perform them in person through illness or otherwise.

Imp. § 71. The name "official receiver" is substituted for "Administrator-General."

Appointment, remuneration, and removal of assignee.

Official name of assignee. 68. 1. The assignee shall be called by the name of "the assignee of the property of (inserting the name of the debtor) an insolvent" and by that name may hold property of every description, make contracts, sue and be sued, enter into any engagements binding on himself and his successors in office, and do all other acts necessary or expedient to be done in the execution of his office. 2. The creditors may, if they think fit, appoint more persons than one to the office of assignee, and when more persons than one are appointed, they shall declare whether any act required or authorized to be done by the assignee is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons; but all such persons are in this Ordinance included under the term "assignee," and shall be joint possessors or joint owners as the case may be of the property of the debtor. 3. The creditors may also appoint persons to act as assignees in succession in the event of one or more of the persons first named declining to accept the office of assignee, or failing to give security, or being objected to by the official receiver.

Imp. §§ 83, 84.

Remuneration of assignee. 69. 1. Where the creditors appoint any person to be assignee of a debtor's estate, his remuneration, if any, shall be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors, or, if the creditors so resolve, by the committee of inspection, and shall be in the nature of a commission or percentage, of which one part shall be payable on the amount realized by him after deducting any sums paid to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities, and the other part on the amount distributed in dividend. 2. If one-fourth in number or value of the creditors dissent from the resolution, or the debtor satisfies the Court that the remuneration is unnecessarily large, the Court shall fix the amount of the remuneration. 3. The resolution shall express what expenses the remuneration is to cover, and no liability shall attach to the debtor's estate, or to the creditors, in respect of any expenses which the remuneration is expressed to cover. 4. Where an assignee so appointed acts without any remuneration he shall be allowed out of the insolvent's estate such proper expenses incurred by him in or about the proceedings of the insolvency, as the creditors may with the sanction of the official receiver approve. 5. An assignee shall not, under any circumstances whatever, make any arrangement for or accept from the debtor, or any solicitor, auctioneer, or any other person who may be employed about an insolvency, any gift, remuneration, or pecuniary or other consideration or benefit whatever beyond the remuneration fixed by the creditors and payable out of the estate nor shall he make any arrangement for giving up, or give up, any part of his remuneration, either as receiver, manager, or assignee to the debtor or insolvent, or to any solicitor or other person who may be employed about an insolvency.

Imp. § 72; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 15.

Allowance and taxation of costs. 70. 1. Where an assignee or manager receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment shall be allowed in his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person of the ordinary duties which are required by this Ordinance or general rules to be performed by himself. 2. Where the assignee is a solicitor, he may contract that the remuneration for his services as assignee shall include all professional services. 3. All bills and charges of barristers, solicitors, managers, accountants, auctioneers, brokers, and other persons, not being assignees, shall be taxed by the Registrar or prescribed officer, and no payments in respect thereof shall be allowed in the assignee's accounts without proof of such taxation having been made. The Registrar or prescribed officer shall satisfy himself, before passing such bills and charges, that the employment of such barristers, solicitors and other persons, in respect of the particular matters out of which such charges arise, has been duly sanctioned. The sanction required under this section for the employment of barristers, solicitors or other persons must be a sanction obtained before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in such cases it must be shewn that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction. 4. Every such person shall, on request by the assignee (which request the assignee shall make a sufficient time before declaring a dividend), deliver his bill of costs or charges to the proper officer for taxation, and if he fails to do so within seven days after receipt of the request, or such further time as the Court, on application, may grant, the assignee shall declare and distribute the dividend without regard to any claim by him, and thereupon any such claim shall be forfeited, as well against the assignee personally as against the estate.

Imp. § 73.

Vacation of office of assignee by insolvency. 71. If a receiving order is made against an assignee, he shall thereby vacate his office of assignee.

Imp. § 85.

Removal of assignee. 72. 1. The creditors may, by ordinary resolution, at a meeting specially called for that purpose, of which seven days' notice has been given, remove an assignee appointed by them; and may, at the same or any subsequent meeting, appoint another person to fill the vacancy as hereinafter provided in case of a vacancy in the office of the assignee. 2. If the official receiver is of opinion that an assignee appointed by the creditors is guilty of misconduct or fails to perform his duties under this Ordinance, or is by reason of lunacy or continued sickness or absence incapable of performing his duties or that his connection with or relation to the insolvent or his estate or any particular creditor might make it difficult for him to act with impartiality in the interest of the creditors generally, or if such assignee in any other matter has been removed from office on the ground of misconduct, the official receiver may remove such assignee from his office, but if the creditors by ordinary resolution disapprove of his removal, he or they may appeal against it to the Court.

Imp. § 86; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 19.

Proceedings in case of vacancy in office of assignee. 73. 1. If a vacancy occurs in the office of an assignee, the creditors in a general meeting may appoint a person to fill the vacancy, and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken as in the case of a first appointment. 2. The official receiver shall, on the requisition of any creditor, summon a meeting for the purpose of filling any such vacancy. 3. If the creditors do not, within three weeks after the occurrence of a vacancy, appoint a person to fill the vacancy, the official receiver shall become assignee; but in such case the creditors or committee of inspection shall have the same power of appointing an assignee as in the case of a first appointment. 4. During any vacancy in the office of assignee, the official receiver shall act as assignee.

Imp. § 87.

Powers and duties of assignee.

Voting powers of assignee. 74. The vote of the assignee or of his partner, clerk, solicitor, or solicitor's clerk, either as creditor or as proxy for a creditor, shall not be reckoned in the majority required for passing any resolution affecting the remuneration or conduct of the assignee.

Imp. § 88.

Insolvency Estates' Account. 75. 1. An Account called "the Insolvency Estates' Account" shall be kept by the official receiver with the Receiver-General, and all moneys received by the official receiver as assignee or from assignees shall be paid to that account. 2. Every assignee shall, in such manner and at such times as may be prescribed, pay the money received by him to the Insolvency Estates' Account at the official receiver's office, and the official receiver shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid which shall be an effectual discharge to him in respect thereof. 3. No commission shall be payable to the official receiver on moneys received by an assignee and paid into a bank as hereinafter provided: but the official receiver shall at such times as may be prescribed, and in any event not less than once in every six months, examine the banking account of the assignee and call the assignee to account for any misfeasance or neglect in connection therewith, and for each such examination the prescribed fee shall be paid.

Imp. § 74.

Rules as to keeping of account at bank. 76. 1. Where a committee of inspection is appointed, if it appears to the committee of inspection that, for the purpose of carrying on the debtor's business or of obtaining advances, or because of the probable amount of the cash balance, or if the committee satisfies the official receiver that for any other reason it is for the advantage of the creditors that the assignee should have an account with a bank, the Administrator-General may, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorize the assignee to make his payments into and out of such bank as the committee may select. 2. Such account shall be opened and kept by the assignee in the name of the debtor's estate; and any interest receivable in respect of the account shall be part of the assets of the estate. 3. The assignee shall make his payments into and out of such bank in the prescribed manner. 4. Subject to any general rules relating to small insolvencies under Part. VII, where the debtor, at the date of the receiving order, has an account at a bank, such account shall not be withdrawn until the expiration of seven days from the day appointed for the first meeting of creditors, unless the official receiver for the safety of the account or other sufficient cause, withdraws the account. 5. If an assignee at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding two hundred and forty dollars or such other amount as the Court in any particular case may authorize him to retain, then, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in excess at the rate of twenty per cent. per annum, and shall have no claim for remuneration, and may be removed from his office by the Court and shall be liable to pay any expenses occasioned by reason of his default. 6. All payments out of money standing to the credit of the Insolvency Estates' Account shall be made by the official receiver in the prescribed manner.

Imp. § 74.

Prohibition of assignee paying into private account. 77. No assignee in an insolvency or under any composition or scheme of arrangement shall pay any sums received by him as assignee into his private banking account.

Imp. § 75.

Duty of assignee to account to the Registrar. 78. 1. Every assignee shall, at such times as may be prescribed, but not less than once in each period of six months during his tenure of office, send to the Registrar an account of his receipts and payments as such assignee. 2. The accounts shall be in the prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate and shall be verified by a declaration in the prescribed form. 3. a) On receipt of the account with the books, documents, and vouchers, the Registrar shall forthwith cause due notice thereof to be published for four successive Wednesdays, calling upon all persons interested to examine the same and to state their objections, if any, in writing, within one month from the date when the notice was first published; b) The account and the books, documents, and vouchers shall be open during office hours to the inspection of all persons interested in the estate for the said period, without the payment of any fee; c) Any person interested objecting to the account shall state his objection in writing, and may file the same in the Registrar's Office without the payment of any fee. After the expiration of the said period the Registrar shall place before the accountant to the Court the account, books, documents, and vouchers, in the order in which they have been deposited with him and the objections thereto, if any, and if any document or voucher is found deficient or wanting, the accountant to the Court shall give notice thereof in writing to the assignee who shall be bound, within fourteen days after the receipt of such notice, to furnish the document or voucher required, or show sufficient cause to the contrary; on pain, in default thereof, of having the items which are unvouched or unsupported struck out of his account; d) The accountant to the Court shall thereupon examine such account, together with the inventory and statement of affairs filed by the insolvent, and shall ascertain if the assets of the estate which ought to have been collected have been so collected, and shall either certify the account as correct, or shall report to the Court upon such account specifying any objections that he may have thereto; and, thereafter, upon a day to be fixed for that purpose, of which notice shall be given in the Gazette, the said account shall be submitted for approval to a Judge sitting apart, in the presence of the assignee and of the accountant to the Court, and of any parties concerned who may desire to attend; e) The Judge upon examining the account and after hearing parties and taking evidence, if he thinks fit to do so, shall have full power and authority to approve and pass such account, or to order the same to be altered and amended in such manner as he may deem just, or to reserve any question that may arise for the consideration of the Full Court. 4. When any such account has been passed, one copy thereof shall be filed and kept by the Court, and such copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of the debtor, or of any person interested, on payment of the prescribed fee.

Imp. § 78.

Duty of assignee to furnish list of creditors. 79. 1. The assignee shall, whenever required by any creditor to do so and on payment by such creditor of the prescribed fee, furnish and transmit to such creditor by post a list of the creditors, showing in such list the amount of the debt due to each of such creditors. 2. It shall be lawful for any creditor, with the concurrence of one-sixth of the creditors (including himself) at any time to call upon the assignee or official receiver to furnish and transmit to the creditors a statement of the accounts up to the date of such notice, and the assignee or official receiver shall, upon receipt of such notice, furnish and transmit such statement of the accounts. Provided the person at whose instance the accounts are furnished shall deposit with the assignee or official receiver, as the case may be, a sum sufficient to pay the costs of furnishing and transmitting the accounts, such sum to be repaid to him out of the estate if the creditors or the Court so direct.

Imp. § 79; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, §§ 16. 17.

Duty of assignee to keep proper books. 80. The assignee shall keep, in the prescribed manner, proper books, in which he shall from time to time cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor of the insolvent may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent, inspect any such books.

Imp. § 80.

Annual statement by assignee. 81. 1. Every assignee shall from time to time when thereto required by the official receiver, and not less than once in every year during the time he continues to act, transmit to the official receiver a statement showing the proceedings in the insolvency up to the date of the statement, containing the prescribed particulars, and made out in the prescribed form. 2. The official receiver shall cause the statement so transmitted to be examined, and shall call the assignee to account for any misfeasance, neglect, or omission which may appear on the said statement or in his accounts or otherwise, and may require the assignee to make good any loss which the estate of the insolvent may have sustained by such misfeasance, neglect, or omission. 3. Where the official receiver is himself the assignee he shall submit a similar statement to the Court, and the Court shall in the prescribed manner cause the functions of the official receiver under the preceding subsection to be performed by any of its officers.

Imp. § 81.

Control over assignee.

Discretionary powers of assignee and control thereof. 82. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the assignee shall, in the administration of the property of the insolvent and in the distribution thereof among his creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, if any; and any directions so given by the creditors at any general meeting shall, in case of conflict, be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection. 2. The assignee may from time to time summon general meetings of the creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the assignee or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one-fourth in value of the creditors. 3. The assignee shall also summon a meeting of creditors within fourteen days after being requested to do so by any creditor with the concurrence of one-sixth in value of the creditors, including the one making such request. Provided that the person at whose instance the meeting is summoned shall deposit with the assignee a sum sufficient to pay the costs of summoning the meeting such sum to be repaid to him out of the estate if the creditors or the Court so direct. 4. The assignee may apply to the Court, in the prescribed manner, for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the insolvency. 5. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance the assignee shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

Imp. § 89; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 18. This section does not render the directions of creditors absolutely binding on an assignee. He may apply to the Court for directions. The persons voting at a creditors' meeting must act bona fide. — In re Mendonca, (20th November, 1903).

Appeal to Court. 83. If the insolvent or any of the creditors, or any other person, is aggrieved by any act or decision of the assignee, he may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of and make such order in the premises as it thinks fit.

Imp. § 90.

Appeal to the Court against assignee. Control of the official receiver over assignee. 84. 1. The official receiver shall take cognizance of the conduct of assignees, and, in the event of any assignee not faithfully performing his duties and duly observing all the requirements imposed on him by Ordinance, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or in the event of any complaint being made to the official receiver by any creditor in regard thereto, the official receiver shall inquire into the matter and take such action thereon as he may deem expedient. 2. The official receiver may at any time require any assignee to answer any inquiry made in relation to any insolvency in which the assignee is engaged, and may, if the official receiver thinks fit, apply to the Court to examine upon oath the assignee or any other person concerning the insolvency. 3. The official receiver may appoint any person to make an investigation of the books and vouchers of the assignee.

Imp. § 91.

Release of assignee.

Release of assignee. 85. 1. When the assignee has realized all the property of the insolvent, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realized without needlessly protracting the assigneeship, and distributed a final dividend, if any, or has ceased to act by reason of a composition having been approved, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Court on his application shall cause a report by the accountant to the Court on his accounts to be prepared, and the Court shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor or person interested against the release of the assignee, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly. 2. Where the release of an assignee is withheld, the Court may, on the application of any creditor or person interested, make such order as it may think just, charging the assignee with the consequences of any act or default that he may have done or made contrary to his duty. 3. An order of the Court releasing the assignee shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the insolvent, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as assignee, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact. 4. Where the assignee has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office, and thereupon the property of the insolvent shall vest in the official receiver. 5. Where on the release of an assignee the official receiver is or is acting as assignee no liability shall attach to him personally in respect of any act done or default made or liability incurred by any prior assignee. 6. Subsections 1 to 3 both inclusive of this section shall apply to the official receiver when he is or is acting as assignee and when the official receiver has been released under those subsections he shall continue to act, as assignee for any subsequent purposes of the administration of the debtor's estate, but no liability shall attach to him personally by reason of his so continuing in respect of any act done, default made, or liability incurred before his release.

Imp. § 82.

Part VI. Jurisdiction, Powers, and Procedure.

Jurisdiction to be exercised by Judge. 86. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to general rules, the jurisdiction of the Court may be exercised by any Judge of the Court and may be exercised in chambers: Provided that when any matter is decided by one Judge, there shall, subject to any general rules, be an appeal to the Full Court.

Imp. § 98.

Power to the Court to decide questions. 87. 1. The Court shall have full power to decide all questions of priorities, and all other questions whatever, whether of law or of fact, which may arise in any case of insolvency coming within the cognizance of the Court, or which the Court may deem it expedient or necessary to decide for the purpose of doing complete justice or making a complete distribution of property in any such case. 2. Where default is made by an assignee, debtor, or other person in obeying any order or direction given by the official receiver or any other officer appointed by the Governor under any power conferred by this Ordinance, the Court may, on the application of the official receiver or other duly authorized person, order such defaulting assignee, debtor, or person to comply with the order or direction so given; and the Court may also, if it thinks fit, on any such application, make an immediate order for the committal of such defaulting assignee, debtor, or other person: Provided that the power given by this subsection shall be deemed to be in addition to, and not in substitution for, any other right or remedy in respect of such default.

Imp. § 102.

Power to the Court to order sale of disputed property. 88. Where the right to any moveable property of a perishable description or any animal in the possession or custody of the official receiver or assignee is in dispute, the Court may after reasonable notice to the party claiming the same order the immediate sale of such property or animal, and the net proceeds of the sale shall represent the subject of the dispute to all intents and purposes or may make such other order as it may think fit.

General powers of the Court. 89. 1. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance and to general rules, the costs of and incidental to any proceeding in Court under this Ordinance shall be in the discretion of the Court. 2. The Court may at any time adjourn any proceedings, before it, upon such terms, if any, as it may think fit to impose. 3. The Court may at any time amend any written process or proceeding under this Ordinance, upon such terms, if any, as it may think fit to impose. 4. Where by this Ordinance or by general rules, the time for doing any act or thing is limited, the Court may extend the time either before or after the expiration thereof, upon such terms, if any, as the Court may think fit to impose. 5. Subject to any general rules, the Court may in any matter take the whole or any part of the evidence either viva voce, or by interrogatories, or upon affidavit, or by commission abroad. 6. For the purpose of approving a composition or scheme by joint debtors, the Court may, if it thinks fit, and on the report of the official receiver that it is expedient to do so, dispense with the public examination of one of such joint debtors, if he is unavoidably prevented from attending the examination by illness or absence abroad. 7. Subject to any general rules, the full Court and the Court may dispose of all matters in insolvency during vacation or non-session of the Court. 8. The Court may at any time review, rescind, or vary any order made by it under its insolvency jurisdiction.

Imp. § 105.

Imp. § 107.

Proceedings to continue when debtor dies. 92. If a debtor by or against whom an insolvency petition has been presented dies, the proceedings in the matter shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be continued as if he were alive.

Imp. § 109.

Petitions against partners. 94. Any creditor whose debt is sufficient to entitle him to present an insolvency petition against all the partners of a firm may present a petition against any one or more partners of the firm, without including the others.

Imp. § 110.

Dismissal of petition as to one or more respondents. 95. Where there are more respondents than one to a petition, the Court may dismiss the petition as to one or more of them, without prejudice to the effect of the petition as against the others of them.

Imp. § 111.

In case of more than one petition, same assignee to be appointed. 96. Where a receiving order has been made on an insolvency petition against or by one member of a partnership, and any other insolvency petition against or by a member of the same partnership is filed in the Court, unless the Court otherwise directs, the same assignee or receiver shall be appointed as may have been appointed in respect of the property of the first-mentioned member of the partnership; and the Court may give such directions for consolidating the proceedings under the petitions as it may think just.

Imp. § 112.

Procedure in case of partner being insolvent. 97. Where a member of a partnership is adjudged insolvent or where a receiving order is made, the Court may authorize the assignee to commence and prosecute any action in the names of the assignee and of the insolvent's partner; and any release by such partner of the debt or demand to which the action relates shall be void; but notice of the application for authority to commence the action shall be given to him, and he may show cause against it, and on his application the Court may, if it thinks fit, direct that he shall receive his proper share of the proceeds of his action, and, if he does not claim any benefit therefrom, he shall be indemnified against costs in respect thereof as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 113.

Insolvent contractor. 98. Where an insolvent is a contractor, or where a receiving order is made against a debtor who is a contractor, in respect of any contract jointly with any person or persons, such person or persons may sue or be sued in respect of the contract without the joinder of the insolvent.

Imp. § 114.

Action by or against partners. 99. Any two or more persons, being partners, or any person carrying on business under a partnership name, may take proceedings or be proceeded against under this Ordinance in the name of the firm, but in such case the Court may, on application by any person interested, order the names of the persons who are partners in such firm or the name of such person to be disclosed in such manner, and verified upon oath, or otherwise as the Court may direct.

Imp. § 115.

Execution of search warrant. 100. A search warrant issued by the Court for the discovery of any property of a debtor may be executed in the prescribed manner, or in the same manner and with the same privileges as a search warrant for property supposed to be stolen may be executed according to law.

Imp. § 120.

Part VII. Small Insolvencies.

Summary administration in small cases. 103. When a petition is presented by or against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise, or the official receiver reports to the Court that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value fifteen hundred dollars, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner, and thereupon the provisions of this Ordinance shall be subject to the following modifications: 1. If the debtor is adjudged insolvent the official receiver shall be the assignee; 2. There shall be no committee of inspection but the official receiver may do all things which may be done by the assignee with the permission of the committee of inspection; 3. Such other modifications may be made in the provisions of this Ordinance as may be prescribed by general rules with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure; but nothing in this section shall permit the modification of the provisions of this Ordinance relating to the examination and discharge of the debtor; Provided that the creditors may, at any time by special resolution, resolve that an assignee be appointed, and thereupon the matter shall proceed as if an order for summary administration had not been made.

Power to the Court to make administration order instead of order for payment by instalments. 104. 1. Where a judgment has been obtained in any Court and the debtor is unable to pay the amount forthwith, and alleges that his whole indebtedness amounts to a sum not exceeding five hundred dollars, inclusive of the debt for which the judgment is obtained, the Court may make an order providing for the administration of his estate, and for the payment of his debts by instalments or otherwise, and either in full or to such extent as to the Court, under the circumstances of the case, may appear practicable, and subject to any conditions as to his future earnings or income which the Court may think just. 2. The order shall not be invalid by reason only that the total amount of the debts is found at any time to exceed five hundred dollars, but in such case the Court may, if it thinks fit, set aside the order. 3. Where it appears to the official receiver that property of the debtor exceeds in value fifty dollars, he shall, at the request of any creditor, seize the debtor's goods, and sell the same, but the household goods, wearing apparel, and bedding of the debtor or his family, and the tools and implements of his trade, to the value in the aggregate of one hundred dollars, shall to that extent be protected from seizure. For the purpose of this subsection the official receiver shall have the same rights and powers in and over the debtor's goods as if the debtor had been adjudged insolvent and such goods had vested in him. 4. When the order is made, no creditor shall have any remedy against the person or property of the debtor in respect of any debt which the debtor has notified to the Court, except with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose; and all proceedings pending against the debtor in respect of any such debt shall be stayed, but the costs already incurred by the creditor may, on application to the Court, be added to the debt notified. 5. If the debtor makes default in payment of any instalment payable in pursuance of any order under this section, he shall, unless the contrary is proved, be deemed to have had, since the date of the order, the means to pay the sum in respect of which he has made default and to have refused or neglected to pay the same. 6. The order shall be carried into effect in such manner as may be prescribed by general rules. 7. Money paid under the order and the proceeds of sale of any goods sold by the official receiver after deducting all expenses of seizure and sale and fees, shall be appropriated, first, in satisfaction of the costs of the plaintiff in the action, next, in satisfaction of the costs of administration, and then in liquidation of debts in accordance with the order. 8. Notice of the application for the order shall be sent to the official receiver, and, when the order is made, the official receiver shall publish a notice in the Gazette and in one newspaper calling on all persons who claim to be creditors in respect of debts contracted before the date of such order to prove their debts within twenty-one days from the date of the first publication of such notice. 9. Any creditor of the debtor, on proof of such debt before the official receiver, shall be entitled to be scheduled as a creditor of the debtor for the amount of his proof. 10. Any creditor may, in the prescribed manner, object to any debt scheduled or to the manner in which payment is directed to be made by instalments. 11. Any person who, after the date of the order, becomes a creditor of the debtor, shall on proof of his debt before the official receiver, be scheduled as a creditor of the debtor for the amount of his proof, but shall not be entitled to any dividend under the order until those creditors who are scheduled as having been creditors before the date of the order have been paid to the extent provided by the order. 12. When the amount received under the order is sufficient to pay each creditor scheduled to the extent thereby provided, and the costs of the plaintiff and of the administration, the order shall be superseded, and the debtor shall be discharged from his debts to the scheduled creditors. 13. Nothing in this section contained shall protect the debtor from proceedings for the recovery of any debt contracted by him after the date of the order and where any judgment or sentence for the payment of money is obtained against the debtor during the subsistence of the order, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the official receiver or any creditor of the debtor, rescind the order, adjudge the debtor insolvent and make all such consequential orders as may appear just. 14. During the subsistence of the order, no transport passed, or mortgage executed by the debtor shall be of any force or validity unless the official receiver or the person having the conduct of the order consents in writing to such transport or mortgage being passed or executed; and no advertisement of any intended transport or mortgage by the debtor shall be made by the Registrar until such consent in writing has been deposited in his office.

Part VIII. Supplemental Provisions.

Application of the Ordinance.

Administration in insolvency of estate of person dying insolvent. 106. 1. Any creditor of a deceased debtor whose debt would have been sufficient to support an insolvency petition against such debtor, had he been alive, may present to the Court a petition, in the prescribed form, praying for an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor, according to the law of insolvency. 2. Upon the prescribed notice being given to the representative of the deceased debtor, the Court may, on proof of the petitioner's debt, unless the Court is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the estate will be sufficient for the payment of the debts owing by the deceased, make an order for the administration in insolvency of the deceased debtor's estate, or may, upon cause shown, dismiss such petition, with or without costs. 3. An order may be made under this section notwithstanding the executor has taken out an act of deliberation and the period of deliberation has not expired. 4. An executor or administrator may at any time apply for and obtain an order of administration under this section. 5. Upon an order being made for the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, the property of the debtor shall vest in the official receiver as assignee, and he shall forthwith proceed to realize and distribute the same in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance. 6. If, on the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, any surplus remains in the hands of the official receiver, after payment in full of all the debts due from the debtor, together with the costs of the administration and interest as provided by this Ordinance in case of insolvency, such surplus shall be paid over to the heir of the deceased debtor or dealt with in such other manner as may be prescribed. 9. Notice to the heir or executor of a deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under this section shall, in the event of an order for administration being made thereon, be deemed to be equivalent to notice of an act of insolvency, and after such notice no payment or transfer of property made by the heir or executor shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the official receiver. Save as aforesaid, nothing in this section shall invalidate any payment made or any act or thing done in good faith by the heir or executor before the date of the order for administration. 10. In any case of administration in insolvency under this section the creditors of the deceased debtor shall have the same powers as to appointment of an assignee and committee of inspection as they have in other cases where the estate of a debtor is being administered or dealt with in insolvency and the provisions of this Ordinance relating to assignees and committees of inspection shall apply to assignees and committees of inspection appointed under the power conferred by this subsection. 11. General rules for carrying into effect the provisions of this section may be made in the same manner and to the like effect and extent as in insolvency. 12. ## Schedules.

The First Schedule.

Meetings of creditors.

1. The first meeting of creditors shall be summoned for a day not later than twenty-one days after the date of the receiving order, unless the official receiver for any special reason deems it expedient that the meeting be summoned for a later day.

2. The official receiver shall summon the meeting by giving not less than six days' notice of the time and place thereof in the Gazette and in one newspaper. The notice shall also require all persons claiming to be creditors to prove their debts before such meeting.

3. The official receiver shall also, as soon as practicable, send to each creditor mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs a notice of the time and place of the first meeting of creditors, but the proceedings at the first meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any such notice not having been sent or received before the meeting.

4. The meeting shall be held at such place as, in the opinion of the official receiver, is most convenient for the majority of the creditors, and the statement of affairs (if any) shall be laid before the meeting.

5. The official receiver or the assignee may at any time summon a meeting of creditors, and shall do so whenever so directed by the Court or so requested in writing by one-fourth in value of the creditors.

6. Meetings subsequent to the first meeting shall be summoned by sending notice of the time and place thereof to each creditor at the address given in his proof, or, if he has not proved, at the address given in the debtor's statement of affairs, or at such other address as may be known to the person summoning the meeting.

7. The official receiver or some person nominated by him, shall be the chairman at the first meeting. The chairman at subsequent meetings shall be such person as the meeting may, by resolution, appoint.

8. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor at the first or any other meeting of creditors unless he has duly proved a debt provable in insolvency to be due to him from the debtor, and the proof has been duly lodged before the time appointed for the meeting.

9. A creditor shall not vote at any such meeting in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt, or of any debt the value of which is not ascertained.

10. For the purpose of voting, a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance, if any, due to him, after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt, he shall be deemed to have surrendered his security, unless the Court, on application, is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

11. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any debt on or secured by a current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him, unless he is willing to treat the liability to him thereon of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the debtor, and against whom a receiving order has not been made, as a security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof, and, for the purposes of voting but not for the purposes of dividend, to deduct it from his proof.

12. It shall be competent to the official receiver or the assignee, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid has been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally, on payment of the value so estimated, with an addition thereto of 20 per cent. Provided that, where a creditor has put a value on such security, he may, at any time before he has been required to give up such security as aforesaid, correct such valuation by a new proof, and deduct such new value from his debt, but in that case such addition of twenty per cent. shall not be made if the official receiver or assignee requires the security to be given up.

13. If a receiving order is made against one partner of a firm, any creditor to whom that partner is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of the creditors, and shall be entitled to vote thereat.

14. The chairman of a meeting shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected, he shall mark the proof as objected to, and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

15. A creditor may vote either in person or by proxy.

16. 1. Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form and shall be signed by the creditor in the presence of two witnesses and may be obtained from the official receiver or after the appointment of an assignee, from the assignee. If any insertion therein is not in the handwriting of the person giving the proxy, or of any manager or clerk or other person in his regular employment, or of any commissioner to administer oaths to affidavits, the name of the person making such insertion shall be stated. 2. Neither the name nor the description of the official receiver or of any other person, shall be printed or inserted in the body of any instrument of proxy before it is sent.

17. A creditor may give a general proxy to his manager or clerk, or any other person in his regular employment. In such case, the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor.

18. A creditor may give a special proxy to any person to vote at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof on all or any of the following matters: a) For or against any specific proposal for a composition or scheme of arrangement; b) For or against the appointment of any specified person as assignee at a specified rate of remuneration or as member of the committee of inspection or for or against the continuance in office of any specified person as assignee or member of a committee of inspection; c) On all questions relating to any matter, other than those above referred to, arising at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof.

19. A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the official receiver or assignee three hours before the meeting at which it is to be used.

20. Where it appears, to the satisfaction of the Court, that any solicitation has been used by or on behalf of an assignee or receiver in obtaining proxies or in procuring the assigneeship or receivership except by the direction of a meeting of creditors, the Court shall have power, if it thinks fit, to order that no remuneration shall be allowed to the person by whom or on whose behalf such solicitation may have been exercised, notwithstanding any resolution of the committee of inspection or of the creditors to the contrary.

21. A creditor may appoint the official receiver to act in the prescribed manner as his general or special proxy.

22. The chairman of a meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place.

23. A meeting shall not be competent to act for any purpose, except the election of a chairman, the proving of debts, and the adjournment of the meeting, unless there are present, or represented thereat, at least three creditors, or all the creditors, if their number does not exceed three.

24. If, within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week, at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

25. The chairman of every meeting shall cause minutes of the proceedings at the meeting to be drawn up and fairly entered in a book to be kept for that purpose and the minutes shall be signed by him or by the chairman of the next ensuing meeting.

26. No person acting either under a general or special proxy shall vote in favour of any resolution which would directly or indirectly place himself, his partner, or his employer in a position to receive any remuneration out of the estate of the debtor, otherwise than as a creditor rateably with the other creditors of the debtor: Provided that, where any person holds special proxies to vote for the appointment of himself as assignee, he may use the said proxies and vote accordingly.

1. Every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of a receiving order.
2. A debt may be proved by delivering or sending through the post in a prepaid letter to the official receiver, or, if an assignee has been appointed, to the assignee, and affidavit verifying the debt. Cp. In re Mc Gowan (7th October, 1901.)
3. The affidavit may be made by the creditor himself or by some person authorized by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorized, it shall state his authority and means of knowledge.
4. The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantiated. The official receiver or the assignee may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.
5. The affidavit shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor.
6. A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt, unless the Court otherwise specially orders.
7. Every creditor who has lodged a proof shall be entitled to see and examine the proofs of other creditors before the first meeting, and at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee.
8. A creditor proving his debt shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount not exceeding five per cent. on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash.

9. If the security held by a secured creditor has been realized he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the amount received by him on account of his debt out of the proceeds of such realization.
10. If a secured creditor surrenders his security to the official receiver or the assignee for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.
11. If a secured creditor does not surrender his security and his security has not been realized, he shall, before ranking for dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.
12. 1. Where a security is so valued the assignee may at any time redeem it, on payment to the creditor of the assessed value. 2. If the assignee is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, he may proceed to offer for sale the property comprised in any security so valued at such times and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the creditor and the assignee or as, in default of such agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale is by public auction or tender, the creditor, or assignee on behalf of the estate, may bid or tender and purchase: Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the assignee to consent to the security being realized, or to realize the security, and if the assignee does not within three months after receiving the notice, give his consent or take the necessary steps, the creditor may apply to the Court for directions to be issued to the assignee.
13. Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing, to the satisfaction of the assignee, or the Court, that the valuation and proof were made bona fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment shall be made at the cost of the creditor and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the assignee allows the amendment without application to the Court.
14. Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the foregoing rule, the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he may have received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend which he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.
15. If after a creditor has valued his security, it is subsequently realized the amount received by him in respect thereof shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.
16. If a secured creditor does not comply with the foregoing rules, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.
17. A creditor shall in no case receive more than one hundred cents in the dollar, and interest as provided by this Ordinance.

Proof in respect of distinct contracts.

18. If a debtor was, at the date of the receiving order, liable in respect of distinct contracts as a member of two or more distinct firms, or as a sole contractor and also as a member of a firm, the circumstance that the firms are in whole or in part composed of the same individuals, or that the sole contractor is also one of the joint contractors, shall not prevent proof in respect of the contracts against the properties respectively liable on the contracts.

Periodical payments.

19. When any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the receiving order is made at any time other than one of those periods, the person entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the order, as if the rent or payment grew due from day to day.

Interest.

20. On any debt or sum certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue at the date of the receiving order and provable in the insolvency, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding four per cent. per annum to date of the order from the time when the debt or sum was payable, if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, and, if payable otherwise, then from the time when the demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment.

21. Where a debt has been proved upon a debtor's estate under this Ordinance, and such debt includes interest, or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, such interest or consideration shall for the purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per cent. per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all the debts proved in the estate have been paid in full.

Debt payable at a future time.

22. # British West Indies.<sup>1)</sup>

In order to clearly understand the mercantile and maritime laws of the British possessions in the West Indies it is necessary to refer briefly to the historic origin of the laws and legislative powers existing in those island Colonies.

The fundamental distinction to be regarded is—whether the colony under consideration was acquired by the discovery of English navigators, and, on such discovery, was found to be territory not in the occupation of any Christian prince or people, and thereupon was taken possession of for the English Sovereign who by Royal Charter or other act of state erected the discovered territory into a settlement or colony for English subjects. This mode of acquisition has received the legal definition of acquisition by settlement, to distinguish it from acquisition by conquest or cession from another sovereign power. In the former case the settlements became at once subject to the English common law and the settlers enjoyed all the constitutional rights and liberties of the people of England; whilst in the case of conquest or cession, the continuance of the then existing laws and legislative power became subject to the pleasure of the Crown, limited, however, as to its exercise by the special terms (if any) of the articles of capitulation or surrender or of the treaty of cession. Such terms generally provided for the continuance of the old laws: hence in colonies thus acquired there may be found Spanish, French, or Dutch laws. But in course of time these old laws became gradually modified by the colonial legislation and a body of law more English than foreign has resulted. Nevertheless, the primary distinction remains that in a settled colony the English common law prevailed, automatically as it were, from the first; whereas in a conquered colony only such portions of English common law prevail as have been adopted by its own legislative act or promulgated by the ordinance or Order in Council of the Crown.

The preceding observations have application to the following West Indian colonial possessions: The Bahamas, Barbados, Trinidad and Tobago, and Jamaica; the Leeward Islands, viz., Antigua, St. Christopher and Nevis, Dominica, Montserrat, and the Virgin Islands, and the Windward Islands, viz., Grenada, St. Vincent, and St. Lucia.

I. Trinidad and Tobago.

Introduction.

History and government.

The island of Trinidad in 1797 became a British possession by conquest from Spain; it is necessary therefore, in order to ascertain what national law prevails, to refer to the terms of the surrender or capitulation, and to the treaty of peace at the close of the war. The Articles of Capitulation for the surrender of the island of Trinidad, between His Excellency Sir Ralph Abercromby, Commander in Chief of His Britannic Majesty's Land Forces; His Excellency Henry Harvey, Esq., Rear-Admiral of the Red and Commander in Chief of His Britannic Majesty's Ships and Vessels of War; and His Excellency Don Joseph Maria Chacon, Knight of the Order of Calatrava, Brigadier of the Royal Navy, Governor and Commander in Chief of the island of Trinidad and its Dependencies, etc. etc., were signed at Port d'Espagne in the island of Trinidad on the 18th day of February, 1797, by Ralph Abercromby, Henry Harvey, and Joseph Maria Chacon.

<sup>1)</sup> In the sections on the law of the British West Indies the Introductions are contributed by Mr. Shepherd and the Statutes by Mr. Huberich.

The 8th of these Articles provided that all the private property of the inhabitants, as well Spanish as such as had been naturalised, was preserved to them: and the 9th Article made all contracts or purchases between individuals which had been entered into according to the laws of Spain binding and valid: and the 10th Article enabled the Spanish officers of administration who were possessed of landed property in Trinidad to remain, on taking the oaths of allegiance to His Britannic Majesty, and if they pleased, to sell their property and retire elsewhere. The 13th Article stipulated that the free coloured people, acknowledged as such by the laws of Spain, were to be protected in their liberty, person, and property like other inhabitants, they taking the oath of allegiance and demeaning themselves as peaceable subjects of His Britannic Majesty; and the 15th, that all the inhabitants of Trinidad were within thirty days from the date of the Articles of Capitulation to take the oath of allegiance to His Britannic Majesty and demean themselves quietly and faithfully to his government upon pain in case of non-compliance of being sent away from the Island<sup>1</sup>).

Upon the conclusion of the war a treaty of peace, between His Britannic Majesty on the one part, and the French Republic, the King of Spain and the Batavian Republic on the other part, was signed at Amiens, on the 27th March, 1802. It was stipulated by the 4th Article that His Catholic Majesty ceded and guaranteed in full right and sovereignty to His Britannic Majesty the island of Trinidad, and by the 14th Article that all legal claims in dispute between private individuals, reviving by the law of nations at the period of peace, were to be adjudicated upon by competent tribunals.

It appears from these Articles of Capitulation and the subsequent Treaty of Peace that Trinidad was surrendered and ceded without any general reservation to the inhabitants of their old Spanish laws: the British sovereign was therefore at liberty to impose what laws he pleased. The Spanish inhabitants had however become British subjects, and until fresh laws were imposed, the old Spanish colonial laws, as then operative, would remain. In June, 1801, the King's commission to General Picton for the administration of the government of the Island provided that it should, as nearly as circumstances would permit, be exercised by him according to the terms of the capitulation in conformity to the ancient laws and institutions that subsisted within the Island before its surrender, subject to such directions as the King should from time to time give under royal signet or sign manual, or by royal order in Privy Council, or to such variation as sudden emergencies might render absolutely necessary. The Courts of Judicature, as they existed before the surrender, were until further royal order to continue to exercise all their judicial powers in criminal and civil cases, and to proceed therein according to the laws by which the Island was then governed.

Thus, the Spanish colonial law would remain the law of Trinidad until varied by Orders in Council or the Ordinances of any legislative council which the King might erect and constitute in the Island, or by Acts of the Imperial Parliament.

Law in force.

The mercantile and maritime law of Trinidad and Tobago is to be found in the Revised edition of The Laws of Trinidad and Tobago, published by the Government of the Colony in 1905, supplemented by the yearly additions made since that year by the Legislative Council. Tobago was acquired by conquest from France and ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris, 1814. By Order in Council of the 17th November, 1888, pursuant to the Act of the Imperial Parliament (50 & 51 Vic. c. 44) Trinidad and Tobago were constituted one colony as from 1st January, 1889, and the Supreme Court of Trinidad was from that date to be the Supreme Court of Trinidad and Tobago. By Order in Council of the 20th October, 1898, it was ordained that the laws in force on 1st January, 1899, in Trinidad should be in force in Tobago, and the laws theretofore in force in Tobago so far as they differed from the law in force in Trinidad should cease to be in force.

With a saving of all existing rights the laws of the two islands have since the 1st January, 1899, been consolidated.

In Trinidad and Tobago the problem of codification presented more than the usual difficulties to which the preliminary work of revision and consolidation was also subject; this arose from the fact that the sources of law were Spanish as well as English: old laws of Spain and English Orders in Council, Letters Patent, Imperial Acts of Parliament, and the Colonial Ordinances themselves.

But Great Britain, in the early days of her acquisition of Trinidad, permitted the inhabitants to retain many of their old Spanish laws; she could not well do otherwise; they had come under allegiance to the British Crown, and as British subjects their legal convenience demanded equitable consideration. But a conflict of laws soon manifested itself, and the state trial of General Picton—the first Governor—for an administrative act done pursuant to Spanish law, is an historic incident associated with the difficulties arising from the retention of that law.

The Gradual Substitution of English Law. In consequence of many complaints as to the operation of the various laws, a Commission of Legal Inquiry was appointed in 1823 by Royal Warrant and resulted in an exhaustive Report, with various recommendations, amongst which were the introduction of the English mode of trial in criminal cases, the gradual substitution of such parts of English law as were better adapted to the then state of society in the Colony than the Spanish law, and the constitution of a Council so as to secure to all classes of the inhabitants control over the expenditure.

By Royal Instructions, 25th April, 1831, and this Commission, the Governor was empowered to appoint a Council of Government, and full power was vested in him to make laws with the advice and consent of the Council for the order, peace and good government of the Island. The Council came into existence in 1832, as the Legislative Council; the legislative power of the Governor in Council was not exclusive, but concurrent with and in some respects subordinate to the direct legislative power of the Crown by Orders in Council and Letters Patent and the legislative power of the Imperial Parliament. The body of law which resulted from these concurrent legislative sources constituted the Statutory Law of Trinidad, and it is this Law, commencing in 1832 with Orders in Council then existing, and ending 31st December, 1904, which has been the subject-matter of the recent statutory revision.

The Revision of the Statute Law. The Statute Law Revision Ordinance, 1899 (Trinidad and Tobago), empowered the Governor to appoint Commissioners, not exceeding three in number, for the purpose of preparing a revised edition of the Statute Laws and of all Orders in Council in force in the Colony, with various powers, which are detailed in the Ordinance. This Revision Ordinance further declared that the revised edition of the Laws and Orders in Council, upon the same being approved by the Governor in Council, should become the substantive statute book of the Colony. The Commissioners, appointed by the Governor in 1899, to carry out this important and difficult work, were the Hon. Nathaniel Nathan, Q. C., Attorney-General of the Colony, His Honour Thomas Baynes, Puisne Judge of the Colony, and the Hon. Vincent Browne, Q. C., Solicitor-General of the Colony. By resolution in due form pursuant to the Revision Ordinance, the Legislative Council approved the revised edition on 1st May, 1905.

The Revised Edition. The Laws of Trinidad and Tobago is the title of the revised edition of the Statutes which came into force on 1st May, 1905. It consists of five volumes: the Ordinances are numbered consecutively throughout the whole edition. No dates or other particulars of the superseded Ordinances are given, but two other supplementary volumes are published, one entitled: A Chronological Table of Ordinances from 1832 to 1904, showing those which have been repealed and the place in the Revised Edition of those in force. This is followed in the same volume by 'An Index to the Revised Edition of the Laws of Trinidad and Tobago.' The other supplementary volume is entitled: Orders in Council, By-Laws, Rules, and Regulations, etc., in Force on 31st December, 1905, Trinidad. Printed at the Government Printing Office, Port of Spain, 1905. This volume is divided into three parts: Part I: Orders in Council, printed in full, which include all Orders in Council relating to Privy Council Appeals. Part II: Chronological Table of Orders in Council; being a list, in order of date, of Orders in Council published in the Royal Gazette from 1874 to 1905. Part III: Alphabetical list of By-laws, etc.

Agency. The general law of agency in the absence of any express Ordinances must be deemed to follow Spanish as well as English common law.

Powers of attorney are controlled in their effect by the Conveyancing and Law of Property Ordinance (No. 72 R. E.).

Partnership. The Law of Partnership Ordinance (No. 86 R. E.) provides that lenders of money to a trader at interest varying in rate with the profits of the business, agents receiving as commission for services a share in the profits, widows and children of a deceased partner receiving a share of profits by way of annuity, and vendors of the goodwill of a business in consideration of a share of the profits are not to be deemed partners: but in the event of the bankruptcy of the trader such lenders and vendors are postponed to the other creditors of the bankrupt trader.

Subject to the provisions of this ordinance the general law applicable to partnership would seem to follow Spanish rather than English common law, though the influence of English law has a tendency to prevail with the tribunals.

Company Law. The British and Foreign Companies Ordinance (No. 23, 1907) enables English companies registered under Imperial Acts or under a law of the United States of America to obtain registration in the Colony, of their incorporation and of their memorandum and articles of association; the Ordinance regulates the conditions under which deeds of the company executed elsewhere than in the Colony, and also those executed in the Colony under power of attorney, are to have effect in the Colony.

The Companies Ordinance (No. 69 R. E.) regulates the constitution, incorporation, and registration of companies (other than those engaged in the business of banking) with limited liability.

The Companies (Branch Register) Ordinance (No. 71 R. E.) enables companies registered under the Companies Ordinance (No. 69 R. E.) whose objects comprise transaction of business in British India or any British colony and who have power to open branch registers in any colony, to open in Trinidad and Tobago a branch register of members there resident in accordance with the regulations of this Ordinance.

Sale of Goods. The Sale of Goods Ordinance (No. 64 R. E.) extends to the Colony the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893, except the section as to sale in market overt and such other sections as are inapplicable to the Colony.

Factors. The Imperial Factors Act, 1889, has not been extended to the Colony.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Ordinance (No. 62 R. E.) extends to the Colony the Imperial Bills of Exchange Act of 1882; in the interpretation section a dollar is defined as four shillings and two pence.

Bills of Lading. The Bills of Lading Ordinance (No. 85 R. E.) transfers and vests in the consignees and endorsees of bills of lading all rights of suit and sub-jects them to the same liabilities in respect of the goods as if the contract in the bill of lading had been made with such consignees or endorsees themselves. Bills of lading in the hands of a consignee or endorsee for valuable consideration are made conclusive evidence against the master or other person signing the same of the shipment of the goods named therein although in fact not shipped, subject to provisions exonerating the master in cases of fraud by the shipper.

Bankruptcy. The Bankruptcy Ordinance (No. 8, 1907) is based on the Imperial Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

General Mercantile Law. The Mercantile Law Ordinance (No. 81 R. E.) makes simple contracts, without a valuable consideration sufficient by the law of England to support the contract against the party charged therewith, void; but this provision is not to affect specialty contracts, i. e., deeds duly executed. The Ordinance contains provisions as to parol promises and agreements, acknowledgments of debts, endorsements of payments on notes, bills, or other writings, debts by simple contract alleged by way of set-off on the part of a defendant, confirmation of contracts by minors, representations as to character, actions against a surety, and gives powers to the Court or Judge to allow interest or give damages.

Courts and procedure.

The judicial organization comprises the Supreme Court and certain Petty Civil Courts. The Supreme Court consists of two or three Judges and administers law and equity concurrently. The Supreme Court has the jurisdiction of the High Court of Justice in England, and jurisdiction in divorce and matrimonial causes<sup>1</sup>). The Petty Civil Courts have jurisdiction up to £25. An appeal lies from the Petty Civil Courts to the Supreme Court where the judgment involves more than £10<sup>1</sup>). An appeal lies from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council where the amount involved is £500 or upwards. A pro forma judgment is sufficient. The appeal must be asked for within twenty-one days and the appellant must furnish security within three months in an amount not exceeding £500.<sup>2</sup>)

Power to compromise. 139. The liquidators may, with the sanction of the Court where the company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company where the company is being wound-up altogether voluntarily, compromise all calls and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, whether present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and any contributory or alleged contributory, or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets of the company, or the winding-up of the company, upon the receipt of such sums payable at such times, and generally upon such terms as may be agreed upon, with power for the liquidators to take any security for the discharge of such debts or liabilities, and to give complete discharges in respect of all or any such calls, debts, or liabilities.

Imp. § 214.

Liquidators may accept shares, etc., as consideration for sale of property of company. 140. Where any company is proposed to be or is in the course of being wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, the liquidators of the first mentioned company may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company by whom they were appointed, conferring either a general authority on the liquidators, or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares, policies or other like interests, in such other company, for the purpose of distribution amongst the members of the company being wound-up, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the company being wound up may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of, or receive any other benefit from the purchasing company; and any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators, in pursuance of this section, shall be binding on the members of the company being wound up; subject to this proviso, that if any member of the company being wound-up who has not voted in favour of the special resolution passed by the company of which he is a member, at either of the meetings held for passing the same, expresses his dissent from any such special resolution in writing, addressed to the liquidators, or one of them, and left at the registered office of the company not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things, as the liquidators may prefer, that is to say, either to abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or to purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved and to be raised by the liquidators, in such manner as may be determined by special resolution. No special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed antecedently to, or concurrently with any resolution for winding-up the company or for appointing liquidators; but if an order be made within a year for winding up the company by, or subject to the supervision of the Court, such resolution shall not be of any validity, unless it is sanctioned by the Court.

Imp. § 192.

Determining price. 141. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement, but if the parties dispute about the same, such dispute shall be settled by arbitration.

Imp. § 192 (3).

Certain attachments, sequestrations and executions to be void. 142. Where any company is being wound-up by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, any attachment, sequestration, distress, or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding-up shall be void to all intents.

Imp. § 211.

Fraudulent preference. 143. Any such conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution, or other act relating to property as would, if made or done by or against any individual trader, be deemed in the event of his bankruptcy to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such trader, shall, if made or done by or against any company, be deemed, in the event of such company being wound up under this Ordinance, to have been made or done by way of undue or fraudulent preference of the creditors of such company, and shall be invalid accordingly; and any conveyance or assignment made by any company formed under this Ordinance of all estate and effects to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void to all intents.

Imp. § 210.

Court may assess damages against delinquent directors and officers. 144. Where in the course of the winding-up of any company under this Ordinance, it appears that any past or present director, manager, or official or other liquidator, or any officer of such company, has misapplied or retained in his own hands, or become liable or accountable for any moneys of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company, the Court may, on the application of any liquidator, or of any creditor or contributory of the company, notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender is criminally responsible, examine into the conduct of such director, manager, or other officer, and compel him to repay any moneys so misapplied or retained, or for which he has become liable or accountable, together with interest after such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum of money to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of such misapplication, retainer, misfeasance, or breach of trust, as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 215.

Falsification of books. 145. If any director, officer, or contributory of any company wound up under this Ordinance, destroys, mutilates, alters, or falsifies any books, papers, writings, or securities, or makes, or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register, book of account, or other document belonging to the company, with intent to defraud or deceive any person, every person so offending shall be deemed to be guilty of a misdemeanour, and upon being convicted, shall be liable to imprisonment for any term not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

Imp. § 216.

Prosecution of delinquent director, etc.; winding-up by Court. 146. Where any order is made for winding up a company by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, if it appear, in the course of such winding-up, that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of such company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in such winding-up, or of its own motion, direct the official liquidators or the liquidator (as the case may be) to institute and conduct a prosecution or prosecutions for such offence, and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

Imp. § 217 (1).

Prosecution of delinquent directors, etc., in case of voluntary winding-up. 147. Where a company is being wound-up altogether voluntarily, if it appear to the liquidators conducting such winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of such company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, it shall be lawful for the liquidators, with the previous sanction of the Court, to prosecute such offender, and all expenses properly incurred by them in such prosecution shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities.

Imp. § 217 (2).

Perjury. 148. If any person, upon any examination upon oath or affirmation authorized under this Ordinance, or in any affidavit, deposition, or solemn affirmation in or about the winding-up of any company under this Ordinance, or otherwise in or about any matter arising under this Ordinance, wilfully and corruptly gives false evidence, he shall upon conviction be liable to the penalties of wilful perjury.

Schedule I.

Table A. Regulations for Management.

Shares.

1. If several persons are registered as joint holders of any share, any one of such persons may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable in respect of such share.
2. Every member shall, on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company in general meeting may prescribe, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company, specifying the share or shares held by him, and the amount paid up thereon.
3. If such certificate is worn out or lost, it may be renewed on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company in general meeting may prescribe.

Calls on shares.

4. The directors may, from time to time, make such calls upon the members in respect of all moneys unpaid on their shares as they think fit, provided that twenty-one days' notice, at least is given of each call, and each member shall be liable to pay the amount of calls so made to the persons and at the times and places appointed by the directors.

5. A call shall be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution of the directors authorizing such call was passed.

6. If the call payable in respect of any share is not paid before or on the day appointed for payment thereof, the holder for the time being of such share shall be liable to pay interest for the same at the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment.

7. The directors may, if they think fit, receive from any member, willing to advance the same, all or any part of the moneys due upon the shares held by him beyond the sums actually called for; and upon the moneys so paid in advance, or so much thereof as from time to time exceeds the amount of the calls then made upon the shares in respect of which such advance has been made, the company may pay interest at such rate as the member paying such sum in advance and the directors agree upon.

Transfers of shares.

8. The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain a holder of such share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register book in respect thereof.

9. Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form:

I, A.B., of                      in consideration of the sum of                      pounds paid to me by C.D., of                      , do hereby transfer to the said C.D. the share (or shares) numbered                      standing in my name in the books of the                      company, limited, to hold unto the said C.D., his executors, administrators, and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution hereof, and I, the said C.D., do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the same conditions.

As witness our hands the                      day of                      (And the signature of the transferor or transferee to such transfer shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses.)

10. The company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to them.

11. The transfer book shall be closed during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year.

Transmission of shares.

12. The executors or administrators of a deceased member shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to his share.

13. Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of any member, or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may be registered as a member upon such evidence being produced as may from time to time be required by the company.

14. Any person who has become entitled to a share in consequence of the death or bankruptcy of any member or in consequence of the marriage of any female member, may, instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a transferee of such share.

15. The person so becoming entitled shall testify such election by executing to his nominee an instrument of transfer of such share.

16. The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the company, accompanied with such evidence as the directors may require to prove the title of the transferor, and thereupon the company shall register the transferee as a member.

17. If any member fails to pay any call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may at any time thereafter, during such time as the call remains unpaid, serve a notice on him, requiring him to pay such call together with interest and any expenses that may have accrued by reason of such non-payment.

18. The notice shall name a further day, on or before which such call and all interest and expenses that have accrued by reason of such non-payment, are to be paid. It shall also name the place where payment is to be made, the place so named being either the registered office of the company or some other place at which calls of the company are usually made payable. The notice shall also state that in the event of non-payment at or before the time and at the place appointed, the shares in respect of which such call was made will be liable to be forfeited.

19. If the requisitions of any such notice as aforesaid are not complied with, any share in respect of which such notice has been given may, at any time thereafter, before payment of all calls, interest, and expenses due in respect thereof has been made, be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect.

20. Any share so forfeited shall be deemed to be the property of the company, and may be disposed of in such manner as the company in general meeting thinks fit.

21. Any member whose shares have been forfeited, shall, notwithstanding, be liable to pay to the company all calls owing upon such shares at the time of the forfeiture.

22. A declaration in writing made before any Judge of the Supreme Court or before any Stipendiary Justice, that the call in respect of a share was made and notice thereof given, and that default in payment of the call was made, and that the forfeiture of the share was made by a resolution of the directors to that effect, shall be sufficient evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons entitled to such share, and such declaration and the receipt of the company for the price of such share shall constitute a good title to such share, and a certificate of proprietorship shall be delivered to a purchaser, and thereupon he shall be deemed the holder of such share, discharged from all calls due prior to such purchase, and he shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money, nor shall his title to such share be affected by any irregularity in the proceedings in reference to such sale.

23. The directors may, with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock.

24. When any shares have been converted into stock, the several holders of such stock may thenceforth transfer their respective interests therein, or any part of such interests in the same manner and subject to the same regulations as, and subject to which, any shares in the capital of the company may be transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

25. The several holders of stock shall be entitled to participate in the dividends and profits of the company, according to the amount of their respective interests in such stock, and such interests shall in proportion to the amount thereof confer on the holders thereof respectively the same privileges and advantages for the purpose of voting at meetings of the company and for other purposes as would have been conferred by shares of equal amount in the capital of the company; but so that none of such privileges or advantages, except the participation in the dividends and profits of the company, shall be conferred by any such aliquot part of consolidated stock as would not, if existing in shares, have conferred such privileges or advantages.

26. The directors may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company previously given in general meeting, increase its capital by the issue of new shares, such aggregate increase to be of such amount, and to be divided into shares of such respective amounts, as the company in general meeting directs, or, if no direction is given, as the directors think expedient.

27. Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the meeting that sanctions the increase of capital, all new shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by them, and such offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of such time on the receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given, that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company.

28. Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital, and shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, and the forfeiture of shares on non-payment of calls, or otherwise, as if it had been part of the original capital.

General meetings.

29. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being more than six months after the registration of the company, and at such place as the directors may determine.

30. Subsequent general meetings shall be held at such time and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, and if no other time or place is prescribed, a general meeting shall be held on the first Monday in February in every year at such place as may be determined by the directors.

31. The above mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings; all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

32. The directors may, whenever they think fit, and they shall, upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members of the company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

33. Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called, and shall be left at the registered office of the company.

34. Upon the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene an extraordinary general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition, the requisitionist or any other members amounting to the required number, may themselves convene an extraordinary general meeting.

Proceedings at general meetings.

35. Seven days' notice at least, specifying the place, the day, and the hour of meeting, and in case of special business, the general nature of such business, shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned, or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, but the non-receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

36. All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting, with the exception of sanctioning a dividend and the consideration of the accounts, balance sheets, and the ordinary report of the directors.

37. No business shall be transacted at any general meeting, except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business; and such quorum shall be ascertained as follows, that is to say: If any persons who have taken shares in the company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members up to fifty, and one for every ten additional members after every fifty, with this limitation that no quorum shall in any case exceed twenty.

38. If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting, a quorum is not present, the meeting, if convened upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved. In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

39. The chairman (if any) of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

40. If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

41. The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

42. At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least five members, a declaration by the chairman, that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the company, shall be sufficient evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against such resolution.

43. If a poll is demanded by five or more members, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the company in general meeting. In the case of any equality of votes at any general meeting, the chairman shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

Votes of members.

44. Every member shall have one vote for every share up to ten. He shall have an additional vote for every five shares beyond the first ten shares up to one hundred, and an additional vote for every ten shares beyond the first hundred shares.

45. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his committee.

46. If two or more persons are jointly entitled to a share or shares, the member whose name stands first in the register of members as one of the holders of such share or shares, and no other, shall be entitled to vote in respect of the same.

47. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls due from him have been paid, and no member shall be entitled to vote in respect of any share that he has acquired by transfer at any meeting held after the expiration of three months from the registration of the company, unless he has been possessed of the share in respect of which he claims to vote for at least three months previously to the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote.

48. Votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

49. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing, under the hand of the appointer, or if such appointer is a corporation, under their common seal, and shall be attested by one or more witness or witnesses. No person shall be appointed a proxy who is not a member of the company.

50. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the company, not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in such instrument proposes to vote, but no instrument appointing a proxy shall be valid after the expiration of twelve months from the date of its execution.

51. Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form:

I, _____ of _____ in the _____ of _____ being a member of the _____ company limited, and entitled to _____ vote or votes, hereby appoint _____ of _____ as my proxy, to vote for me and on my behalf at the ordinary (or extraordinary as the case may be) general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of _____ and at any adjournment thereof (or, at any meeting of the company that may be held in the year _____) As witness my hand this _____ day of _____ Signed by the said _____ in the presence of _____

Directors.

52. The number of the directors, and the names of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association.

53. Until directors are appointed, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall be deemed to be directors.

54. The future remuneration of the directors, and their remuneration for services performed previously to the first general meeting, shall be determined by the company in general meeting.

Powers of directors.

55. The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company, as are not by the foregoing Ordinance or by these articles required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulations of these articles, to the provisions of the foregoing Ordinance, and to such regulations, being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if such regulation had not been made.

56. The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body.

57. The office of director shall be vacated if he holds any other office or place of profit under the company, or if he becomes bankrupt or if he is concerned in or participates in the profits of any contract with the company. But the above rules shall be subject to the following exceptions: that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with, or done any work for the company of which he is a director; nevertheless he shall not vote in respect of such contract or work, and if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted.

Rotation of directors.

58. At the first ordinary meeting after the registration of the company the whole of the directors shall retire from office; and at the first ordinary meeting in every subsequent year one-third of the directors for the time being, or if their number is not a multiple of three then the number nearest to one-third, shall retire from office.

59. The one-third or other nearest number to retire during the first and second years ensuing the first ordinary meeting of the company shall, unless the directors agree among themselves, be determined by ballot. In every subsequent year the one-third or other nearest number who have been longest in office shall retire.

60. A retiring director shall be re-eligible.

61. The company at the general meeting at which any directors retire in manner aforesaid shall fill up the vacated offices by electing a like number of persons.

62. If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place, the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, at the same time and place, and if at such adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors, or such of them as have not had their places filled up, shall continue in office until the ordinary meeting in the next year, and so on from time to time until their places are filled up.

63. The company may, from time to time in general meeting, increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation such increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

64. Any casual vacancy occurring in the board of directors may be filled up by the directors; but any person so chosen shall retain his office so long only as the vacating director would have retained the same if no vacancy had occurred.

65. The company, in general meeting may, by a special resolution, remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may, by an ordinary resolution, appoint another person in his stead; the person so appointed shall hold office during such time only as the director in whose place he is appointed would have held the same if he had not been removed.

66. The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, and otherwise regulate their meetings as they think fit, and determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, at any time, summon a meeting of the directors.

67. The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings, and determine the period for which he is to hold office, but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the directors present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

68. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

69. A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings; if no such chairman is elected, or if he is not present at the time appointed for holding the same, the members present shall choose one of their number to be chairman of such meeting.

70. A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present; and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

71. All acts done by any meeting of the directors, or of a committee of directors or by any person acting as a director shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

Dividends.

72. The directors may, with the sanction of the company in general meeting, declare a dividend to be paid to the members in proportion to their shares.

73. No dividend shall be payable except out of the profits arising from the business of the company.

74. The directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the company, such sum as they think proper as a reserve fund to meet contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for repairing or maintaining the works connected with the business of the company or any part thereof; and the directors may invest the sum so set apart as a reserve fund upon such securities as they may select.

75. The directors may deduct from the dividends payable to any member all such sums of money as may be due from him to the company on account of calls or otherwise.

76. Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given to each member in manner hereinafter mentioned; and all dividends unclaimed for three years after having been declared may be forfeited by the directors for the benefit of the company.

77. No dividend shall bear interest as against the company.

Accounts.

78. The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept: Of the stock-in-trade of the company; Of the sums of money received and expended by the company, and the matters in respect of which such receipt and expenditure take place; and Of the credits and liabilities of the company. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, and, subject to any reasonable restrictions as to the time and manner of inspecting the same that may be imposed by the company in general meeting, shall be open to the inspection of the members during the hours of business.

79. Once at the least in every year, the directors shall lay before the company in general meeting a statement of the income and expenditure for the past year, made up to a date not more than three months before such meeting.

80. The statement so made shall show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expense of the establishment, salaries, and other like matters; every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting; and in cases where any item of expenditure which may, in fairness, be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year.

81. A balance-sheet shall be made out in every year, and laid before the company in general meeting, and such balance-sheet shall contain a summary of the property and liabilities of the company arranged under the heads appearing in the form annexed to this table, or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

82. A printed copy of such balance-sheet shall, seven days previously to such meeting, be served on every member in the manner in which notices are hereinafter directed to be served.

Audit.

83. Once at least in every year the accounts of the company shall be examined, and the correctness of the balance-sheet ascertained, by one or more auditor or auditors.

84. The first auditors shall be appointed by the directors; subsequent auditors shall be appointed by the company in general meeting.

85. If one auditor only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained relating to auditors shall apply to him.

86. The auditors may be members of the company, but no person shall be eligible as an auditor who is interested otherwise than as a member in any transaction of the company; and no director or other officer of the company shall be eligible during his continuance in office.

87. The election of auditors shall be made by the company at their ordinary meeting in each year.

88. The remuneration of the first auditors shall be fixed by the directors; that of subsequent auditors shall be fixed by the company in general meeting.

89. Any auditor shall be re-eligible on his quitting office.

90. If any casual vacancy occurs in the office of any auditor appointed by the company, the directors shall forthwith call an extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of supplying the same.

91. If no election of auditors is made in manner aforesaid, the Governor may, on the application of not less than five members of the company, appoint an auditor for the current year and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the company for his services.

Receiving order.

Receiving order. 6. Subject to the conditions hereinafter specified, if a debtor commit an act of bankruptcy, the Court may, on a bankruptcy petition being presented either by a creditor or by the debtor, make an order, in this Ordinance called a receiving order, for the protection of the estate.

Imp. § 5.

Conditions on which creditor may petition. Petition by secured creditor. Non-traders. 7. 1. A creditor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a debtor unless: a) The debt owing by the debtor to the petitioning creditor, or if two or more creditors join in the petition, the aggregate amount of the debts owing to the several petitioning creditors, amounts to fifty pounds, and b) The debt is a liquidated sum, payable either immediately or at some certain future time, and c) The act of bankruptcy on which the petition is grounded has occurred within three months before the presentation of the petition, and d) The debtor is domiciled in the Colony, or within a year before the date of the presentation of the petition, has ordinarily resided or had a dwelling-house or place of business in the Colony. 2. If the petitioning creditor is a secured creditor, he must in his petition, either state that he is willing to give up his security for the benefit of the creditors in the event of the debtor being adjudged bankrupt, or give an estimate of the value of his security. In the latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him, after deducting the value so estimated, in the same manner as if he were an unsecured creditor. 3. A creditor shall not be entitled to present a bankruptcy petition against a person who is not a trader within the meaning of the Bankruptcy Ordinance, No. 51, in respect of a debt contracted before the commencement of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 6.

Proceedings and order on creditor's petition. 8. 1. A creditor's petition shall be verified by affidavit of the creditor or of some person on his behalf having knowledge of the facts, and served in the prescribed manner. 2. At the hearing the Court shall require proof of the debt of the petitioning creditor, of the service of the petition, and of the act of bankruptcy, or if more than one act of bankruptcy is alleged in the petition, of some one of the alleged acts of bankruptcy, and if satisfied with the proof, may make a receiving order in pursuance of the petition. 3. If the Court is not satisfied with the proof of the petitioning creditor's debts, or of the act of bankruptcy, or of the service of the petition, or is satisfied by the debtor that he is able to pay his debts, or that for other sufficient cause no order ought to be made, the Court may dismiss the petition. 4. Where the act of bankruptcy relied on is non-compliance with a bankruptcy notice to pay, secure, or compound for a debt due in pursuance of any judgment or order, the Court may, if it thinks fit, stay or dismiss the petition on the ground that an appeal is pending from the judgment or order. 5. Where the debtor appears on the petition and denies that he is indebted to the petitioner or that he is indebted to such an amount as would justify the petitioner in presenting a petition against him, the Court, on such security (if any) being given as the Court may require for payment to the petitioner of any debt which may be established against him in due course of law and of the costs of establishing the debt, may, instead of dismissing the petition, stay all proceedings on the petition for such time as may be required for trial of the question relating to the debt. 6. Where proceedings are stayed, the Court may, if by reason of the delay caused by the stay of proceedings or for any other cause, it thinks just, make a receiving order on the petition of some other creditor, and thereupon shall dismiss, on such terms as it thinks just, the petition in which proceedings have been stayed as aforesaid. 7. A creditor's petition shall not after presentment be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Imp. § 7.

Debtor's petition and order thereon. 9. 1. A debtor's petition shall allege that the debtor is unable to pay his debts, and the presentation thereof shall be deemed an act of bankruptcy without the previous filing by the debtor of any declaration of inability to pay his debts, and the Court shall thereupon make a receiving order. 2. A debtor's petition shall not after presentment be withdrawn without the leave of the Court.

Imp. § 8.

Effect of receiving order. 10. [As amended by Ord. No. 31 of 1909, § 2.] 1. On the making of a receiving order the receiver hereinafter mentioned shall be thereby constituted receiver of the property of the debtor, and thereafter except as directed by this Ordinance, no creditor to whom the debtor is indebted in respect of any debt provable in bankruptcy, shall have any remedy against the property or person of the debtor in respect of the debt, or shall commence any action or other legal proceedings unless with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose. 2. But this section shall not affect the power of any secured creditor to realize or otherwise deal with his security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with it if this section had not been passed. 3. a) The Governor may from time to time appoint such person as he shall think fit to be official receiver of debtors' estates, in this Ordinance referred to as the receiver, and may remove any person so appointed from such office. Such receiver shall be an officer of the Supreme Court in its jurisdiction in bankruptcy, and judicial notice shall be taken of any appointment by the Governor of a receiver under this section; b) The Governor may appoint a fit and proper person to discharge the duties of the receiver in case of his death, removal, or absence; c) Such acting receiver shall during his tenure of office, have all the status, rights, and powers, and be subject to all the liabilities of the receiver, and all the estates, rights, and powers vested in the receiver shall, during his tenure of office, and without any conveyance or transfer, vest in such acting receiver.

Imp. § 9.

Discretionary powers as to appointment of interim receiver and stay of proceedings.

11. 1. The Court may, if it is shown to be necessary for the protection of the estate, at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition and before a receiving order is made, appoint some person to be interim receiver of the property of the debtor or of any part thereof and direct him to take immediate possession thereof or of any part thereof. 2. The Court may at any time after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition, stay any action, execution, or other legal process against the property or person of the debtor, and any Court in which proceedings are pending against a debtor may, on proof that a bankruptcy petition has been presented by or against the debtor, either stay the proceedings or allow them to continue on such terms as it may think just.

Imp. § 10.

Making order staying proceedings. 12. Where the Court makes an order staying any action or proceeding or staying proceedings generally, the order may be served by sending a copy thereof under the seal of the Court by prepaid post letter to, or delivering the same at, the address for service of the plaintiff or other party prosecuting such proceeding.

Imp. § 11.

Power to appoint special manager. 13. 1. The receiver or interim receiver of a debtor's estate may, with the consent of the Court on the application of any creditor or creditors, if satisfied that the nature of the debtor's estate or business or the interests of the creditors generally, require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business other than the receiver or interim receiver, appoint a manager thereof accordingly to act until a trustee is appointed, and with such powers (including the powers of a receiver) as may be entrusted to him by the receiver. 2. The receiver and interim receiver, if a person other than the Registrar, and the special manager shall respectively give such security and account in such manner as the Court may from time to time direct; and shall respectively receive such remuneration as the creditors may, by resolution at an ordinary meeting determine, or in default of such resolution as the Court shall order. 3. Where an interim receiver has been appointed, and the bankruptcy petition has been subsequently dismissed, the creditor or creditors upon whose application the order was made, shall be jointly and severally liable for the remuneration of such receiver, and of the special manager (if any) and for all expenses incurred in pursuance or in consequence of such order, and the Court may upon dismissing the petition order the payment thereof.

Imp. § 12.

Advertisement of receiving order. 14. Notice of every receiving order, stating the name, address, and description of the debtor, the date of the order, and the date of the petition, shall be gazetted and advertised in a local newspaper in the prescribed manner.

Imp. § 13.

Proceedings consequent on order.

First and other meetings of creditors. First Schedule. 15. 1. As soon as may be after the making of a receiving order against a debtor, a general meeting of his creditors (in this Ordinance referred to as the first meeting of creditors) shall be held for the purpose of considering whether a proposal for a composition or scheme of arrangement shall be entertained, or whether it is expedient that the debtor shall be adjudged bankrupt, and generally as to the mode of dealing with the debtor's property. 2. With respect to the summoning of and proceedings at the first and other meetings of creditors, the rules in the first Schedule shall be observed.

Imp. § 15.

Debtor's statement of affairs. 16. 1. Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, he shall make out and submit to the receiver a statement of and in relation to his affairs in the prescribed form, verified by affidavit and showing the particulars of the debtor's assets, debts, and liabilities, the names, residences, and occupations of his creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given, and such further or other information as may be prescribed or as the receiver may require. 2. The statement shall be so submitted within the following times namely: a) If the order is made on the petition of the debtor, within three days from the date of the order; b) If the order is made on the petition of a creditor, within seven days from the date of the order. But the Court may in either case for special reasons extend the time. 3. If the debtor fails without reasonable excuse to comply with the requirements of this section, the Court may on the application of the receiver or of any creditor adjudge the debtor bankrupt. 4. Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor of the bankrupt, may, personally or by agent, inspect this statement at all reasonable times, and take any copy thereof or extract therefrom, but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the trustee or receiver.

Imp. § 16.

Public examination of debtor.

Public examination of debtor. 17. 1. Where the Court makes a receiving order, it shall hold a public sitting on a day to be appointed by the Court, for the examination of the debtor, and the debtor shall attend thereat, and shall be examined as to his conduct, dealings, and property. 2. The examination shall be held as soon as conveniently may be after the expiration of the time for the submission of the debtor's statement of affairs. 3. The Court may adjourn the examination from time to time. 4. Any creditor who has tendered a proof, or his representative authorized in writing, may question the debtor concerning his affairs and the causes of his failure. 5. The receiver shall take part in the examination of the debtor, and for the purpose thereof if authorized by the Court may employ a solicitor with or without counsel. 6. If a trustee is appointed before the conclusion of the examination he may take part therein. 7. The Court may put such questions to the debtor as it may think expedient. 8. The debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over either to or by the debtor and signed by him, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him. They shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times. 9. When the Court is of opinion that the affairs of the debtor have been sufficiently investigated, it shall by order declare that his examination is concluded, but such order shall not be made until after the day appointed for the first meeting of creditors. Provided that the Court may, if it think fit, direct a further examination of the debtor. 10. Where the debtor is a lunatic or suffers from any such mental or physical affliction or disability as in the opinion of the Court makes him unfit to attend his public examination, the Court may make an order dispensing with such examination, or directing that the debtor be examined on such terms, in such manner, and at such place as to the Court seems expedient.

Composition or scheme of arrangement.

Composition, etc. 18. 1. Where a debtor intends to make a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of his debts, or a proposal for a scheme of arrangement of his affairs, he shall within four days of submitting his statement of affairs, or within such time thereafter as the receiver may fix, lodge with the receiver a proposal in writing signed by him, embodying the terms of the composition or scheme of arrangement which he is desirous of submitting for the consideration of his creditors, and setting out particulars of any sureties or securities proposed. 2. In such case the receiver shall hold a meeting of creditors, before the public examination of the debtor is concluded, and send to each creditor before the meeting a copy of the debtor's proposal with a report thereon; and if at that meeting or the adjournment thereof as hereinafter provided, a majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved resolve to accept the proposal, the same shall be deemed to be duly accepted by the creditors, and when approved by the Court shall be binding on all the creditors. 3. The debtor may at the meeting or the adjournment thereof amend the terms of his proposal if the amendment is in the opinion of the receiver calculated to benefit the general body of creditors. 4. Any creditor who has proved his debt may assent to or dissent from the proposal by a letter in the prescribed form, addressed to the receiver so as to be received by him not later than the day preceding the meeting or adjourned meeting, and any such assent or dissent shall have effect as if the creditor had been present and had voted. 5. The debtor or receiver may, after the proposal is accepted by the creditors, apply to the Court to approve it, and notice of the time appointed for hearing the application shall be given to each creditor who has proved. 6. The application shall not be heard until after the conclusion of the public examination of the debtor. Any creditor who has proved may be heard by the Court in opposition to the application, notwithstanding that he may at a meeting of creditors have voted for the acceptance of the proposal. 7. The Court shall, before approving the proposal, hear a report of the receiver as to the terms thereof, and as to the conduct of the debtor, and any objections which may be made by or on behalf of any creditor. 8. If the Court is of opinion that the terms of the proposal are not reasonable, or are not calculated to benefit the general body of creditors, or in any case in which the Court is required, where the debtor is adjudged bankrupt, to refuse his discharge, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal. 9. If any facts are proved on proof of which the Court would be required either to refuse, suspend, or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge were he adjudged bankrupt, the Court shall refuse to approve the proposal, unless it provides reasonable security for payment of not less than seven shillings and sixpence in the pound on all unsecured debts provable against the debtor's estate. 10. In any other case the Court may either approve or refuse to approve the proposal. 11. If the Court approves the proposal, the approval may be testified by the seal of the Court being attached to the instrument containing the terms of the proposed composition or scheme, or by the terms being embodied in an order of the Court. 12. A composition or scheme accepted and approved in pursuance of this section shall be binding on all the creditors so far as relates to any debts due to them from the debtor and provable in bankruptcy, but shall not release the debtor from any liability under a judgment against him in an action for seduction, or under an affiliation order, except to such extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability. 13. A certificate of the receiver that a composition or scheme has been duly accepted and approved shall, in the absence of fraud, be conclusive as to its validity. 14. The provisions of a composition or scheme under this section may be enforced by the Court on the application of any person interested, and any disobedience of an order of the Court made on the application shall be deemed a contempt of Court. 15. If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court, on satisfactory evidence, that the composition or scheme cannot, in consequence of legal difficulties, or for any sufficient cause, proceed without injustice or undue delay to the creditors or the debtor, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may if it thinks fit, on application by the receiver or the trustee or by any creditor, adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. When a debtor is adjudged a bankrupt under this subsection, any debt provable in other respects, which has been contracted before the adjudication, shall be provable in the bankruptcy. 16. If, under or in pursuance of a composition or scheme, a trustee is appointed to administer the debtor's property or manage his business, or to distribute the composition, section 27 and Part V of this Ordinance shall apply as if the trustee were a trustee in bankruptcy and as if the terms "bankruptcy," "bankrupt," and "order of adjudication" included respectively a composition or scheme of arrangement, a compounding or arranging debtor, and order approving the composition or scheme. 17. Part III of this Ordinance shall so far as the nature of the case and the terms of composition or scheme admit, apply thereto, the same interpretation being given to the words "trustee," "bankruptcy," "bankrupt" and "order of adjudication" as in the last preceding sub section. 18. No composition or scheme shall be approved by the Court which does not provide for the payment in priority to other debts of all debts directed to be so paid in the distribution of the property of a bankrupt. 19. The acceptance by a creditor of a composition or scheme shall not release any person who under this Ordinance would not be released by an order of discharge if the debtor had been adjudged a bankrupt.

Imp. § 18; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 3.

Effect of composition or scheme. 19. Notwithstanding the acceptance and approval of a composition or scheme, such composition or scheme will not be binding on any creditor so far as regards a debt or liability from which, under the provisions of this Ordinance, the debtor would not be discharged by an order of discharge in bankruptcy, unless the creditor assents to the composition or scheme.

Imp. § 19.

Adjudication of bankruptcy and appointment of trustee.

Adjudication where composition not accepted or approved. 20. 1. Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, then if the creditors at the first meeting or any adjournment thereof by ordinary resolution resolve that the debtor be adjudged bankrupt, or pass no resolution, or if the creditors do not meet, or if a composition or scheme is not accepted or approved in pursuance of this Ordinance within fourteen days after the conclusion of the examination of the debtor or such further time as the Court may allow, the Court shall unless good reason be shewn, adjudge the debtor bankrupt. 2. When a debtor is adjudged bankrupt his property shall become divisible among his creditors and shall vest in a trustee. 3. Notice of every order adjudging a debtor bankrupt, stating the name, address, and description of the bankrupt, and the date of the adjudication, shall be gazetted and advertised in a local newspaper in the prescribed manner, and the date of the order shall for the purposes of this Ordinance be the date of the adjudication.

Imp. § 20.

Appointment of trustee. 21. 1. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt or the creditors have resolved that he be adjudged bankrupt, the creditors may by ordinary resolution appoint some fit person, whether a creditor or not, to fill the office of trustee of the property of the bankrupt; or they may resolve to leave his appointment to the committee of inspection hereinafter mentioned. 2. The person so appointed shall give security in such manner and to such amount as the creditors by resolution shall determine. The appointment of the trustee shall be reported to the Court, and the Court if satisfied with the security shall certify that his appointment has been duly made, unless the appointment is objected to on the ground that the person appointed is not fit to act as trustee, or that he has been previously removed from the office of trustee of a bankrupt's property for misconduct or neglect of duty, or that his connection with or relation to the bankrupt or his estate or any particular creditor makes his appointment undesirable in the interests of the creditors generally, or, with the written consent of creditors representing one-fourth in value or in number of the creditors, on the ground that the appointment has not been made in good faith. 3. Notice of any such objection shall be given to the Registrar, the receiver, and the person whose appointment is objected to, together with a statement of the nature of such objection, and the Court shall decide on its validity. 4. A certificate of the Court shall be conclusive evidence that the person therein named is duly appointed trustee, and such appointment shall take effect as from the date of the certificate. 5. The Registrar shall not, save as by this Ordinance provided, be trustee of the bankrupt's property. 6. If a trustee is not appointed by the creditors within four weeks from the date of the adjudication, or in the event of negotiations for a composition or scheme being pending at the expiration of those four weeks, then within seven days from the close of those negotiations by the refusal of the creditors to accept, or of the Court to approve the composition or scheme, the receiver shall report the matter to the Court, and thereupon the Court shall appoint some fit person to be trustee of the bankrupt's property. 7. Provided that the creditors or the committee of inspection (if so authorized by resolution of the creditors), may at any subsequent time if they think fit appoint a trustee, and, on the appointment being made and approved by the Court, the person appointed shall become trustee in the place of the person appointed by the Court. 8. When a debtor is adjudged bankrupt after the first meeting of creditors has been held, and a trustee has not been appointed prior to the adjudication, the receiver shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors for the purpose of appointing a trustee.

Imp. § 21; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 4.

Committee of inspection. 22. 1. The creditors, qualified to vote, may at their first or any subsequent meeting, by resolution, appoint from among the creditors, or the holders of general proxies or general powers of attorney from such creditors, a committee of inspection for the purpose of superintending the administration of the bankrupt's property by the trustee. The committee of inspection shall consist of not more than five nor less than three persons. Provided that a creditor who is appointed a member of a committee of inspection shall not be qualified to act until he has proved his debt and the proof has been admitted. 2. The committee of inspection shall meet at such times as they shall from time to time appoint, and failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the trustee or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary. 3. The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present at the meeting. 4. Any member of the committee may resign his office by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the trustee. 5. If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee, his office shall thereupon become vacant. 6. Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at any meeting of creditors of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting. 7. On a vacancy occurring in the office of a member of the committee, the trustee shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors for the purpose of filling the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution appoint another creditor or other person eligible as above to fill the vacancy. 8. The continuing members of the committee, provided there be not less than two such continuing members, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, and where the number of members of the committee is for the time being less than five, the creditors may increase that number so that it do not exceed five. 9. If there be no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Ordinance authorized or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Court on the application of the trustee.

Imp. § 22; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 5.

Power to accept composition or scheme after adjudication. 23. 1. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt, the creditors may, if they think fit, at any time after the adjudication, by a resolution of the majority in number and three-fourths in value of all the creditors who have proved, resolve to entertain a proposal for a composition in satisfaction of the debts due to them under the bankruptcy, or for a scheme of arrangement of the bankrupt's affairs; and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken and the same consequences shall ensue as in the case of a composition or scheme accepted before adjudication. 2. If the Court approves the composition or scheme, it may make an order annulling the bankruptcy and vesting the property of the bankrupt in him, or in such other person as the Court may appoint, on such terms, and subject to such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare. 3. If default is made in payment of any instalment due in pursuance of the composition or scheme, or if it appears to the Court that the composition or scheme cannot proceed without injustice or undue delay, or that the approval of the Court was obtained by fraud, the Court may if it thinks fit on application by any person interested adjudge the debtor bankrupt, and annul the composition or scheme, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made, or thing duly done, under or in pursuance of the composition or scheme. Where a debtor is adjudged bankrupt under this subsection, all debts, provable in other respects, which have been contracted before the date of such adjudication shall be provable in the bankruptcy.

Duties of the debtor as to discovery and realization of property. 24. 1. Every debtor against whom a receiving order is made, shall, unless prevented by sickness or other sufficient cause, attend the first meeting of his creditors, and shall submit to such examination and give such information as the meeting may require. 2. He shall give such inventory of his property, such list of his creditors and debtors, and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination in respect of his property or his creditors, attend such meetings of his creditors, wait at such times on the receiver, special manager, or trustee, execute such powers or attorney, conveyances, deeds and instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors, as may be reasonably required by the receiver, special manager, or trustee, or may be prescribed by rules of Court, or be directed by the Court by any special order or orders made in reference to any particular case, or made on the occasion of any special application by the receiver, special manager, trustee, or any creditor or person interested. 3. He shall, if adjudged a bankrupt, aid to the utmost of his power, in the realization of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors. 4. If the debtor wilfully fail to perform the duties imposed on him by this section, or to deliver up possession of any part of his property which is divisible amongst his creditors under this Ordinance, and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control, to the receiver or to the trustee, or to any person authorized by the Court to take possession of it, he shall, in addition to any other punishment to which he may be subject, be guilty of a contempt of court, and may be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 24.

Arrest of debtor under certain circumstances. 25. 1. The Court may by warrant addressed to any constable or prescribed officer of the Court, cause a debtor to be arrested, and any books, papers, money, and goods in his possession to be seized, and him and them to be safely kept as prescribed until such time as the Court may order, under the following circumstances: a) If, after a bankruptcy notice has been issued under this Ordinance, or after the presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, it appears to the Court that there is probable reason for believing that he has absconded or is about to abscond with a view of avoiding payment of the debt in respect of which the bankruptcy notice was issued, or of avoiding service of a bankruptcy petition, or of avoiding appearance to such petition, or of avoiding examination in respect of his affairs, or of otherwise avoiding, delaying, or embarrassing proceedings in bankruptcy against him; b) If, after presentation of a bankruptcy petition by or against him, it appears to the Court that there is probable cause for believing that he is about to remove his goods with a view of preventing or delaying possession being taken of them by the official receiver or trustee, or that there is probable ground for believing that he has concealed or is about to conceal or destroy any of his goods, or any books, documents, or writings which might be of use to his creditors, in the course of his bankruptcy; c) If, after service of a bankruptcy petition on him, or after a receiving order is made against him, he removes any goods in his possession above the value of five pounds, without leave of the receiver or trustee; d) If, without good cause shown, he fails to attend any examination ordered by the Court. Provided that no arrest upon a bankruptcy notice shall be valid and protected, unless the debtor, before or at the time of his arrest, shall be served with such bankruptcy notice. 2. No payment or composition made or security given after arrest made under this section, shall be exempt from the provisions of this Ordinance relating to fraudulent preferences.

Where a receiving order is made against a debtor, the Court, on the application of the receiver or trustee, may from time to time order that for such time, not exceeding three months, as the Court thinks fit, post letters addressed to the debtor at any place or places mentioned in the order for re-direction, shall be re-directed, sent, or delivered by the Postmaster-General, or the officers acting under him, to the receiver or the trustee or otherwise as the Court directs, and the same shall be done accordingly.

Imp. § 26.

Discovery of debtor's property. 27. 1. The Court may, on the application of the receiver or trustee, at any time after a receiving order has been made against a debtor, summon before it the debtor or his wife or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any of the estate or effects belonging to the debtor, or supposed to be indebted to the debtor, or any person whom the Court may deem capable of giving information respecting the debtor or his dealings or property, and the Court may require any such person to produce any documents in his custody or power, relating to the debtor, his dealings or property. 2. If any person so summoned, after having been tendered a reasonable sum, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, or refuses to produce any such document, having no lawful impediment made known to the Court at the time of its sitting and allowed by it, the Court may by warrant cause him to be apprehended and brought up for examination. 3. The Court may examine on oath, either by word of mouth or by written interrogatories, any person so brought before it concerning the debtor, his dealings or property. 4. If any person on examination before the Court admits that he is indebted to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the receiver or trustee, order him to pay to the receiver or trustee, at such time and in such manner as to the Court seems expedient, the amount admitted or any part thereof, either in full discharge of the whole amount in question or not, as the Court thinks fit, with or without costs of the examination. 5. If any person on examination before the Court admits that he has in his possession any property belonging to the debtor, the Court may, on the application of the receiver or trustee, order him to deliver to the receiver or trustee such property, or any part thereof, at such time, and in such manner, and on such terms as to the Court may seem just. 6. A witness or any person interested in the proceedings, may on payment of the prescribed fee, obtain a copy of any depositions taken in pursuance of this section.

Imp. § 27.

Discharge of bankrupt.

Discharge of bankrupt. 28. 1. A bankrupt may, at any time after being adjudged a bankrupt, apply to the Court for an order of discharge, and the Court shall appoint a day for hearing the application, but the application shall not be heard until the public examination of the bankrupt is concluded. The application shall be heard in open Court. 2. On the hearing of the application the Court shall take into consideration a report of the receiver as to the bankrupt's conduct and affairs (including a report as to the bankrupt's conduct during the proceedings under his bankruptcy), and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the bankrupt, or with respect to his after-acquired property: Provided that the Court shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the bankrupt has been convicted of any misdemeanour under this Ordinance, or any other misdemeanour connected with his bankruptcy, or any felony connected with his bankruptcy, unless for special reasons the Court otherwise determines, and shall on proof of any of the facts hereinafter mentioned, either: i) Refuse the discharge; or ii) Suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years; or iii) Suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than ten shillings in the pound has been paid to the creditors; or iv) Require the bankrupt as a condition of his discharge to consent to judgment being entered against him by the receiver or trustee for any balance or part of any balance of the debts provable under the bankruptcy which is not satisfied at the date of the discharge, such balance or part of any balance of the debts to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the bankrupt in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; but execution shall not be issued on the judgment without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the bankrupt has since his discharge acquired property or income available toward payment of his debts. Provided that if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of an order made under this section, the bankrupt shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit. 3. The facts hereinbefore referred to are: a) That the bankrupt's assets are not of a value equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that this has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot be justly held responsible; b) That the bankrupt has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy; c) That the bankrupt has continued to trade after knowing or having reason to believe himself to be insolvent; d) That the bankrupt has contracted any debt provable in the bankruptcy without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it; e) That the bankrupt has failed satisfactorily to account for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities; f) That the bankrupt has brought on or contributed to his bankruptcy by recklessness or by rash and hazardous speculation or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs; g) That the bankrupt has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous and vexatious defence to any action properly brought against him; h) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order incurred unjustifiable expense by bringing a frivolous or vexatious action; i) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, when unable to pay his debts as they became due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors; j) That the bankrupt has within three months preceding the date of the receiving order, incurred liabilities with a view of making his assets equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities; k) That the bankrupt has on any previous occasion been adjudged bankrupt, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors; l) That the bankrupt has been guilty of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust. 4. For the purposes of this section, a bankrupt's assets shall be deemed of a value equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, when the Court is satisfied that the property of the bankrupt has realized, or is likely to realize, or with due care in the realization might have realized, an amount equal to ten shillings in the pound on his unsecured liabilities, and a report by the receiver or the trustee shall be prima facie evidence of the amount of such liabilities. 5. For the purposes of this section the report of the receiver shall be prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained. 6. Notice of the appointment by the Court of the day for hearing the application for discharge, shall be published in the prescribed manner, and sent fourteen days at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Court may hear the receiver and the trustee and may hear also any creditor. At the hearing the Court may put or allow to be put to the debtor such questions and receive such evidence as it may think fit. 7. The powers of suspending and of attaching conditions to a bankrupt's discharge may be exercised concurrently. 8. A discharged bankrupt shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the trustee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the trustee, and if he fails to do he shall be guilty of a contempt of court: and the Court may also if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment duly made, or thing duly done subsequent to the discharge, but before its revocation.

Imp. § 29, 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 8.

Fraudulent settlements. 29. In either of the following cases that is to say: 1. In the case of a settlement, made before and in consideration of marriage, where the settlor is not at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in the settlement; or 2) In the case of any covenant or contract, made in consideration of marriage, for the future settlement on or for the settlor's wife or children of any money or property, wherein he had not, at the date of his marriage, any estate or interest (not being money or property of or in right of his wife), if the settlor is adjudged bankrupt or compounds or arranges with his creditors, and it appears to the Court that such settlement, covenant, or contract was made in order to defeat or delay creditors, or was unjustifiable having regard to the state of the settlor's affairs at the time when it was made, the Court may refuse or suspend an order of discharge, or grant an order subject to conditions, or refuse to approve a composition or arrangement, as the case may be, in like manner as in cases where the debtor has been guilty of fraud.

Imp. § 19.

Effect of order of discharge. 30. 1. An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt on a recognizance, nor from any debt with which the bankrupt may be chargeable at the suit of the Crown or of any person for any offence against a statute relating to any branch of the public revenue, or at the suit of any public officer on a bail bond entered into for the appearance of any person prosecuted for any such offence: and he shall not be discharged from such excepted debts unless the Governor certifies in writing his consent to his being discharged therefrom. An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any debt or liability incurred by means of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust to which he was a party, nor from any debt or liability whereof he has obtained forbearance by any fraud to which he was a party. 2. An order of discharge shall release the bankrupt from all other debts provable in bankruptcy. 3. An order of discharge shall be conclusive evidence of the bankruptcy, and of the validity of the proceedings therein; and in any proceeding that may be instituted against a bankrupt who has obtained an order of discharge in respect of any debt from which he is released by the order, the bankrupt may plead that the cause of action occurred before his discharge, and may give this Ordinance and the special matter in evidence. 4. An order of discharge shall not release any person who at the date of the receiving order was a partner or co-trustee with the bankrupt, or was jointly bound, or had made any joint contract with him or any person who was surety or in the nature of a surety for him. 5. An order of discharge shall not release the bankrupt from any liability under a judgment against him in an action for seduction, or under an affiliation order, except to such extent and under such conditions as the Court expressly orders in respect of such liability.

Imp. § 30.

The disqualifications to which a bankrupt is subject under this section shall be removed and cease if and when: a) The adjudication of bankruptcy against him is annulled; or b) He obtains from the Court his discharge, with a certificate to the effect that his bankruptcy was caused by misfortune without any misconduct on his part. The Court may grant or withhold such certificate as it thinks fit, but any refusal of such certificate shall be subject to appeal. 3. No disqualification arising under this section shall exceed a period of five years from the date of any discharge which may hereafter be granted under and by virtue of this Ordinance.

Imp. § 34.

Annulling adjudication and the effect thereof. 33. 1. Where in the opinion of the Court a debtor ought not to have been adjudged bankrupt, or where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the debts of the bankrupt are paid in full, the Court may, at any time on the application of any person interested, by order annul the adjudication. 2. Where an adjudication is annulled under this section, all sales and dispositions of property and payments duly made, and all acts theretofore done, by the receiver, trustee, or other person acting under their authority, or by the Court, shall be valid, but the property of the debtor who was adjudged bankrupt shall vest in such person as the Court may appoint, or in default of any such appointment shall revert to the debtor for all his estate or interest therein on such terms and subject to any such conditions, if any, as the Court may declare by order. 3. Notice of the order annulling an adjudication shall be forthwith gazetted and published in a local newspaper.

Imp. § 35.

Meaning of payment of debt in full. 34. For the purposes of this part of this Ordinance, any debt disputed by a debtor shall be considered as paid in full if the debtor enters into a bond, in such sum and with such sureties as the Court approves, to pay the amount to be recovered in any proceeding for the recovery of or concerning the debt, with costs, and any debt due to a creditor who cannot be found or cannot be identified shall be considered as paid in full if paid into Court.

Imp. § 36.

Part III. Administration of Property.

Proof of debts.

Description of debts provable in bankruptcy. 35. 1. Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages, arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise, or breach of trust, shall not be provable in bankruptcy. 2. A person, having notice of any act of bankruptcy available against the debtor, shall not prove under the order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice. 3. Save as aforesaid, all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject at the date of the receiving order, or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of the receiving order, shall be deemed to be debts provable in bankruptcy. 4. An estimate shall be made by the trustee of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid, which by reason of its being subject to any contingency or contingencies, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value. 5. Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by the trustee as aforesaid may appeal to the Court. 6. If, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, be deemed to be a debt not provable in bankruptcy. 7. If, in the opinion of the Court the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may assess or direct the value to be assessed in such manner as it shall think fit, and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable in bankruptcy. 8. "Liability" shall, for the purposes of this Ordinance, include any compensation for work or labour done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement, or undertaking, whether such breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring before the discharge of the debtor, and generally it shall include any express or implied engagement, agreement, or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of money, or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any one contingency or on two or more contingencies; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules, or assessable only by fixed rules or as a matter of opinion.

Imp. § 37.

Debts founded in felony. 36. Proof of a debt if otherwise provable, shall not be rejected because it is founded in felony, unless it is shewn that the creditor seeking to prove has omitted to perform some duty in connection with the prosecution of the felon.

Mutual credit and set-off. 37. Where there have been mutual credits, mutual debts, or other mutual dealings between a debtor, against whom a receiving order shall be made under this Ordinance, and any other person proving or claiming to prove a debt under such receiving order, an account shall be taken of what is due from one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of the account, and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively; but a person shall not be entitled under this section to claim the benefit of any set-off against the property of a debtor in any case where he had at the time of giving credit to the debtor, notice of an act of bankruptcy committed by such debtor, and available against him for adjudication.

Imp. § 38.

Rules as to proof of debts. 38. With respect to the mode of proving debts, the right of proof by secured and other creditors, the admission and rejection of proofs, and the other matters referred to in the second Schedule, the rules in that Schedule shall be observed.

Imp. § 39.

Priority of debts. 39. 1. In the distribution of the property of a bankrupt and in the distribution of the assets of any company being wound up under the Companies Ordinance, No. 69, and any Ordinance amending the same, there shall be paid in priority to all other debts: a) All local rates due from the bankrupt or the company at the date of the receiving order, or as the case may be, the commencement of the winding up, and all assessed taxes, land tax, house tax, and all other taxes and sums whatsoever assessed on the bankrupt or the company; b) All wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of any services rendered to the bankrupt or the company within four months next before the date of the receiving order, or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up, not exceeding fifty pounds; and c) All wages of any labourer or workman not exceeding twenty-five pounds, whether payable for time or piece work, and whether the hiring was by the day or week or otherwise, due in respect of any services rendered to the bankrupt or company within two months next before the date of the receiving order, or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up: Provided that where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring, he shall have priority in respect of the whole of such sum, or a part thereof, as the Court may decide to be due under the contract, proportionate to the time of service up to the date of the receiving order, or, as the case may be, the commencement of the winding-up; d) In the winding-up of any company under the Companies Ordinance, No. 69, and any Ordinance amending the same, the foregoing debts shall so far as the assets of the company, available for payment of general creditors, may be insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures or debenture stock under any floating charge created by such company, and shall be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to such charge; e) In case a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures or debenture stock of a company secured by a floating charge, or in case possession is taken by or on behalf of such debenture holders of any property comprised in or subject to such charge, then and in either of such cases, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the foregoing debts shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming into the hands of the receiver, or other person taking possession as aforesaid, in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of such debentures or debenture stock. And the periods of time hereinbefore mentioned shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver or possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be. But any payments made in pursuance hereof shall be recouped as far as may be out of the assets of the company available for the payment of general creditors. 2. The foregoing debts shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, but in case the property of the bankrupt is, or the assets of the company are, insufficient to meet them, they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves, save and except the debts payable under subsection 1 (a) of this section, which shall in all cases be paid in full. 3. Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith, so far as the property of the debtor, or the assets of the company, as the case may be, is or are sufficient to meet them. 4. In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of a bankrupt or a company being wound up within three months next before the date of the receiving order or the winding-up order respectively, the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof; provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom such payment is made. 5. In the case of partners, the joint estate shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of their joint debts, and the separate estate of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. If there is a surplus of the separate estates it shall be dealt with as part of the joint estate. If there is a surplus of the joint estate it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate estates in proportion to the right and interest of each partner in the joint estate. 6. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, all debts proved in bankruptcy shall be paid pari passu. Provided that where a debt is in respect of money advanced by way of loan to a person engaged or about to engage in any business, on a contract that the lender shall receive a rate on interest varying with the profits arising from carrying on the business; or is in respect of a share of the profits as consideration for the sale of the goodwill of a business; the lender of the loan shall not be entitled to recover anything in respect of his loan, and the seller of the goodwill shall not be entitled to recover anything in respect of the share of the profits contracted for, until the claims of the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied. Provided also that a creditor shall not be entitled to recover anything in respect of a debt due on a voluntary bond or covenant until the claims of the other creditors for valuable consideration in money or money's worth have been satisfied. 7. If there is any surplus after payment of all debts which shall have been proved, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date of the receiving order or commencement of the winding-up as the case may be, at the rate of four pounds per centum per annum, on all debts proved in bankruptcy. 8. This section shall apply in the case of a deceased person who dies insolvent, as if he were a bankrupt, and as if the date of his death were substituted for the date of the receiving order. 3. Nothing in this Ordinance shall prejudice the provisions of the Friendly Societies Ordinance, No. 110, or shall affect the priority given to the payment of funeral and testamentary expenses.

Imp. § 40.

Preferential claim in case of apprenticeship. 40. 1. When at the time of the presentation of the bankruptcy petition any person is apprenticed or is an articled clerk to the bankrupt, the adjudication of bankruptcy shall, if either the bankrupt or apprentice or clerk gives notice in writing to the trustee to that effect, be a complete discharge of the indenture of apprenticeship or articles of agreement; and if any money has been paid by or on behalf of the apprentice or clerk to the bankrupt as a fee, the trustee may, on the application of the apprentice or clerk, or of some person on his behalf, pay such sum as the trustee, subject to an appeal to the Court, thinks reasonable, out of the bankrupt's property, to or for the use of the apprentice or clerk, regard being had to the amount paid by him or on his behalf, and to the time during which he served with the bankrupt under the indenture or articles before the commencement of the bankruptcy, and to the other circumstances of the case. 2. Where it appears expedient to a trustee, he may, on the application of any apprentice or articled clerk to the bankrupt, or any person acting on behalf of such apprentice or articled clerk, instead of acting under the preceding provisions of this section, transfer the indenture of apprenticeship or articles of agreement to some other person.

Imp. § 41.

Power for landlord to distrain for rent. 41. 1. The landlord or other person to whom any rent is due from the bankrupt may at any time, either before or after the commencement of the bankruptcy, distrain upon the goods or effects of the bankrupt for the rent due to him from the bankrupt, with this limitation; that if such distress for rent be levied after the commencement of the bankruptcy, it shall be available only for six months rent accrued due prior to the date of the order of adjudication, but the landlord or other person to whom the rent may be due from the bankrupt may prove under the bankruptcy for the overplus due for which the distress may not have been available. 2. For the purposes of this section the term "order of adjudication" shall be deemed to include an order for the administration of the estate of a debtor whose debts do not exceed fifty pounds, or of a deceased person who dies insolvent.

Imp. § 42.

Property available for payment of debts.

Relation back of trustee's title. 42. The bankruptcy of a debtor, whether the same takes place on the debtor's own petition or upon that of a creditor or creditors, shall be deemed to have relation back to, and to commence at, the time of the act of bankruptcy being committed on which a receiving order is made against him, or, if the bankrupt is proved to have committed more acts of bankruptcy than one, to have relation back to, and to commence at, the time of the first of the acts of bankruptcy proved to have been committed by the bankrupt within three months next preceding the date of the presentation of the bankruptcy petition; but no bankruptcy petition, receiving order, or adjudication shall be rendered invalid by reason of any act of bankruptcy anterior to the debt of the petitioning creditor.

Imp. § 43.

Description of bankrupt's property divisible amongst creditors. 43. The property of the bankrupt divisible amongst his creditors, and in this Ordinance referred to as the property of the bankrupt, shall not comprise the following particulars: 1. Property held by the bankrupt on trust for any other person. 2. The tools (if any) of his trade and the necessary wearing apparel and bedding of himself, his wife and children, to a value inclusive of tools and apparel and bedding, not exceeding twenty pounds in the whole. But it shall comprise the following particulars: a) All such property as may belong to or be vested in the bankrupt at the commencement of the bankruptcy, or may be acquired by or devolve on him before his discharge, and b) The capacity to exercise and to take proceedings for exercising all such powers in or over or in respect of property as might have been exercised by the bankrupt for his own benefit at the commencement of his bankruptcy or before his discharge; and c) All goods being, at the commencement of the bankruptcy, in the possession, order, or disposition of the bankrupt in his trade or business, by the consent and permission of the true owner, under such circumstances that he is the reputed owner thereof; provided that things in action, other than debts due or growing due to the bankrupt in the course of his trade or business, shall not be deemed goods within the meaning of this section.

Imp. § 44.

Effect of bankruptcy on antecedent transactions.

Restriction of creditor's rights under execution or attachment. 44. 1. Where a creditor has issued execution against the goods or lands of a debtor, or has attached any debt due to him, he shall not be entitled to retain the benefit of the execution or attachment against the trustee in bankruptcy of the debtor, unless he has completed the execution or attachment before the date of the receiving order, and before notice of the presentation of any bankruptcy petition by or against the debtor, or of the commission of any available act of bankruptcy by the debtor. 2. For the purposes of this Ordinance, an execution against goods is completed by seizure and sale; an attachment of the debt is completed by the receipt of the debt; and an execution against land is completed from the date of the order for sale, or in the case of an equitable interest, by the appointment of a receiver.

Imp. § 45.

Duties of marshal as to goods taken in execution. 45. 1. Where any goods of a debtor are taken in execution, and before the sale thereof, or the completion of the execution by the receipt or recovery of the full amount of the levy, notice is served on the marshal that a receiving order has been made against the debtor, the marshal shall, on request, deliver the goods and money seized or received in part satisfaction of the execution to the receiver, but the costs of the execution shall be a first charge on the goods or money so delivered, and the receiver or trustee may sell the goods, or an adequate part thereof, for the purpose of satisfying the charge. 2. Where under an execution in respect of a judgment for a sum exceeding twenty pounds, the goods of a debtor are sold or money is paid in order to avoid sale, the marshal shall deduct his costs of the execution from the proceeds of sale or the money paid, and retain the balance for fourteen days, and if within that time notice is served on him of a bankruptcy petition having been presented against or by the debtor, and a receiving order is made against the debtor thereon, or on any other petition of which the marshal has notice, the marshal shall pay the balance to the receiver, or, as the case may be, to the trustee, who shall be entitled to retain the same as against the execution creditor. 3. An execution, levied by seizure and sale on the goods of a debtor, is not invalid, by reason only of its being an act of bankruptcy, and a person who purchases the goods, in good faith under a sale by the marshal shall in all cases acquire a good title to them against the trustee in bankruptcy.

Imp. § 46; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 11.

Avoidance of voluntary settlements. 46. Any settlement of property, not being a settlement made before and in consideration of marriage, or made in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration, or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage in right of his wife, shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt within two years after the date of such settlement, be voidable against the trustee in the bankruptcy, and shall, if the settlor becomes bankrupt at any subsequent time within ten years after the date of the settlement, be voidable against the trustee in the bankruptcy, unless the parties claiming under the settlement can prove that the settlor was, at the time of making the settlement, able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property comprised in such settlement, and that the interest of the settlor in such property had passed to the trustee of such settlement on the execution thereof. 2. Any covenant or contract made in consideration of marriage, for the future settlement, on or for the settlor's wife or children, of any money or property wherein he had not at the date of his marriage any estate or interest, whether vested or contingent, in possession or remainder, and not being money or property of or in right of his wife, shall, on his becoming bankrupt before such property or money has been actually transferred or paid pursuant to such contract or covenant, be voidable against the trustee in the bankruptcy. 3. "Settlement" shall for the purposes of this section include any conveyance or transfer of property.

Imp. § 47.

Avoidance of fraudulent preferences. 47. Every conveyance or transfer of property, or charge thereon made, every payment made, every obligation incurred, and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own moneys, in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying, or suffering the same is adjudged bankrupt on a petition presented within three months after the date of making, taking, paying, or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the trustee in bankruptcy. 2. This section shall not affect the right of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under a creditor of the bankrupt.

Imp. § 48.

Protection of bona fide transactions without notice. 48. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Ordinance with respect to the effect of bankruptcy on an execution or attachment, and with respect to the avoidance of certain settlements and preferences, nothing in this Ordinance shall invalidate in the case of a bankruptcy: a) Any payment by the bankrupt to any of his creditors; b) Any payment or delivery to the bankrupt; c) Any conveyance, charge, or assignment by the bankrupt for valuable consideration; or d) Any contract, dealing, or transaction by or with the bankrupt for valuable consideration. Provided that both the following conditions are complied with; namely: 1. The payment, delivery, conveyance, charge, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction, as the case may be, takes place before the date of the receiving order; and 2. The person (other than the debtor) to, by, or with whom the payment, delivery, conveyance, charge, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction was made, executed, or entered into, has not at the time of the payment, delivery, conveyance, charge, assignment, contract, dealing, or transaction, notice of any available act of bankruptcy committed by the bankrupt before that time.

Imp. § 49.

Realization of property.

Possession of property by trustee. 49. 1. The trustee shall, as soon as may be, take possession of the deeds, books, and documents of the bankrupt, and all other parts of his property capable of manual delivery. 2. The trustee shall, in relation to and for the purpose of acquiring or retaining possession of the property of the bankrupt, be in the same position as if he were a receiver of the property appointed by the Court, and the Court may, on his application, enforce such acquisition or retention accordingly. 3. Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of stock, shares in ships, shares or any other property transferable in the books of any company, office, or person, the trustee may exercise the right to transfer the property to the same extent as the bankrupt might have exercised it if he had not become bankrupt. 4. Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of things in action, such things shall be deemed to have been duly assigned to the trustee. 5. Any treasurer or other officer, or any banker, attorney, or agent of a bankrupt shall pay and deliver to the trustee all money and securities in his possession or power as such officer, banker, attorney, or agent, which he is not by law entitled to retain as against the bankrupt or the trustee. If he does not, he shall be guilty of a contempt of court, and may be punished accordingly on the application of the trustee. 6. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Savings Banks Ordinance, No. 146, the chief manager shall on application of the trustee or receiver disclose what deposits of money, if any, of the debtor are remaining to his credit in the Savings Bank, and shall pay the same to the receiver or trustee.

Imp. § 50.

Seizure of property of bankrupt. 50. Any person, acting under warrant of the Court, may seize any property of the bankrupt in the custody or possession of the bankrupt, or of any other person, and with a view to such seizure may break open any house, building, or room of the bankrupt where the bankrupt is supposed to be, or any building or receptacle of the bankrupt where any of his property is supposed to be; and where the Court is satisfied that there is reason to believe that property of the bankrupt is concealed in a house or place not belonging to him, the Court may, if it thinks fit, grant a search warrant to any constable or officer of the Court, who may execute it according to its tenor.

Imp. § 51.

Appropriation of portion of salary to creditors. 51. 1. When a bankrupt is an officer or clerk, or otherwise employed or engaged in the Civil Service of the Colony, the trustee shall receive for distribution among the creditors so much of the bankrupt's pay or salary as the Court, on the application of the trustee, with the consent of the Governor, may direct. Before making any order under this subsection, the Court shall communicate with the Governor as to the amount, time, and manner of payment to the trustee, and shall obtain the written consent of the Governor to the terms of such payment. 2. Where a bankrupt is in receipt of a salary or income other than as aforesaid, or is entitled to any half-pay or pension, or to any compensation granted by the Government, the Court, on the application of the trustee, shall from time to time make such order as it thinks just for the payment of the salary, income, half-pay, pension, or compensation, or part thereof, to the trustee, to be applied by him in such manner as the Court may direct. 3. Nothing in this section shall take away or abridge any power of the Governor to dismiss a bankrupt, or to declare the pension, half-pay, or compensation of any bankrupt to be forfeited.

Imp. § 53.

Vesting and transfer of property. 52. 1. Until a trustee is appointed, the receiver shall be the trustee for the purposes of this Ordinance, and immediately on a debtor being adjudged a bankrupt, the property of the bankrupt shall vest in the trustee. 2. On the appointment of a trustee, the property shall forthwith pass to and vest in the trustee appointed. 3. The property of the bankrupt shall pass from trustee to trustee, including under that term the Registrar when he fills the office of trustee, and shall vest in the trustee for the time being during his continuance in office, without any conveyance, assignment, or transfer whatever. 4. The certificate of appointment of a trustee shall take effect as a conveyance or assignment of the property of the bankrupt and where any part of the property of a bankrupt consists of land, or any interest in land, the trustee may register a duplicate copy of the certificate of appointment, certified by the Registrar, and in the case of land registered under the Real Property Ordinance, cause a note thereof to be endorsed on the Crown grant or certificate of title and the duplicate thereof.

Disclaimer of onerous property. 53. 1. Where any part of the property of the bankrupt consists of land of any tenure burdened with onerous covenants, of shares or stocks in companies, of unprofitable contracts, or of any other property that is unsaleable, or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act, or to the payment of any sum of money, the trustee, notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell, or has taken possession of the property, or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, but subject to the provisions of this section, may, by writing signed by him, at any time within twelve months after the first appointment of a trustee, disclaim the property. Provided that where any such property shall not have come to the knowledge of the trustee within one month after such appointment, he may disclaim such property at any time within twelve months after he first became aware thereof. Any such period of twelve months may be extended by the Court. 2. The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date of disclaimer, the rights, interests, and liabilities of the bankrupt and his property, in or in respect of the property disclaimed, and shall also discharge the trustee from all personal liability in respect of the property disclaimed, as from the date when the property vested in him, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the bankrupt and his property and the trustee from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person. 3. A trustee shall not be entitled to disclaim a lease without the leave of the Court, except in any cases which may be prescribed by the rules, and the Court may, before or on granting such leave, require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and make such orders with respect to fixtures, and other matters arising out of the tenancy as the Court thinks just. 4. The trustee shall not be entitled to disclaim any property in pursuance of this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to the trustee by any person interested in the property, requiring him to decide whether he will disclaim or not, and the trustee has for a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application, or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, declined or neglected to give notice whether he disclaims the property or not; and in the case of a contract, if the trustee, after such application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or extended period disclaim the contract, he shall be deemed to have adopted it. 5. The Court may on the application of any person who is, as against the trustee, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the bankrupt, make an order rescinding the contract, on such terms as to payment, by or to either party, of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise as to the Court may seem equitable, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt under the bankruptcy. 6. The Court may, on application by any person either claiming any interest in any disclaimed property, or under any liability, not discharged by this Ordinance, in respect of any disclaimed property, and on hearing such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in, or delivery thereof to, any person entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the same should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just; and on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose. Provided always that when the property disclaimed is of a leasehold nature, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the bankrupt, whether as under-lessee or as mortgagee by demise, except upon the terms of making such person subject to the same liabilities and obligations as the bankrupt was subject to under the lease in respect of the property at the date when the bankruptcy petition was filed, but if the Court shall think fit, free from any liability for any non-performance or breach of a covenant committed before the property was vested in him, and if the case so requires, as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order. Any mortgagee or under-lessee, declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms, shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property, and if there shall be no person claiming under the bankrupt, who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the bankrupt's estate and interest in the property in any person liable either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the bankrupt to perform the lessee's covenants in such lease, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances, and interests created therein by the bankrupt. 7. Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section, shall be deemed to be a creditor of the bankrupt to the extent of the injury, and may accordingly prove the same as a debt under the bankruptcy.

Imp. § 55; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, §13.

Powers of trustee. 54. Subject to the provisions of this Ordinance, the trustee may do all or any of the following things: 1. Sell all or any part of the property of the bankrupt (including the good-will of the business, if any, and the book debts due or growing due to the bankrupt), by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels. 2. Give receipts for any money received by him, which receipts shall effectually discharge the person paying the money from all responsibility in respect of the application thereof. 3. Prove, rank, claim, and draw a dividend in respect of any debt due to the bankrupt. 4. Exercise any powers the capacity to exercise which is vested in the trustee under this Ordinance, and execute any powers of attorney, deeds, and other instruments for the purpose of carrying into effect the provisions of this Ordinance. 5. Deal with any property, to which the bankrupt is beneficially entitled as tenant in tail, in the same manner as the bankrupt might have dealt with it.

Imp. § 56.

Powers exerciseable by trustee with permission of committee of inspection. 55. The trustee may with the permission of the committee of inspection, do all or any of the following things: 1. Carry on the business of the bankrupt so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding-up of the same. 2. Bring, institute, or defend any action, suit, or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the bankrupt. 3. Employ a solicitor or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the committee of inspection. 4. Accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the bankrupt a sum of money payable at a future time subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the committee may think fit. 5. Mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the bankrupt for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts. 6. Refer any dispute to arbitration, compromise all debts, claims, and liabilities, whether present or future, certain or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the bankrupt and any person who may have incurred any liability to the bankrupt, on the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally on such terms as may be agreed on. 7. Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, in respect of any debts provable under the bankruptcy. 8. Make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim, arising out of or incidental to the property of the bankrupt, made or capable of being made on the trustee by any person or by the trustee on any person. 9. Divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances cannot be readily or advantageously sold. The permission given for the purposes of this section shall not be a general permission to do all or any of the above-mentioned things, but shall only be a permission to do the particular thing or things for which permission is sought in the specified case or cases.

Imp. § 57.

Distribution of property.

Declaration and distribution of dividends. 56. 1. Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the trustee shall, with all convenient speed, declare and distribute dividends amongst the creditors who have proved their debts. 2. The first dividend, if any, shall be declared and distributed within four months after the conclusion of the first meeting of creditors, unless the trustee satisfies the committee of inspection that there is sufficient reason for postponing the declaration to a later date. 3. Subsequent dividends shall in the absence of sufficient reason to the contrary, be declared and distributed at intervals of not more than six months. 4. Before declaring a dividend the trustee shall cause notice of his intention to do so to be gazetted and published in a local newspaper, and shall also send reasonable notice thereof to each creditor mentioned in the bankrupt's statement who has not proved his debt. 5. When the trustee has declared a dividend, he shall send to each creditor who has proved, a notice showing the amount of the dividend, and when and how it is payable, and a statement in the prescribed form as to the particulars of the estate.

Imp. § 58.

Joint and separate dividends. 57. 1. Where one partner of a firm is adjudged bankrupt, a creditor to whom the bankrupt is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, shall not receive any dividend out of the separate property of the bankrupt, until all the separate creditors have received the full amount of their respective debts. 2. Where joint and separate properties are being administered, dividends of the joint and separate property shall, subject to any order to the contrary that may be made by the Court on the application of any person interested, be declared together; and the expenses of and incident to such dividends shall be fairly apportioned by the trustee between the joint and separate properties, regard being had to the work done for and the benefit received by each property.

Imp. § 59.

Provision for distant creditors, disputed claims, etc. 58. In the calculation and distribution of a dividend, the trustee shall make provision for debts provable in bankruptcy appearing from the bankrupt's statements or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant from the place where the trustee is acting, that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs, or to establish them if disputed, and also for debts provable in bankruptcy, the subject of claims not yet determined. He shall also make provision for any disputed proofs or claims, and for the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise, and, subject to the foregoing provisions, he shall distribute as dividend all money in hand.

Imp. § 60.

Right of creditor who has not proved before declaration of dividend. 59. Any creditor, who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the trustee, any dividend or dividends he may have failed to receive, before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved, by reason that he has not participated therein.

Imp. § 61.

Final dividend. 60. When the trustee has realized all the property of the bankrupt, or so much thereof as can, in the joint opinion of himself and the committee of inspection be realized without needlessly protracting the trusteeship, he shall declare a final dividend, but before doing so he shall give notice, in the prescribed manner, to the persons whose claims to be creditors have been notified to him, but not established to his satisfaction, that if they do not establish their claims to the satisfaction of the Court within a time limited by the notice, he will proceed to make a final dividend, without regard to their claims. After the expiration of the time so limited, or, if the Court on application by any such claimant grant him further time for establishing his claim, then on the expiration of such further time, the property of the bankrupt shall be divided among the creditors who have proved their debts, without regard to the claims of any other persons.

Imp. § 62.

No action for dividend. 61. No action for dividend shall lie against a trustee, but if the trustee refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

Imp. § 63.

Power to allow bankrupt to manage property. 62. 1. The trustee, with the permission of the committee of inspection, may appoint the bankrupt himself to superintend the management of the property of the bankrupt, or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the bankrupt for the benefit of his creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the trustee may direct. 2. The trustee may from time to time, with the permission of the committee of inspection, make such allowance as he may think just to the bankrupt out of his property for the support of the bankrupt and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding-up his estate, but any such allowance may be increased or reduced by the Court.

Imp. § 63.

Bankrupt's right to surplus. 63. The bankrupt shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest as by this Ordinance provided, and of the costs, charges, and expenses of the proceedings under the bankruptcy petition.

Imp. § 65.

Part IV. Receiver in Bankruptcy.

Status of receiver. Power to administer oaths. 64. 1. The duties of the receiver shall have relation both to the conduct of the debtor and to the administration of his estate. 2. All expressions referring to the trustee under a bankruptcy shall, unless the context otherwise requires, or this Ordinance otherwise provides, include the receiver when acting as trustee.

Duties of receiver as to the debtor's conduct. 65. As regards the debtor, it shall be the duty of the receiver: 1. To investigate the conduct of the debtor and to report to the Court, stating whether there is reason to believe that the debtor has committed any act which constitutes a felony or misdemeanour under this Ordinance, or which would justify the Court in refusing, suspending, or qualifying an order for his discharge. 2. To make such other reports concerning the conduct of the debtor as the Court may direct. 3. To take such part as may be directed by the Court in the public examination of the debtor. 4. To take such part, and give such assistance, in relation to the prosecution of any fraudulent debtor as the Court may direct or as may be required by the Attorney-General.

Duties of receiver as to debtor's estate. 66. 1. As regards the estate of the debtor, it shall be the duty of the receiver: a) Pending the appointment of a trustee, to act as interim receiver of the debtor's estate, and where a special manager is not appointed, as manager thereof; b) To authorize the special manager to raise money or make advances for the purposes of the estate in any case where, in the interests of the creditors, it appears necessary so to do; c) To summon and preside at the first meeting of creditors; d) To issue forms of proxy for use at the meeting of creditors; e) To report to creditors as to any proposal the debtor may have made with respect to the mode of liquidating his affairs; f) To advertise the receiving order, the date of the creditors' first meeting and of the debtor's public examination, and such other matters as it may be necessary to advertise; g) To act as trustee during any vacancy in the office of trustee. 2. For the purpose of his duties as an interim receiver or manager, the receiver shall have the same powers as if he were a receiver and manager appointed by the Supreme Court of Judicature in its general jurisdiction, but he shall, as far as practicable, consult the wishes of the creditors with respect to the management of the debtor's property, and may for that purpose, if he thinks it advisable, summon meetings of the persons claiming to be creditors, and he shall not, unless the Court otherwise order, incur any expense beyond what is requisite for the protection of the debtor's property or the disposing of perishable goods. Provided that when the debtor cannot himself prepare a proper statement of affairs, the receiver may, subject to any prescribed conditions, and at the expense of the estate, employ some person or persons to assist in the preparation of the statement of affairs. 3. The receiver shall account to the Court and pay over all moneys and deal with all securities in such manner as the Court may from time to time direct.

Imp. § 70.

Part V. Trustees in Bankruptcy.

Remuneration of trustee.

Remuneration of trustee. 67. When the creditors appoint any person to be trustee of a debtor's estate, his remuneration (if any) shall be fixed by an ordinary resolution of the creditors, or if the creditors so resolve by the committee of inspection.

2. If one-fourth in number or value of the creditors dissent from the resolution, or the bankrupt satisfies the Court that the remuneration, having regard to the amount realized by the trustee, after deducting any sums paid to secured creditors out of the proceeds of their securities, and to the amount distributed in dividend, is unnecessarily large, the Court shall fix the amount of the remuneration. 3. The resolution shall express what expenses the remuneration is to cover, and no liability shall attach to the bankrupt's estate, or to the creditors, in respect of any expenses which the remuneration is expressed to cover. 4. Where no remuneration has been voted to the trustee, he shall be allowed out of the bankrupt's estate such proper costs and expenses incurred by him in or about the proceedings of the bankruptcy as may be allowed on taxation. 5. A trustee shall not, under any circumstances whatever, make any arrangement for or accept from the bankrupt, or any solicitor, auctioneer, or any other person, who may be employed about a bankruptcy, any gift, remuneration, or pecuniary or other consideration or benefit whatever, beyond the remuneration fixed by the creditors and payable out of the estate, nor shall he make any arrangement for giving up, or give up, any part of his remuneration, either as receiver, manager, or trustee, to the bankrupt, or any solicitor or other person who may be employed about a bankruptcy.

Imp. § 72; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 15.

Costs.

Allowance and taxation of costs. 68. 1. Where a trustee or manager receives remuneration for his services as such, no payment shall be allowed in his accounts in respect of the performance by any other person, of the ordinary duties which are required by statute or rules to be performed by himself. 2. Where the trustee is a solicitor he may contract that the remuneration for his services as trustee shall include all professional services. 3. All bills and charges of solicitors, managers, accountants, auctioneers, brokers, and other persons, not being trustees, shall be taxed, and no payment in respect thereof shall be allowed in the trustee's accounts without proof of such taxation having been made. Satisfactory proof shall be given before passing such bills and charges, that the employment of such solicitors and other persons, in respect of the particular matters out of which such charges arise, has been duly sanctioned before the employment, except in cases of urgency, and in such cases it must be shown that no undue delay took place in obtaining the sanction. 4. Every such person shall, on request by the trustee (which request the trustee shall make a sufficient time before declaring a dividend), cause his bills of costs or charges to be taxed by the prescribed officer, and if he fails to do so within ten days after receipt of the request, or such further time as the Court on application may grant, the trustee shall declare and distribute the dividend without regard to any claim by him, and thereupon any such claim shall be forfeited as well against the trustee personally as against the estate.

Receipts, payments, accounts, audit.

Payment of money into bank. 69. 1. The trustee shall open an account with such bank as the creditors shall direct at their first meeting in his official name (as follows: "A.B. trustee of the property of C.D. a bankrupt,") and all moneys received by him under the bankruptcy shall be paid to that account. 2. Any interest recoverable in respect of the account shall be part of the assets of the estate. 3. If a trustee at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding twenty-five pounds, or such other amount as the Court in any particular case authorizes him to retain, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest, on the amount so retained in excess, at the rate of twenty pounds per centum per annum, and shall have no claim for remuneration unless the Court otherwise directs, and may be removed from his office by the Court, and shall be liable to pay any expense occasioned by reason of the default.

Imp. § 74.

Trustee not to pay into private account. 70. No trustee in bankruptcy or under any composition or scheme of arrangement shall pay any sums received by him as trustee to his private account.

Imp. § 75.

the Registrar, or as the Court shall direct, an account of his receipts and payments as such trustee. 2. The account shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form. 3. The Court shall cause the accounts so sent to be audited, and for the purposes of the audit the trustee shall furnish and produce all such books, accounts, vouchers, documents and information as may be required. 4. One copy of the account so audited and of any report thereon shall be filed with the Court, and the other shall be kept by the trustee or such other person as the Court may direct, and each copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or of the bankrupt or of any person interested.

Imp. § 78.

Trustee to furnish list of creditors. 72. 1. The trustee shall, whenever required by any creditor so to do, and on payment of the prescribed fee, furnish and transmit to such creditor, personally or by post, a list of the creditors, showing in such list the amount of the debt due to each of such creditors. 2. Any creditor may, with the concurrence of one-sixth of the creditors (including himself), at any time call upon the trustee to furnish and transmit to the creditors a statement of the accounts up to the date of such notice, and the trustee shall upon receipt of such notice, furnish and transmit such statement of the accounts. Provided that the person at whose instance the accounts are furnished shall deposit with the trustee a sum sufficient to pay the cost of furnishing and transmitting the accounts, such sum to be repaid to him out of the estate if the creditors or the Court so direct.

Imp. § 79; 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 16.

Books to be kept by trustee. 73. The trustee shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books, in which he shall from time to time cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and the bankrupt or any creditor of the bankrupt may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

Imp. § 80.

Calling the trustee to account. 74. The Court may on the application of any person interested, call the trustee to account for any misfeasance, neglect, or omission which may appear on his statements or in his accounts or otherwise, and may require the trustee to make good any loss which the estate of the bankruptcy may have sustained by the misfeasance, neglect, or omission.

Imp. § 81.

Release of trustee.

Release of trustee. 75. 1. When the trustee has realized all the property of the bankrupt, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realized without needlessly protracting the trusteeship, and distributed a final dividend, if any, or has ceased to act by reason of a composition having been approved, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Court shall on his application, cause a report of<sup>1)</sup> his accounts to be prepared, and on his complying with all the requirements of the Court, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor or person interested against the release of the trustee, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly. 2. Where the release of a trustee is withheld, the Court may, on the application of any creditor or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the trustee with the consequences of any act or default he may have done or made contrary to his duty. 3. An order of the Court releasing the trustee shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the bankrupt, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as trustee, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact. 4. Where a trustee has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office, and thereupon the receiver shall be trustee.

Official name.

Official name of trustee. 76. The trustee may sue and be sued by the official name of "trustee of the property of C.D., a bankrupt", inserting the name of the bankrupt, and by that name may hold property of every description and make

The creditors may, if they think fit, appoint more persons than one to the office of trustee, and when more persons than one are appointed they shall declare whether any act required or authorized to be done by the trustee is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons, but all such persons are in this Ordinance included under the term "trustee" and shall be joint-tenants of the property of the bankrupt. 2. The creditors may also appoint persons to act as trustees in succession in the event of one or more of the persons first named declining to accept the office of trustee, or failing to give security, or not being approved of by the Court.

The creditors may, by ordinary resolution, at a meeting specially called for that purpose, of which seven days' notice has been given, remove a trustee appointed by them, and may at the same or any subsequent meeting appoint another person to fill the vacancy as hereinafter provided in case of a vacancy in the office of trustee. 2. If a trustee is guilty of misconduct, or fails to perform his duties under this Ordinance or has become insolvent, or is by reason of lunacy, or continued illness, or absence, incapable of performing his duties, or, if the Court is of opinion that his connection with or relation to the bankrupt, or his estate, or any particular creditor, makes his continuance in the office of trustee undesirable in the interests of the creditors generally, or where in any other matter he has been removed from office on the ground of misconduct, the Court may, having due regard to the opinion of the creditors as expressed at a meeting summoned for that purpose, remove him from office.

Imp. § 86.

Proceedings on vacancy in office of trustee. 80. 1. If any vacancy occurs in the office of trustee, the creditors in general meeting may fill up such vacancy, and a general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing trustee, if there be one, or by the receiver on the requisition of any creditor, and thereupon the same proceedings shall be taken as in the case of a first appointment. 2. If the creditors do not within three weeks after the occurrence of a vacancy appoint a person to fill the vacancy, the receiver shall report the matter to the Court, and the Court may appoint a trustee; but in such case the creditors or the committee of inspection shall have the same power of appointing a trustee as in the case of a first appointment. 3. During any vacancy in the office of trustee the receiver shall act as trustee.

Imp. § 87.

Voting powers of trustee.

Limitation of voting powers of trustee. 81. The vote of the trustee, or of his partner, clerk, solicitor, or solicitor's clerk, either as creditor or as proxy for a creditor, shall not be reckoned in the majority required for passing any resolution affecting the remuneration or conduct of the trustee.

The trustee may from time to time summon general meetings of creditors for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the trustee or otherwise, may direct, or whenever any creditor, with the concurrence of one-sixth in value of the creditors (including himself), shall request him in writing so to do, and the trustee shall call such meeting accordingly within fourteen days. Provided that such creditor shall deposit with the trustee a sum sufficient to pay the cost of summoning the meeting, such sum to be repaid to him out of the estate if the creditors or the Court so direct. 3. The trustee may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the bankruptcy. 4. Where default is made by a trustee, debtor, or other person in obeying any order or direction given by the Court under any power conferred by this Ordinance, the Court may on the application of any person interested, order such defaulting trustee, debtor, or person to comply with the order or direction so given; and the Court may also, if it shall think fit, upon any such application make an immediate order for the committal of such defaulting trustee, debtor, or other person; provided that the power given by this subsection shall be deemed to be in addition to and not in substitution for any other right or remedy in respect of such default.

Where judgment has been obtained or proceedings are pending in any Court in respect of any scheduled debt, that fact shall be stated and the order or summons shall in each case be produced to the receiver. 6. The debtor shall verify by affidavit every statement of affairs, and shall state that he believes every statement therein contained to be true. 7. Upon the statement of affairs being filed, the receiver may appoint a day for the examination of the debtor, and shall together with a copy of the statement of affairs send a notice to all the creditors of the debtor stating the day and hour for such examination, which shall not be less than ten clear days from the day such notice shall have been posted or served. 8. Notice shall in like manner be sent to the debtor requiring him to produce all books of accounts, invoices, papers, summonses, or other documents relating to any debts owing by him or to him, or otherwise relating to the affairs of the debtor; and every non-compliance with such notice shall be an offence under this Ordinance unless the debtor had no intention to disobey such notice. 9. On the day appointed for the examination, the receiver shall examine the debtor on oath with reference to his statement, and may put such further questions and allow any creditor to ask such questions as the receiver may think fit, with a view of ascertaining the position of the debtor, the cause of his insolvency, the persons to whom he is indebted, or who are indebted to him, and of discovering all the property which is by this Ordinance divisible among the creditors of the debtor. For the purposes hereof the receiver shall have power to summon and examine witnesses and to administer oaths. The debtor and any such witness shall be bound to answer all questions put or allowed to be put by the receiver. Any person who in any examination upon oath before the receiver shall wilfully and corruptly give false evidence shall be guilty of perjury. 10. The examination of the debtor may if necessary be adjourned from time to time. 11. All answers modifying, altering, or explaining the statement of affairs, or giving additional information shall be taken down in writing, read over to or by the debtor, and signed by him. 12. On the appointment of a receiver all property divisible among the creditors of the debtor shall vest in the receiver, and the receiver shall forthwith proceed to realize the same by public or private sale. 13. The household goods, wearing apparel, and bedding of the debtor or his family and the tools and implements of his trade to the value in the aggregate of £10 shall not be divisible among the creditors of the debtor. 14. The Supreme Court or any inferior Court in which proceedings are pending by or against the debtor in respect of any liability shall on receiving notice of the receiving order, stay the proceedings and adjourn the same generally. Notice of any such proceedings shall be sent to the receiver and the receiver shall within six weeks from the date when such proceedings shall have been stayed, certify whether he intends to prosecute or defend the same on behalf of the debtor, and in the event of such proceedings continuing, the receiver shall be added as a party, and shall have the same rights as if he had been originally a party to such proceedings. 15. A receiver may send to any inferior Court the notice contained in Schedule IV hereto, and upon receipt thereof the clerk of such Court shall at three different sittings of such Court, read the same for the information of the public. 16. Any creditor of the debtor shall upon proof of his debt before the receiver be entitled to be scheduled as a creditor of the debtor for the amount of his proof; and any creditor may in the prescribed manner object to any scheduled debt. 17. Where any debt or liability is disputed and a compromise has not been effected, the validity thereof shall be determined in the ordinary course of law. 18. If the property of a debtor is insufficient to pay the costs of the administration of his estate, and his debts in full, he shall on a day to be fixed by the receiver, appear before the Court, and the Court may after hearing the report of the receiver, and the debtor, and any creditor or other person interested, as the Court shall think fit, make an order against the debtor for payment of his debts (including the costs of administration) by instalments or otherwise and either in full or to such extent as to the Court under the circumstances of the case appears practicable and reasonable, and subject to any conditions as to his future earnings or income which the Court may think just. 19. The Court may if it thinks fit examine upon oath the debtor and any other person for the purpose of obtaining any additional information or for elucidating any statement in the debtor's statement of affairs or in his examination, and may ask such questions as it thinks fit. 20. Every order for payment under subsection 18 shall state whether such payment is inclusive or exclusive of the property of the debtor divisible among his creditors. And all payments by the debtor shall be made to the receiver. 21. An order under subsection 18 shall extinguish all the debts and liabilities of the debtor incurred at or before the date of the receiving order. 22. The Court may if it thinks fit at any time vary or alter any order made under subsection 18 or may make a new order in lieu thereof in any of the following cases: a) Where the same has been obtained by fraud or misrepresentation; b) Where the debtor has omitted from his statement of affairs the name of any creditor, or has scheduled a creditor for a sum greater or less than that due to such creditor; c) Where at the date of the order the whole of the property distributable among his creditors has not been disclosed; d) Where the debtor has been convicted of any offence under this Ordinance or otherwise arising in the course of the administration of his property under this Ordinance. 23. Where it appears that a debtor is or was unable to pay any instalment by reason of illness or other unavoidable misfortune, the receiver may from time to time suspend the operation of the order until the next sitting of the Court, and the Court may suspend the operation of the order for such time as may be just or may vary or make a new order for payment by instalments. 24. If at any time after the expiration of two years after the date of any order made under subsection 18 the debtor shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order or of any substituted order in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit. 25. If the debtor makes default in payment of any instalment payable in pursuance of any order under this section, he shall, unless the contrary be proved, be deemed to have had since the date of the order the means to pay the sum in respect of which he has made default, and to have refused or neglected to pay the same, and the Court may commit the debtor to prison for any term not exceeding six weeks or until payment of the amount due. 26. The property of a debtor and all moneys paid in pursuance of any order shall be appropriated in satisfaction of the costs of the administration and of the costs incidental thereto and then in liquidation of the debts of the debtor. 27. Any person who after the date of the receiving order becomes a creditor of the debtor, shall on proof of his debt before the receiver, be scheduled as a creditor of the debtor for the amount of his proof, but shall not be entitled to any dividend until those creditors who are scheduled as having been creditors at the date of the order have been paid ten shillings in the pound. 28. A debtor against whom an order has been made under subsection 18 may at any time after compliance with such order, apply to the Court for a discharge, and the Court shall accordingly grant the same; provided that where any facts are proved, on proof of which the Court would be required to refuse, suspend, or attach conditions to the debtor's discharge under section 28, the Court may grant the discharge subject to such conditions, if any, as it thinks just. Provided that any debtor aggrieved by any such order may appeal to the Court of Appeal, and the Court of Appeal may hear such new or further evidence as it thinks fit, and shall make such order as shall under the circumstances of the case, seem just. 29. Subject to the provisions contained in this part of this Ordinance, the general provisions of this Ordinance shall apply so far as is practicable and so far as the same are not inconsistent with the provisions contained in this part of this Ordinance or with any rules made with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure. 30. If the debtor wilfully fails to perform any of the duties imposed upon him under this section or to comply with any notice duly served upon him, the receiver shall report the same to the Court, and the Court shall have power, after inquiry to adjudge the debtor to be guilty of a contempt of court and to punish him accordingly. 31. "Inferior Court" includes any Court having limited jurisdiction in civil matters. "Order" and "order made under subsection 18" shall include any substituted order.

Upon the prescribed notice being given to the legal representative of the deceased debtor, the Court may, in the prescribed manner, upon proof of the petitioner's debt, unless the Court is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the estate will be sufficient for the payment of the debts owing by the deceased, make an order for the administration in bankruptcy of the deceased debtor's estate, or may upon cause shewn dismiss such petition with or without costs. 3. A petition for administration under this section shall not be presented to the Court after proceedings have been commenced under any other jurisdiction of the Court for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate; but the Court exercising such other jurisdiction may in such case, if satisfied that the estate is insufficient to pay its debts, in the prescribed manner, make an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor under this Ordinance, and the like consequences shall ensue as under an administration order made on the petition of a creditor. 4. Notice to the legal representative of the deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under this section shall, in the event of an order for administration being made thereon, be deemed to be equivalent to notice of an act of bankruptcy, and after such notice no payment or transfer of property made by the legal representative shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the receiver; save as aforesaid, nothing in this section shall invalidate any payment made or any act or thing done in good faith by the legal representative before the date of the order for administration. 10. Where any part of the property of a debtor consists of land or any interest in land subject to the provisions of the Real Property Ordinance, No. 60, the Registrar-General shall at the request of the receiver or trustee and on production of an office copy of the receiving order or administration order, cause a note thereof to be endorsed on the grant or certificate of title evidencing title to such land or interest in land. 2. Where by virtue of this Ordinance or any rules made in pursuance thereof the property of a debtor is vested in a receiver or trustee and any part of such property consists of land or any interest in land subject to the provisions of the Real Property Ordinance, No. 60, the Registrar-General shall at the request of the receiver or trustee and on production of an office copy of the order or orders by virtue of which the property became so vested, cause such receiver or trustee as the case may be to be endorsed as proprietor of such land or interest in land on the grant or certificate of title and the duplicate thereof evidencing title to such land or interest in land. 3. Any such receiver or trustee shall for the purposes of the said Ordinance be deemed to be the registered proprietor of such land or interest in land.

Registration fee. 136. Upon registration of any order under either of the two preceding sections there shall be paid to the Registrar-General a fee of £1.

Repeal.

Repeal. 137. 1. The enactments described in the fifth Schedule hereto are hereby repealed. 2. The repeals effected by this Ordinance shall not affect: a) Anything done or suffered to be done before the commencement of this Ordinance under any Ordinance hereby repealed; nor b) Any right or privilege acquired, or duty imposed, or liability or disqualification incurred, under any Ordinance so repealed; nor c) Any fine, forfeiture, or other punishment incurred or to be incurred in respect of any offence committed or to be committed against any enactment so repealed; nor d) The institution or continuance of any proceeding or other remedy, whether under any enactment so repealed or otherwise, for ascertaining any such liability or disqualification, or enforcing or recovering any such fine, forfeiture, or punishment, as aforesaid. 3. Notwithstanding the repeal effected by this Ordinance, the proceedings under any bankruptcy petition, liquidation by arrangement, or composition with creditors under the Bankruptcy Ordinance, No. 51, pending at the commencement of this Ordinance, shall, except so far as any provision of this Ordinance is expressly applied to pending proceedings, continue, and all the provisions of the Bankruptcy Ordinance, No. 51, shall, except as aforesaid apply thereto, as if this Ordinance had not passed.

Imp. § 169.

Proceedings under Bankruptcy Ordinance No. 51. 138. After the commencement of this Ordinance no composition or liquidation by arrangement under the Bankruptcy Ordinance No. 51, shall be entered into or allowed without the sanction of the Court; and such sanction shall not be granted unless the composition or liquidation appears to the Court to be reasonable and calculated to benefit the general body of creditors.

Imp. § 170.

Schedules.

The First Schedule.

Meetings of Creditors.

1. The first meeting of creditors shall be summoned for a day not later than fourteen days after the date of the receiving order, unless the Court for any special reason deem it expedient that the meeting be summoned for a later day.

2. The receiver shall summon the meeting by giving not less than seven days' notice of the time and place thereof in the Royal Gazette and in a local paper if practicable.

3. The receiver shall also, as soon as practicable, send to each creditor mentioned in the debtor's statement of affairs a notice of the time and place of the first meeting of creditors, accompanied by a summary of the debtor's statement of affairs, including the causes of his failure, and any observations thereon which the receiver may think fit to make; but the proceedings at the first meeting shall not be invalidated by reason of any such notice or summary not having been sent or received before the meeting.

4. The meeting shall be held at such place as is in the opinion of the receiver most convenient for the majority of the creditors.

5. The receiver or the trustee may at any time summon a meeting of creditors, and shall do so whenever so directed by the Court, or so required by any provision contained in this Ordinance.

6. Where for any reason, no valid resolution or real determination has been arrived at by the creditors at the first meeting of creditors, the Court may if it thinks fit, order a fresh first meeting to be called.

7. Meetings subsequent to the first meeting shall be summoned by sending notice of the time and place thereof to each creditor at the address given in his proof, or if he has not proved, at the address given in the debtor's statement of affairs, or at such other address as may be known to the person summoning the meeting.

8. The receiver, or some person nominated by him, shall be the chairman at the first meeting. The chairman at subsequent meetings shall be such person as the meeting by resolution appoint.

9. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor at the first or any other meeting of creditors unless he has duly proved a debt provable in bankruptcy to be due to him from the debtor, and the proof has been duly lodged before the time appointed for the meeting.

10. A creditor shall not vote at any such meeting in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt, or any debt the value of which is not ascertained.

11. For the purpose of voting, a secured creditor shall, unless he surrenders his security, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to vote only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him, after deducting the value of his security. If he votes in respect of his whole debt he shall be deemed to have surrendered his security, unless the Court on application is satisfied that the omission to value the security has arisen from inadvertence.

12. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any debt on or secured by a current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him, unless he is willing to treat the liability to him thereon of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the debtor, and against whom a receiving order has not been made, as a security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof, and for the purposes of voting, but not for the purposes of dividend, to deduct it from his proof.

13. It shall be competent to the trustee or to the receiver, within twenty-eight days after a proof estimating the value of a security as aforesaid has been made use of in voting at any meeting, to require the creditor to give up the security for the benefit of the creditors generally on payment of the value so estimated, with an addition thereto of twenty per centum. Provided that where a creditor has put a value on such security, he may, at any time before he has been required to give up such security as aforesaid, correct such valuation by a new proof, and deduct such new value from his debt, but in that case such addition of twenty per centum shall not be made if the trustee requires the security to be given up.

14. If a receiving order is made against one partner of a firm, any creditor to whom that partner is indebted jointly with the other partners of the firm, or any of them, may prove his debt for the purpose of voting at any meeting of creditors, and shall be entitled to vote thereat.

15. The chairman of a meeting shall have power to admit or reject a proof for the purpose of voting, but his decision shall be subject to appeal to the Court. If he is in doubt whether the proof of a creditor should be admitted or rejected he shall mark the proof as objected to, and shall allow the creditor to vote, subject to the vote being declared invalid in the event of the objection being sustained.

16. A creditor may vote either in person or by proxy.

17. Every instrument of proxy shall be in the prescribed form, and shall be issued by the receiver, or, after the appointment of a trustee, by the trustee.

18. A creditor may give a general proxy to his manager or clerk, or any other person in his regular employment. In such case the instrument of proxy shall state the relation in which the person to act thereunder stands to the creditor.

19. A creditor may give a special proxy to any person to vote at any specified meeting or adjournment thereof for or against any specific resolution or for or against any specified person as trustee or member of a committee of inspection.

20. A proxy shall not be used unless it is deposited with the receiver or trustee before the meeting at which it is to be used.

21. Where it appears to the satisfaction of the Court that any solicitation has been used by or on behalf of a trustee or receiver in obtaining proxies, or in procuring the trusteeship or receivership, except by the direction of a meeting of creditors, the Court shall have power, if it think fit, to order that no remuneration shall be allowed to the person by whom or on whose behalf such solicitation may have been exercised, notwithstanding any resolution of the committee of inspection or of the creditors to the contrary.

22. A creditor may appoint the receiver of the debtor's estate to act in manner prescribed as his general or special proxy.

23. The chairman of a meeting may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time, and from place to place.

24. A meeting shall not be competent to act for any purpose, except the election of a chairman, the proving of debts, and the adjournment of the meeting, unless there are present, or represented thereat, at least three creditors, or all the creditors if their number does not exceed three.

25. If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of creditors is not present or represented, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, or to such other day as the chairman may appoint, not being less than seven or more than twenty-one days.

26. The chairman of every meeting shall cause minutes of the proceedings at the meeting to be drawn up, and fairly entered in a book kept for that purpose, and the minutes shall be signed by him or by the chairman of the next ensuing meeting.

27. No person acting either under a general or special proxy shall vote in favour of any resolution which would directly or indirectly place himself, his partner or employer, in a position to receive any remuneration out of the estate of the debtor otherwise than as a creditor rateably with the other creditors of the debtor. Provided that where any person holds special proxies to vote for the appointment of himself as trustee he may use the said proxies and vote accordingly.

The Second Schedule.

Proof of debts.

Proof in ordinary cases.

1. Every creditor shall prove his debt as soon as may be after the making of a receiving order.

2. A debt may be proved by delivering or sending through the post in a prepaid letter to the receiver, or, if a trustee has been appointed, to the trustee, an affidavit verifying the debt.

3. The affidavit may be made by the creditor himself, or by some person authorized by or on behalf of the creditor. If made by a person so authorized it shall state his authority and means of knowledge.

4. The affidavit shall contain or refer to a statement of account showing the particulars of the debt, and shall specify the vouchers, if any, by which the same can be substantiated. The receiver or trustee may at any time call for the production of the vouchers.

5. The affidavit shall state whether the creditor is or is not a secured creditor.

6. A creditor shall bear the cost of proving his debt unless the Court otherwise specially orders.

7. Every creditor who has lodged a proof shall be entitled to see and examine the proofs of other creditors before the first meeting, and at all reasonable times.

8. A creditor proving his debt shall deduct therefrom all trade discounts, but he shall not be compelled to deduct any discount, not exceeding eight per centum on the net amount of his claim, which he may have agreed to allow for payment in cash.

Proof by secured creditors.

9. If a secured creditor realizes his security, he may prove for the balance due to him after deducting the net amount realized.

10. If a secured creditor surrenders his security to the receiver or trustee for the general benefit of the creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

11. If a secured creditor does not either realize or surrender his security, he shall, before ranking for dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

12. a) Where a security is so valued the trustee may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value. b) If the trustee is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued be offered for sale at such times and on such terms and conditions as may be agreed on between the creditor and the trustee, or as, in default of such agreement, the Court may direct. If the sale be by public auction the creditor or the trustee on behalf of the estate may bid or purchase. c) Provided that the creditor may at any time by notice in writing, require the trustee to elect whether he will or will not exercise his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realized, and if the trustee does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor his election to exercise the power, he shall not be entitled to exercise it: and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the trustee, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

13. Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing to the satisfaction of the trustee, or the Court, that the valuation and proof were made bona fide on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but every such amendment shall be made at the cost of the creditor, and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the trustee shall allow the amendment without application to the Court.

14. Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with the foregoing rule, the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend which he may have received in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid out of any money for the time being available for dividend any dividend or share of dividend which he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend, but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

15. If a creditor after having valued his security subsequently realizes it, or if it is realized under the provisions of Rule 12, the net amount realized shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor, and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

16. If a secured creditor does not comply with the foregoing rules, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

17. Subject to the provisions of Rule 12, a creditor shall in no case receive more than twenty shillings in the pound, and interest as provided by this Ordinance.

Proof in respect of distinct contracts.

18. If a debtor was at the date of the receiving order liable in respect of distinct contracts as a member of two or more distinct firms, or as a sole contractor, and also as member of a firm, the circumstance that the firms are in whole or in part composed of the same individuals, or that the sole contractor is also one of the joint contractors, shall not prevent proof in respect of the contracts, against the properties respectively liable on the contracts.

Periodical payments.

19. Where any rent or other payment falls due at stated periods, and the receiving order is made at any time other than one of those periods, the person entitled to the rent or payment may prove for a proportionate part thereof up to the date of the order as if the rent or payment grew due from day to day.

Interest.

20. 1. On any debt or sum certain, payable at a certain time or otherwise, whereon interest is not reserved or agreed for, and which is overdue at the date of the receiving order and provable in bankruptcy, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum to the date of the order from the time when the debt or sum was payable, if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, and if payable otherwise, then from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment. 2. Where a debt has been proved upon a debtor's estate under this Ordinance, and such debt includes interest, or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, such interest or consideration shall, for purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of the creditor to receive out of the estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all debts proved in the estate have been paid in full.

Debt payable at a future time.

21. A creditor may prove for a debt not payable when the debtor committed an act of bankruptcy as if it were payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting only thereout a rebate of interest at the rate of eight pounds per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted.

Admission or rejection of proofs.

22. The trustee shall examine every proof and the grounds of the debt, and in writing admit or reject it, in whole or in part, or require further evidence in support of it. If he rejects a proof he shall state in writing to the creditor the grounds of the rejection.

23. If the trustee thinks that a proof has been improperly admitted, the Court may, on the application of the trustee after notice to the creditor who made the proof, expunge the proof or reduce its amount.

24. If a creditor is dissatisfied with the decision of the trustee in respect of a proof, the Court may on the application of the creditor reverse or vary the decision.

25. The Court may also expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor if the trustee declines to interfere in the matter, or in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the debtor.

26. For the purpose of any of his duties in relation to proofs, the trustee may take declarations which shall be in the form prescribed by the Rules.

27. The receiver before the appointment of a trustee shall have all the powers of a trustee with respect to the examination, admission, and rejection of proofs, and any act or decision of his in relation thereto shall be subject to the like appeal.

Jamaica.

Introduction.

History and government.

The island of Jamaica was discovered by Columbus in the year 1494. It remained in the possession of Spain until 1655, when, during the war between Great Britain and Spain, the island was taken by the British forces sent out to the West Indies by the Lord Protector, Oliver Cromwell. The Government of the Commonwealth at once determined to encourage settlers from Great Britain and also from the British Settlements in America and the West Indies. In March, 1656, the commanders of the British Parliamentary forces in Jamaica sent a despatch to the Lord Protector setting forth the steps they were taking to encourage the settlement in the island of British subjects, pursuant to the Lord Protector's instructions which they had received by the 'Marston Moor' on the 15th January, 1656. To make a beginning, they stated that thirty acre plots of land were being offered to each of the soldiers of the army of occupation. Various papers in the Public Record Office shew that Cromwell and the Government of the Commonwealth were desirous of settling the new possession on the same footing, more or less, as the other West Indian Settlements of Barbados and Nevis.

After the restoration of Charles the Second in 1660, a Royal Proclamation, dated 14th December, 1661, confirmed the rights of the British subjects settled there, and others going thither to their allotments of land, and declared that all children of natural born subjects of England to be born in Jamaica should from their respective births be reputed to be, and should be free denizens of England, and should have the same privileges to all intents and purposes as free-born subjects of England.

The King of Spain with forces from Cuba attempted the re-conquest of the island in 1658, but failed; after that no further attempts were made. In 1667 a Treaty of Peace and Alliance between Spain and Great Britain was concluded at Madrid, and in 1670 a further treaty was concluded at Madrid, for the purpose of settling then existing differences in America and other questions. By this second treaty it was agreed that the King of Great Britain, his heirs and successors, should have, hold, keep, and always possess in full right of sovereignty, seignior, possession, and propriety all the lands, countries, islands, colonies, and other places in the West Indies, or in any part of America, which the said King of Great Britain then held and possessed.

Serious constitutional questions in respect of the legislative power of the King over the Colony subsequently arose between the Legislative Assembly of Jamaica and the Government of England.

The King in his Commission to the Earl of Carlisle of the 1st March, 30 Charles II, appointed him Governor of Jamaica, and by another Commission of 3d November, 32 Charles II empowered the Governor with the advice and consent of the Council to convene General Assemblies of the freeholders and planters within the Island, and constituted such assembly to be the General Assembly of Jamaica with power, with the advice and consent of the Governor and the Council, to make laws, which were to be as agreeable as conveniently might be to the laws of England, provided that the same should be transmitted within three months for the King's allowance and approbation, failing which such laws were to be void and of none effect and the Governor was to have a power to veto any such laws.

In Francis Hanson's account of Jamaica, written in 1682, and prefixed to the first collection of the laws of Jamaica, it is stated that all the judges and justices in Jamaica determined all pleas there according to the laws of England, pursuant whereunto that island had been governed; that the Supreme Court of Judicature had the same jurisdiction as the Courts of King's Bench, Common Pleas and Exchequer at Westminster, and that a Court of Chancery had been constituted of the Governor assisted by Masters in Chancery.

By the Imperial Act 26 & 27 Vic. c. 31 the Cayman Islands were brought within the legislative power of the Legislature of Jamaica, and, subject to certain local regulations then in, or to come into, force, the laws then in force in Jamaica were to be deemed in force in the Cayman Islands so far as the same should be applicable.

In 1866 the Legislature of Jamaica passed two Acts: one 'to alter and amend the political constitution of the island,' and the other, an Act amending the same. By Imperial Act 29 & 30 Vic. c. 12 these two Acts, — the one abolishing absolutely the Legislative Council and House of Assembly, and the other empowering the Queen, in place of the legislature thus abolished, to create and constitute a government for the island and from time to time to alter and amend the same, — were to come into operation as soon as the assent thereto of the Queen in Council was proclaimed in Jamaica by the Governor.

In 1873 by Act of the Imperial Parliament (36 Vic. c. 6) the Queen was empowered on addresses from the Legislative Bodies of Jamaica and of the Turks and Caicos Islands to declare by Order in Council that those islands should be annexed to and form part of the Colony of Jamaica for all purposes whatsoever on such terms as the Queen should appoint. By Order in Council of 4th August, 1873, the terms and conditions on which the Turks and Caicos Islands were to form part of the Colony of Jamaica are set forth. By Letters Patent of March 3d, 1882, after reciting that possession of certain islands known as Morant Cays and Pedro Cays had been taken on behalf of the Crown in October, 1862, and in July, 1863, respectively, the Governor of Jamaica was authorized to make the islands dependencies of Jamaica by Proclamation, and accordingly by Proclamation of the 9th May, 1882 the annexation was declared on and from 1st June, 1882. By Order in Council dated 19th May, 1884 and amended by Order in Council dated 3d October, 1895, the Legislative Council was reconstituted of certain Government officials with the Governor as president, of such other persons, not exceeding ten, as the Crown should appoint, and of fourteen persons to be elected as therein provided.

By Letters Patent dated 29th July, 1887, the Crown declared that there should be a Captain-General and Governor-in-Chief of Jamaica and its dependencies and that appointment to the said office should be made by Commission under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet. The Patent declares the Governor's powers and authorities and the formalities to be observed by him on entering upon his office. It constitutes the Governor's Privy or Advisory Council; and enables the Governor to make grants of certain lands, to appoint Judges, Commissioners, and Justices of the Peace; to grant pardons, suspend government officers, and provides for the succession to the office on its becoming vacant; it requires all officers, civil and military, and other inhabitants of the colony to obey and assist the governor, and reserves powers to the Crown of revocation, alteration, and amendment. The Privy Council referred to in these Letters Patent now consists of the Lieutenant-Governors (if any), the senior Military Officer, the Colonial Secretary, the Attorney-General, and other persons named or approved of by the King.

Law in force.

Common Law. For all legal purposes Jamaica must be regarded as a settled colony; as the English took possession the few Spanish inhabitants departed, leaving only some few hundreds of their black slaves behind. No stipulations as to Spanish law are to be found in the treaties: and, since the island came into British possession, no law other than that of England has ever been in force there.

By the Jamaican Act of 1 George II, c. 1, § 22, re-enacted 8 Vic. c. 16, all such laws and statutes of England as had theretofore been acted upon as laws in the island were made perpetual. The Chief Justice of Jamaica (W. A. Scarlett) in 1825 stated for the information of the Royal Commission on the Administration of Justice in the West Indies that the common law of England prevailed there.

Mercantile Contracts. The English common law, as varied by Jamaican Acts, is the law of contracts. By Jamaican Act 9 Geo. IV. c. 20 the Imperial Act 9 Geo. IV, c. 14. was (with the omission of s. 7 as to executory contracts of sale of goods) extended to the Colony, and thereby in actions of debt or simple contract no acknowledgment or promise is to be evidence of a new or continuing contract, so as to take the case out of the Statute of Limitations (21 James I. c. 16, extended to the Colony by Jamaican Act 1 Geo. II c. 1), or deprive any party of the benefit thereof, unless such acknowledgment or promise be made in writing signed by the party chargeable. By Law 9 of 1869 any person, not admitted and enrolled in the Colony as an attorney, solicitor or proctor and not being a barrister-at-law, is subject to penalties for drawing up legal instruments for fee or reward or other remuneration.

The Mercantile Law Amendment Act (17 of 1872) enables the Court in all actions in the Supreme or District Courts (since Law 43 of 1887, the Resident Magistrate Courts) for breach of a contract to deliver specific goods for a price in money, to order execution against the defendant for delivery of the goods to the plaintiff on payment by him of the amount owing under the contract, without giving the defendant the option of retaining the same upon paying the damages assessed. A written guarantee to answer the debt of another person is not invalid by reason only that the consideration does not appear in writing, or by necessary inference from a written document. A guarantee on behalf of a person or on behalf of a firm or single person trading as a firm, made to a firm, or to a single person trading under the name of a firm, is not binding on the guarantor, in respect of anything done or omitted to be done after a change in the persons constituting the firm or in the person trading under the name of the firm, unless a contrary intention is expressed or implied. A surety who discharges a liability is entitled to an assignment of all securities held by the creditor and to stand in the place of the creditor for the purpose of all actions, either at law or in equity, in order to recover indemnification from the principal debtor for advances made and losses sustained as surety. All actions of account concerning the trade in merchandise between merchant and merchant, their factors, or servants, must be commenced within six years after the cause of action arises. Absence beyond seas, or the imprisonment of a creditor, does not, on that account only, extend the period of limitation in which actions are to be commenced as fixed by the Statute of Limitations (21 James I, c. 16, s. 3 and 4 Anne, c. 16, s. 17). Against joint debtors, as regards those not beyond the seas, the period of limitation within which the action must be brought is not extended by reason of one or more of the other joint debtors being beyond the seas; but on the return from beyond the seas of those debtors, the creditor is not barred as against them from his action by any judgment already obtained against such as were not beyond the seas. Acknowledgments or promises by agents duly authorised in writing have the same effect as the acknowledgments and promises in writing of their principals. No co-contractor or co-debtor loses the benefit of the Statute of Limitations, so as to become chargeable, by reason only of a payment made by any other co-contractor or co-debtor.

Sale of Goods. The Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893, was extended to the Colony by Law 12 of 1895 with the omission of section 22 as to sales in market overt.

Companies. In 1864 (Jamaican Act, 27 Vic. Sess. II, c. 4) an Act was passed for the incorporation and regulation of trading companies and other associations in Jamaica. The Act is divided into fifty-one sections. It is based on The Companies (Imperial) Act of 1862 (25 & 26 Vic. c. 89) so far as regards the formation of a company with limited liability under a memorandum and articles of association.

The memorandum and articles are required to be recorded in the office of the Island Secretary (now the Deputy Keeper of the Records); and thereupon the association becomes a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum of association, capable of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, having perpetual succession and a common seal, with power to hold lands. The certificate of the Deputy Keeper is conclusive evidence of due registration. The regulations as to shares and their transfer, and as to a register of members, annual lists of members, and liability of members on winding up, and as to directors, general meetings, voting and special resolutions, are adapted from the similar sections in the Imperial Act. Provisions as to winding up are not contained in this Act, but in the following year (1865) an Act was passed (Jamaican Act 28 Vic. c. 42) making provisions for the winding up of companies and associations in the Island. By the Law 23 of 1886 the Deputy Keeper of the Records must keep in the Record Office a Register of all companies, which is open to public inspection. The Companies Law, 1906 (No. 34), makes provisions for a change of name similar to the provisions in section 8, subsections (1) and (2) of the Imperial Companies Consolidation Act, 1908. It also enables the company to make changes in its share capital by conversion into stock, or, subject to an order of the Supreme Court, by reduction of capital generally, with provisions for the protection of creditors similar to those in section 49 of the Imperial Companies Consolidation Act 1908; and by special resolution to modify its memorandum of association if authorised to do so by its regulations as originally formed or subsequently altered by special resolution, so as to divide its capital into shares of smaller amount than that fixed by its memorandum of association.

By Law 4 of 1908 a company registered under the Jamaican Companies Acts 1864 to 1906 is empowered by special resolution to alter the provisions of its memorandum of association or deed of settlement with respect to the objects of the company, subject to confirmation by the Court, in accordance with provisions similar to those in section 9 of the Imperial Companies Consolidation Act, 1908.

Law 7 of 1909 provides for the registration of the memorandum of association, and empowers companies to change their names.

Partnership. In 1853, by the Jamaican Act 16 Vic. c. 21, limited partnerships were authorized in order, as the preamble of the Act stated, to encourage capitalists to embark their money in the business of commercial and other trading firms and to share in the profits of such business without incurring responsibility beyond the amount of their subscribed capital. No such limited partnerships were authorized in banking or insurance undertakings. The Act requires all persons desirous of forming such a partnership to sign a certificate of formation of limited partnership, disclosing the name of the firm, the nature of the business, and the names of the partners, distinguishing the general and special partners, and the amount of capital contributed by the special partners. This certificate, duly acknowledged and certified in accordance with the provisions of the Act, must be recorded in the office of the Island Secretary (now the Deputy Keeper of the Records) in a register which is open to public inspection, and further publicity is insured by requiring the certificate to be published in the Jamaican Gazette, and in default of such publication, the partnership is deemed a general co-partnership. The Act was slightly amended by the Law 16 of 1902, enabling the partnership to consist of one (instead of two) or more general partners. Subject to the provisions of these Jamaican Partnership Acts, the law of partnership is the same as that of England, and the Imperial Partnership Act of 1890, so far as it represents the rules of equity and common law applicable to partnership may be referred to for the law of Jamaica. Under the Bankruptcy Law, 33 of 1879, proceedings in bankruptcy may be instituted by or against any two or more partners in the name of their firm.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange (Imperial) Act of 1882 was by Law 32 of 1893 extended to Jamaica, and by Law 7 of 1907 the Bills of Exchange (Crossed Cheques) Act (Imperial) of 1906 was also extended to the Colony.

Maritime Law. The Supreme Court exercises admiralty jurisdiction under the authority of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1890. Its jurisdiction embraces all causes, civil and maritime, which are adjudicated upon according to the civil and maritime laws and customs of the High Court of Admiralty of England.

Bankruptcy. The Law of Bankruptcy is to be found in the following Jamaican Statutes. Law 25 of 1871, which repealed all laws then in force relating to Insolvency. This Law was, with the exception of a few sections, repealed by Law 33 of 1879, which at present remains the principal Bankruptcy Law of Jamaica. It was amended by Law 21 of 1882 (as to the commission payable to trustees in bankruptcy); by Law 8 of 1885 (as to goods, etc., in the possession, order, or disposition of debtors); by Law 21 of 1886 (as to married women trading separately); by Law 11 of 1888 (as to voluntary settlements, etc.); by Law 24 of 1892 (as to deceased bankrupts, orders of discharge); and by Laws 5 of 1894, and 8 of 1897 (as to unclaimed funds in bankruptcy); and by Law 38 of 1911 (as to undischarged bankrupts obtaining credit).

Courts and procedure.

Judicature. The Supreme Court of Judicature was originally established by Royal instructions in the reign of Charles II, confirmed by the Colonial Act 33 Charles II c. 23. By the Judicature Law, 24, of 1879, the Court was re-constituted by consolidating the then existing Supreme Court, the High Court of Chancery, the Incumbered Estates Court, the Court of Ordinary, the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes, the Chief Court of Bankruptcy and the Circuit Courts. This Supreme Court of Judicature Law is divided into two parts: Part 1, relating to the establishment, jurisdiction, and procedure of the Supreme Court; and Part 2, containing saving provisions in relation to the existing Judges, Officers, jurisdictions, and procedure.

The Supreme Court consists of three judges: the Chief Justice and two Puisne Judges appointed by Letters Patent under the Seal of the Island issued by the Governor in pursuance of a Royal warrant or instructions received by him through one of the Principal Secretaries of State. The Supreme Court is a superior court of record, with jurisdiction co-extensive with that of each of the several Courts which were by this Law consolidated to form the Supreme Court, and of the Judges of these several Courts, and of the Governor, as Chancellor or Ordinary, acting in any judicial capacity.

The jurisdiction, so far as regards procedure and practice, is exercised in the manner provided by this Law and the Civil Procedure Code, and the laws regulating criminal procedure, and by the rules and orders of the Court made pursuant to this Law, and in the absence of special provision in this Law, in such Code or Laws, or in such rules or orders of the Court, the jurisdiction is the same as that of the Courts whence the transfer was made.

The Law 25 of 1879 was passed for the purpose of repealing any Law making provision for matters for which better provision had been made by the Judicature Law, 24 of 1879, and the Civil Procedure Code of the same session: Law 39 of 1879. (Repealed by the Civil Procedure Code 1888, q. v. infra.)

Civil Procedure. The Civil Procedure Code, Law 40 of 1888, regulates under fifty-two titles the whole course of litigation from the first commencement of an action until the final decree or judgment is pronounced and the proceedings to enforce the same are instituted.

The Arbitration Law, 33 of 1900, makes a submission to arbitration by written agreement irrevocable, unless a contrary intention is expressed, and of the same effect as if made by order of the Supreme Court. In the absence of any expression of contrary intention all submissions are to be deemed to include the provisions of the Arbitration Law as to arbitrations, umpires, examination of witnesses on oath, awards, and costs. Power is given to the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof to stay proceedings commenced at law in matters under arbitration; and to appoint arbitrators and exercise control in other matters. The award of the arbitrator may by leave of the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof be enforced as a judgment or order of the Supreme Court.

References to the Registrar or a Special Referee may be made by the Supreme Court or a Judge thereof of questions arising in any cause or matter (other than criminal proceedings by the Crown), and by consent of parties the whole cause or matter may be thus referred. Reference by order of the Supreme Court, or a Judge thereof, makes the Registrar, Special Referee or arbitrator an officer of the Supreme Court, and subject to the Civil Procedure Code (except those sections repealed by this Arbitration Law), and the Rules of the Supreme Court under the Judicature Law, 1879.

By Law 22 of 1902<sup>w</sup> power is given to the Chief Justice, with the concurrence of the Puisne Judges of the Supreme Court, to make rules under the Judicature Law 1879 for the purpose of amending the Civil Procedure Code, 1888, and regulating the practice and procedure of the Supreme Court. Such rules are not to affect the mode of oral evidence in trials by jury or the rules of evidence or law relating to juries; nor to prejudice rights of trial by jury.

All rules must be submitted to the Legislative Council, and if annulled are void.

The jurisdiction of the Resident Magistrates' Courts, which by Law 43 of 1887 superseded the District Courts, including the City of Kingston Court, is by Law 28 of 1904 extended to common law actions arising from tort or contract on claims not exceeding £50 against defendants within the local jurisdiction of the Court, and by consent of both parties, to personal actions without limit as to amount. The Courts have jurisdiction to issue interpleader summonses in respect of claims to goods taken in execution under process of the Court; to grant replevins; to issue orders for the delivery up of the possession of land; to deal with claims for rent or mesne profits up to £50, and to entertain claims for re-entry in respect of land let at yearly rentals not exceeding £25, and plaints by the Crown for the recovery of possession from persons occupying without any title; and to determine disputes as to title to land not exceeding £12 annual value.

The Resident Magistrates' Courts exercise a local jurisdiction as to equitable claims in various suits against estates not exceeding £200 in amount.

Appeals to Privy Council. Under the Order in Council of 15th February, 1909, an appeal lies from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council in cases where the amount involved is £300, or over. The appeal must be brought within twenty one days, and security to an amount not exceeding £500 must be furnished within three months.

Application of Law.

Under the Colonial Act 1 Geo. II., c. 1, s. 22, re-enacted in 8 Vic. c. 16, s. 7, it is provided that all such laws and statutes of England as have been at any time esteemed, introduced, accepted, or received as laws on the Island, shall be deemed to be in force.

As to the interpretation of these sections, see 2 Chalmers's Opinions, p. 7. Where no trace can be discovered of an English statute having been acted on it will not be deemed to have been "esteemed, introduced, used, accepted, or received," within the meaning of § 22. — Magnus v. Sullivan, (1866), decided by the Jamaica Supreme Court, and cited in the Preface by E. St. John Branch, Attorney-General, to the Index to the Laws of Jamaica, p. 11. But § 22 applies only to statutes and such portion of the common law of England as are applicable to local circumstances. Jacquet v. Edwards (1867), decided by the Jamaica Supreme Court, and cited, ibid. Among the laws of a commercial nature enumerated in the Preface above cited are the following: 27 Eliz. c. 4, by Law No. 11 of 1888, § 2; 21 Jac. I. c. 16, by 9 Geo. 4. c. 20; 29 Car. II. c. 3., the Statute of Frauds, by Law No. 12 of 1895, § 57, which provides that the English Act is to continue in force except as to §§ 16 and 17.

Partnership.<sup>2)</sup>

a) 16 Vic. c. 21. An Act to authorize Limited Partnerships throughout the Island (1853).

Limited partnerships. Proviso. 1. From and after the first day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-three, limited partnerships may be established in this Island for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical, agricultural, or manufactory business, by two or more persons, upon the terms, with the rights and powers, and subject to the conditions, limitations, restrictions, and liabilities herein mentioned. Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize or empower any such limited partnership to be formed for the purpose of banking or making insurance.

Number, denomination, and liabilities of partners. 2. Such partnerships may consist of one or more persons, who shall be general partners, subject to the same liabilities and charges, and shall be entitled to the same benefits and advantages, as copartners are now by law liable to, chargeable with, and entitled to, and of one or more persons who shall contribute in actual cash payments, a specific sum, as capital, to the common stock, who shall be called special partners, but who shall not be liable for, nor chargeable with, the payment of the debts of the partnership, beyond the extent of the fund so subscribed by him or them to the capital of the co-partnership.

See Law No. 16 of 1892, § 1, infra.

Power of general partners. 3. The general partners only shall have power and authority to transact the business of, and sign for and bind, the partnership.

Persons desirous of forming partnership as general partners to make certificate. 4. The persons desirous of forming any such partnership as general partners shall make and severally sign a certificate, in the form to the Schedule of this Act marked with the letter A, which shall contain: First, The name or firm under which such partnership is to be conducted; Second, The general nature of the business so to be transacted; Third, The names of all the general and special partners interested therein, distinguishing which are general and which are special partners, and their respective places of residence; Fourth, The amount of capital which each special partner shall have contributed to the common stock; Fifth, The period at which the partnership is to commence, and the period at which it will terminate.

See Law No. 16 of 1892, § 2.

Certificate to be acknowledged by persons signing same. 5. The certificate shall be acknowledged by the several persons signing the same (where such persons shall be resident in this Island) before a Judge of the Supreme Court or Assize Court, Chairman of Quarter Sessions, or Stipendiary Justice. And such acknowledgment shall be made and certified in the same manner as the acknowledgment or probate of the execution of a conveyance of land.

Signature by attorney. 6. Where a special partner shall be absent from this Island, the certificate shall be signed and acknowledged by his lawful attorney or attorneys duly constituted and appointed either by a special power or by a general power containing a special authority to act in the premises, before a Judge, Chairman of Quarter Sessions, or Stipendiary Justice, as aforesaid; and such acknowledgment shall be made and certified in the same manner, and shall have the same validity, as the acknowledgment or probate of the execution of a conveyance of land. Provided always, that before the certificate shall be so signed and acknowledged, the special power or general power of attorney, as the case may be, shall be duly recorded in the Secretary's office of this Island.

Affidavit to be filed with certificate. 7. With the original certificate with the evidence of the acknowledgment thereof as before directed, shall be, an affidavit of one or more of the general partners, stating that the sums specified in the certificate to have been contributed by each of the special partners to the common stock have been actually and in good faith paid in cash.

Certificate to be recorded. 8. The certificate so acknowledged and certified shall be filed in the office of the Island Secretary, and shall also be recorded by him at large in a separate book to be kept by him for that purpose, in like manner and at the same rate of charges as the other records in his office, and shall be kept open to public inspection; and a copy certified by the Island Secretary shall be evidence in all Courts and places of the facts therein contained.

No partnership deemed to have been formed until certificate, etc., made, etc. 9. No such partnership shall be deemed to have been formed under the provisions of this Act until a certificate, probate, and affidavit shall have been made, acknowledged, filed, and recorded.

False statements in certificate. 10. If any person shall make any false statement in such certificate or affidavit, all the persons interested in such partnership shall be liable for all the engagements thereof as general partners; and the person making the affidavit shall be liable to all the pains and penalties of wilful and corrupt perjury.

Terms of partnership to be made public. 11. [As amended by Law No. 16 of 1892, § 4.] The terms of the partnership, after the certificate, probate, and affidavit shall have been so recorded and registered as aforesaid, shall be published for at least six weeks, immediately after such recording and registration, in the Jamaica Gazette by Authority, and in such two newspapers published in this Island as shall in each case be designated by the Attorney-General, by writing under his hand, and if such publication be not made the partnership shall be deemed general.

Renewal, etc., of partnership. 12. Every renewal, alteration, or continuance of such partnership beyond the time originally fixed for its duration, shall be certified, acknowledged, and recorded, and an affidavit made and filed, and notice given, in the same and like manner as herein required for the original formation of such partnership; and every such partnership which shall be renewed, altered, or continued without such re-registration shall be deemed and taken to be a general partnership.

What to be deemed a dissolution of partnership. 13. Every alteration which shall be made in the names of the partners, in the nature of the business, or in the capital or shares thereof, or in any other matter specified in the original certificate, shall be deemed a dissolution of the partnership; and every such partnership which shall in any manner be carried on after any such alteration shall have been made, shall be deemed and taken to be a general partnership, unless renewed as a special partnership, according to the provisions of this Act, in the manner herein described.

How partnership to be conducted. 14. The business of the partnership shall be conducted under a firm in which the names of all or some of the general partners only shall be used, without the addition of the word "company" or any other general term; and if the name of any special partner shall be used in such firm with his privity or consent, he shall be deemed and taken to be a general partner.

Actions to be brought by and against general partners only. 15. Actions and suits at law or in equity in relation to the business of the partnership may be brought and conducted by and against the general partners only, in the same manner as if there were no special partners.

Sum contributed by special partner not to be withdrawn, etc. 16. No part of the sum which any special partner shall have contributed to the capital stock shall be withdrawn by him, or paid or transferred to him, in the shape of dividends, profits, or otherwise, at any time during the continuance of the partnership; but any partner may annually receive lawful interest on the sum so contributed by him, if the payment of such interest shall not reduce the original amount of such capital; and if, after the payment of such interest, any profits shall remain to be divided, he may also receive his portion of such profits, and the same shall not be deducted from the principal paid by such partner.

Capital not to be reduced by payments to special partner. 17. If it shall appear that by the payment of interest or profits to any special partner the original capital has been reduced, the partner receiving the same shall be bound to restore the amount necessary to make good his share of capital, with interest thereon, from the time he received the same.

Special partner not to interfere in management. 18. A special partner may from time to time examine into the state and progress of the partnership concerns, and may advise as to their management; but he shall not transact any business in the name or on account of the partnership, nor be employed for that purpose, as agent, attorney, or otherwise; and if any such limited partner shall interfere, contrary to the provisions of this Act, he shall be deemed and taken to be a general partner.

General partners liable to account for each other and to special partners. 19. The general partners shall be liable to account for each other, and to the special partners, for their management of the partnership, both in law and equity, in like manner as other partners now are liable to.

Partner guilty of fraud liable civilly and criminally. 20. Every partner who shall be guilty of any fraud in the affairs of the partnership shall be liable, civilly, to the party injured, to the extent of his damage, and shall also be liable to an indictment for a misdemeanour, punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both, in the discretion of the Court by which he shall be tried.

Fraudulent assignments, etc., void. 21. Every sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of such partnership, made by such partnership when insolvent, or in contemplation of insolvency, or after or in the contemplation of the insolvency of any partner, with the intent of giving a preference to any creditor of such partnership or insolvent partner over other creditors of such partnership; and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given, by such partnership, under the like circumstances, and with the like intent, shall be void, as against the creditors of such partnership.

Fraudulent assignment, etc., by individual partner void. 22. Every such sale, assignment, or transfer of any of the property or effects of a general or special partner, made by such general or special partner when insolvent, or in contemplation of insolvency, or after or in contemplation of the insolvency of the partnership, with the intent of giving to any creditor of his own, or of the partnership, a preference over creditors of the partnership, and every judgment confessed, lien created, or security given by any such partner, under the like circumstances and with the like intent, shall be void as against the creditors of the partnership.

Breach of any provision of last two sections. 23. Every special partner who shall violate any provision of the two last preceding sections, or who shall concur in, or assent to, any such violation by the partnership, or by any individual partner, shall be liable as a general partner.

On dissolution special partner not to withdraw his capital until creditors satisfied. 24. On the dissolution, or in case of the insolvency or bankruptcy, of the partnership, no special partner shall, under any circumstances, be allowed to withdraw any part of his capital, or to claim as a creditor, until the claims of all the other creditors of the partnership, and all charges thereon, shall be fully paid and satisfied.

Provision as to dissolution. 25. No dissolution of such partnership by the acts of the parties shall take place previous to the time specified in the certificate of its formation or in the certificate of its renewal, until a notice of such dissolution shall have been filed and recorded in the secretary's office, and published once in each week, for four weeks, in the Jamaica Gazette by Authority, (or in case such Gazette shall cease to be published, then in such other newspaper as the Commissioners of Public Accounts shall direct).

See Law N. 16 of 1892, § 6, infra.

personal and real estate of such deceased contributory, and of compelling payment thereof of the money due.

Order conclusive evidence that moneys are due. 32. Any order made by the Court in pursuance of this Act upon any contributory shall, subject to the provisions herein contained for appealing against such order, be conclusive evidence that the moneys, if any, thereby appearing to be due, or ordered to be paid, are due; and all other pertinent matters stated in such order are to be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever, with the exception of proceedings taken against the real estate of any deceased contributory, in which case such order shall only be prima facie evidence for the purpose of charging his real estate, unless his heirs or devisees were on the list of contributories at the time of the order being made.

11. A company which has passed a special resolution for reducing its capital, may apply to the Court by petition for an order confirming the reduction, and on the hearing of the petition, the Court, if satisfied that with respect to every creditor of the company who, under the provisions of this Law, is entitled to object to the reduction, either his consent to the reduction has been obtained, or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined, or has been secured as hereinafter provided, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms, and subject to such conditions as it deems fit.

Right of creditors to object to reduction. 12. Where a company proposes to reduce its capital, every creditor of the company who, at the date fixed by the Court, is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the proposed reduction, and to be entered in the list of creditors who are so entitled to object. The Court shall settle a list of such creditors, and for that purpose shall ascertain as far as possible, without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of such creditors, and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a certain day or days within which creditors of the company, who are not entered on the list, are to claim to be so entered, or to be excluded from the right of objecting to the proposed reduction.

Court may dispense with consent of creditor, on company securing his debt.

13. Where a creditor whose name is entered on the list of creditors, and whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined, does not consent to the proposed reduction, the Court may (if it think fit) dispense with such consent, on the company securing the payment of the debt or claim of such creditor, by setting apart and appropriating in such manner as the Court may direct, a sum of such amount as is hereinafter mentioned, that is to say: 1. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is admitted by the company, or though not admitted, is such as the company are willing to set apart and appropriate, then the full amount of the debt or claim shall be set apart and appropriated. 2. If the full amount of the debt or claim of the creditor is not admitted by the company, and is not such that the company are willing to set apart and appropriate, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then the Court may, if it think fit, inquire into and adjudicate upon the validity of such debt or claim, and the amount for which the company may be liable in respect thereof, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up by the Court, and the amount fixed by the Court on such inquiry and adjudication shall be set apart and appropriated.

Imp. § 49.

Rights of creditors where reduction does not involve diminution of liability of shareholders, or repayment of paid-up capital. Publication of reasons for reducing capital. 14. Where the reduction of the capital of a company does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up capital: 1. The creditors of the company shall not, unless the Court otherwise direct, be entitled to object or required to consent to the reduction, and 2. It shall not be necessary before the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction to add, and the Court may, if it thinks it expedient so to do, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced," as mentioned in section 10 hereof. In any case that the Court thinks fit so to do, it may require the company to publish, in such manner as it thinks fit, the reasons for the reduction of its capital, with a view to give proper information to the public in relation to the reduction of its capital by the company, and if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to such reduction.

Imp. § 48.

Registration of order, etc., confirming special resolution. Notice of registration. Certificate of registration of order of Court, etc. 15. The Deputy Keeper of the Records, upon the production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order, and of a minute approved by the Court, showing with respect to the capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of such capital, the number of shares in which it is to be divided, the amount of each share, and the amount to be deemed at the date of registration of said minute to have been paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute; and, on the registration, the special resolution confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect. Notice of such registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct. The Deputy Keeper of the Records shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requisitions of this Law with respect to the reduction of capital have been complied with, and that the capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Imp. § 51.

Effect of minute of the Court when registered. 16. The minute, when registered, shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of association of the company, and shall be of the same validity, and subject to the same alterations, as if it had been originally contained in the memorandum of association; and, subject as in this Law mentioned, no member of the company, whether past or present, shall be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount which has been paid on such share, and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute.

Imp. § 51.

Rights of creditors not entered on list in consequence of ignorance. 17. If any creditor who is entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of the capital of a company under this law is, in consequence of his ignorance of the proceedings taken with a view to such reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and after such reduction the company is unable, within the meaning of the seventh section of the Act 28 Victoria, Chapter 42, to pay to the creditor the amount of such debt or claim, every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order and minute, relating to the reduction of the capital of the company, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of such debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day prior to such registration: and on the company being wound up, the Court, on the application of such creditor, and on proof that he was ignorant of the proceedings taken with a view to the reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, may, if it think fit, settle a list of such contributories accordingly, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on such list, in the same manner in all respects, as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding-up; but the provisions of this section shall not affect the rights of the contributories of the company among themselves.

Minute of Court to be embodied in every copy of memorandum of association. Penalty. 18. A minute, when registered, shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after its registration; and if any company makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, it shall incur a penalty, not exceeding one pound, for each copy in respect of which such default is made, and every director and manager of the company, who shall knowingly and wilfully authorize or permit such default shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 52.

Director, etc., wilfully concealing name or misrepresenting nature or amount of creditor's claim guilty of misdemeanour. 19. If any director, manager, or officer of the company, wilfully conceals the name of any creditor of the company, who is entitled to object to the proposed reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor of the company; or, if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in, or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

Imp. § 54.

Subdivision of shares.

Division of capital into shares of smaller amount. 20. Any company limited by shares may, by special resolution, so far modify the conditions contained in its memorandum of association, if authorized so to do by its regulations as originally framed, or as altered by special resolution, as by subdivision of its existing shares, or any of them, to divide its capital, or any part thereof, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by its memorandum of association. Provided, that in the subdivision of the existing shares, the proportion between the amount which is paid and the amount (if any) which is unpaid on each share of reduced amount, shall be the same as it was in the case of the existing share or shares, from which the share of reduced amount is derived.

Imp. § 41.

Statement of number of shares in copies of memorandum issued after subdivision. Penalties. 21. The statement of the number and amount of the shares into which the capital of the company is divided, contained in every copy of the memorandum of association issued after the passing of any such special resolution, shall be in accordance with such resolution; and any company which makes default in complying with the provisions of this section, shall incur a penalty not exceeding one pound, for each copy in respect of which such default is made, and every director and manager of the company, who knowingly or wilfully authorizes or permits such defaults, shall incur the like penalty.

Imp. § 41.

d) No. 35 of 1906. A Law in Aid of the Act 27 Vic. Session 2, Chap. 4, entitled An Act for the Incorporation and Regulation of Trading Companies and other Associations, and of the Act 28 Vic., Chapt. 42, entitled An Act for the Winding-up of Companies (23d June, 1906).

---

Incorporation and short title of Acts. 1. This law shall be read and construed as if it formed part of "An Act for the Incorporation and Regulation of Trading companies and other associations, (27 Victoria, session 2, chapter 4)" hereinafter called The Companies Act and of "An Act for the Winding up of Companies," (28 Victoria, chapter 42) hereinafter called the The Winding-up Act.

Voluntary winding-up of companies. 2. A company under the Companies Act may be wound up voluntarily: 1. Whenever the period, if any, fixed for the duration of the company by the articles of association expires, or whenever the event, if any, occurs, upon the occurrence of which it is provided by the articles of association that the company is to be dissolved, and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; 2. Whenever the company has passed a special resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily; 3. Whenever the company has passed an extraordinary resolution to the effect that it has been proved to their satisfaction that the company cannot, by reason of its liabilities, continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up the same. For the purposes of this Law, any resolution shall be deemed to be extraordinary, which is passed in such manner as would, if it had been confirmed by a subsequent meeting, have constituted a special resolution, as by the Companies Act defined.

Imp. § 162.

Commencement of voluntary winding-up. 3. A voluntary winding-up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing such winding-up.

Imp. § 163.

Cessation of business of company. 4. Whenever a company is wound up voluntarily, the company shall, from the date of the commencement of such winding-up, cease to carry on its business, except in so far as may be required for the beneficial winding-up thereof, and all transfers of shares, except transfers made to or with the sanction of the liquidators, or alteration in the status of the members of the company taking place after the commencement of such winding-up, shall be void; but its corporate state and all its corporate powers shall, notwithstanding it is otherwise provided by its regulations, continue until the affairs of the company are wound up.

Imp. § 164.

Publication of resolution for winding-up. 5. Notice of any special resolution, or extraordinary resolution, passed for winding up a company voluntarily, shall be given by advertisement in The Jamaica Gazette.

Imp. § 185.

Consequences ensuing upon voluntary winding-up. 6. The following consequences shall ensue upon the voluntary winding-up of a company: 1. The property of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu, and, subject thereto, shall, unless it be otherwise provided by the regulations of the company, be distributed amongst the members according to their rights and interests in the company; 2. Liquidators shall be appointed for the purpose of winding-up the affairs of the company and distributing the property; 3. The company in general meeting shall appoint such persons or person as it thinks fit, to be liquidators or liquidator, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to them or him; 4. If one person only is appointed, all the provisions herein contained in reference to several liquidators shall apply to him; 5. Upon the appointment of liquidators, all the powers of the directors shall cease, except in so far as the company in general meeting, or the liquidators, may sanction the continuance of such powers; 6. When several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them, as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two; 7. The liquidators may, without the sanction of the Court, exercise all powers by The Winding-up Act given to the official liquidator; 8. The liquidators may exercise the powers by The Winding-up Act given to the Court of settling the list of contributories of the company, and any list so settled, shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories; 9. The liquidators may, at any time after the passing of the resolution for winding up the company, and before they have ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, call on all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of contributories, to the extent of their liability, to pay all or any sums they deem necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding it up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories amongst themselves, and the liquidators may, in making a call, take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories upon whom the same is made, may partly or wholly fail to pay their respective portions of the same: 10. The liquidators shall pay the debts of the company, and adjust the rights of the contributories amongst themselves.

Imp. § 186.

Un-called share capital of company limited by guarantee to be assets. 7. Where a company limited by guarantee, and having a capital divided into shares, is being wound up voluntarily, any share capital that may not have been called up shall be deemed to be assets of the company, and to be a specialty debt due from each member to the company, to the extent of any sums that may be unpaid on any shares held by him, and payable at such time as may be appointed by the liquidators.

Delegation by company of power to appoint liquidators. 8. A company about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, may, by an extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors, or to any committee of its creditors, the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and supplying any vacancies in the appointment of liquidators, or may, by a like resolution, enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators, and the manner in which they are to be exercised; and any act done by the creditors, in pursuance of such delegated power, shall have the same effects as if it had been done by the company.

Imp. § 190.

Arrangement between company and its creditors binding subject to right of appeal. 9. Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be wound up voluntarily, or in the course of being wound up voluntarily, and its creditors, shall be binding on the company, if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors, if acceded to by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors, subject to such right of appeal as is hereinafter mentioned.

Imp. § 191.

Right of appeal to Court. 10. Any creditor or contributory of a company that has in manner aforesaid entered into any arrangement with its creditors, may, within three weeks from the date of the completion of such arrangement, appeal to the Court against such arrangement, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the same.

Imp. § 191.

Right to apply to the Court. 11. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidators, or any contributory, or any creditor of the company, may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the matter of such winding-up, or to exercise, as respects the enforcing of calls, or in respect of any other matter, all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court: and the Court, if satisfied that the determination of such question, or the required exercise of power, will be just and beneficial, may accede, wholly or partially, to such application, on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks fit, or it may make such other order or decree on such application as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 193.

General meetings of company being wound up to be summoned by liquidators. 12. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidators may, from time to time, during the continuance of such winding-up, summon general meetings of the company, for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special resolution, or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes they think fit; and, in the event of the winding-up continuing for more than one year, the liquidators shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year, and of each succeeding year, from the commencement of the winding-up, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before such meeting an account showing their acts and dealings and the manner in which the winding-up has been conducted during the preceding year.

Imp. § 194.

Power to fill vacancy in office of liquidator. 13. If any vacancy occurs in the office of liquidators appointed by the company, by death, resignation, or otherwise, the company in the general meeting, may, subject to any arrangement they may have entered into with their creditors, fill up such vacancy, and a general meeting for the purpose of filling up such vacancy may be convened by the continuing liquidators, if any, or by any contributory of the company, and shall be deemed to have been duly held, if held in manner prescribed by the regulations of the company, or in such other manner as may, on application by the continuing liquidator, if any, or by any contributory of the company, be determined by the Court.

Imp. § 189.

Power of the Court to appoint and remove liquidators. 14. If from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting in the case of a voluntary winding-up, the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator, or liquidators; the Court may also, on due cause shown, remove any liquidator, and appoint another liquidator to act in the matter of a voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 186.

Meeting of company to be called by liquidators when company fully wound up.

15. As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidators shall make up an account, showing the manner in which such winding-up has been conducted, and the property of the company disposed of; and thereupon they shall call a general meeting of the company, for the purpose of having the account laid before them, and hearing any explanation that may be given by the liquidators; the meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place, and object of such meeting; and such advertisement shall be published one month, at least, previously to the meeting, in The Jamaica Gazette.

Imp. § 195.

Return to be made to Deputy Keeper of the Records. Penalty for default. 16. The liquidators shall make a return to the Deputy Keeper of the Records of such meeting having been held, and of the date at which the same was held, and on the expiration of three months from the date of the registration of such return, the company shall be deemed to be dissolved; if the liquidators make default in making such return to the Deputy Keeper of the Records, they shall incur a penalty not exceeding five pounds, for every day during which such default continues, to be recoverable summarily before two justices of the peace.

Imp. § 195.

Costs of winding-up and remuneration of liquidators. 17. All costs, charges, and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding-up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidators, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

Imp. § 196.

Voluntary winding-up, not to bar right to have company wound up by the Court.

18. The voluntary winding-up of a company shall not be a bar to the right of any creditor of such company to have the same wound up by the Court, if the Court is of opinion that the rights of such creditor will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 197.

Adoption by the Court of proceedings taken in voluntary winding-up. 19. Where a company is in course of being wound up voluntarily, and proceedings are taken for the purpose of having the same wound up by the Court, the Court may, if it thinks fit, notwithstanding that it makes an order directing the company to be wound up by the Court, provide in such order, or in any other order, for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings taken in the course of the voluntary winding-up.

Imp. § 198.

Criminal prosecution of director, etc., by liquidators. 20. Where a company is being wound up altogether voluntarily, if it appear to the liquidators conducting such winding-up that any past or present director, manager, officer, or member of such company, has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company, for which he is criminally responsible, it shall be lawful for the liquidators, with the previous sanction of the Court, to prosecute such offender, and all expenses properly incurred by them in such prosecution shall be payable out of the assets of the company, in priority to all other liabilities.

Imp. § 217.

Mode of application to the Court. 21. Every application under the tenth, eleventh, or fourteenth section of this Law, shall be made by petition or motion, or, if the Judge shall so direct, by summons at chambers; and every application under the fifty-fifth section of The Winding-up Act, or the nineteenth section of this Law, shall be made by petition.

Winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court.

Order that may be made by the Court. 22. When a resolution has been passed by a company to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order directing that the voluntary winding-up should continue, but subject to such supervision of the Court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others, to apply to the Court, and generally, upon such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court thinks just.

Imp. § 199.

Petition for winding-up. 23. A petition praying wholly or in part that a voluntary winding-up should continue, but subject to the supervision of the Court, which winding-up is hereinafter referred to as a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits and actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding-up the company by the Court.

Imp. § 200.

Matters to be regarded by the Court in determining whether a winding-up shall be by the Court, or subject to its supervision. 24. The Court may, in determining whether a company is to be wound up altogether by the Court, or subject to the supervision of the Court, in the appointment of liquidator or liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding-up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories, as proved to it by any sufficient evidence, and may direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be summoned, held, and regulated in such manner as the Court directs, for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting, and to report the result of such meeting to the Court; in the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of the debts due to each creditor, and in the case of contributories, to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the regulations of the company.

Imp. § 201.

Power of Court to appoint additional liquidators. 25. Where any order is made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may, in such order or in any subsequent order, appoint any additional liquidator or liquidators, and any liquidators so appointed by the Court shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position, as if they had been appointed by the company; the Court may from time to time remove any liquidators so appointed by the Court, and fill up any vacancy occasioned by such removal, or by death or resignation.

Imp. § 202.

Powers of liquidators appointed to conduct winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court. 26. Where an order is made for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, the liquidators appointed to conduct such winding-up may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court, exercise all their powers, without the sanction or intervention of the Court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily; but, save as aforesaid, any order made by the Court for a winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court, shall for all purposes, including the staying of actions, suits, and other proceedings, be deemed to be an order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court, and shall confer full authority on the Court to make calls, or to enforce calls made by the liquidators, and to exercise all other powers which it might have exercised, if an order had been made for winding up the company altogether by the Court, and in the construction of the provisions whereby the Court is empowered to direct any act or thing to be done to or in favour of the official liquidators, the expression "official liquidators" shall be deemed to mean liquidators conducting the winding-up subject to the supervision of the Court.

Imp. § 203.

Appointment of liquidators where order for liquidation subject to supervision is superseded. 27. Where an order has been made for the winding-up of a company subject to the supervision of the Court, and such order is afterwards superseded by an order directing the company to be wound up compulsorily, the Court may, in such last-mentioned order, or in any subsequent order, appoint the voluntary liquidators, or any of them, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without the addition of any other person, to be official liquidator.

Imp. § 204.

Supplemental.

Evidence. 28. Where a company is being wound up, all books, accounts, and records of the company, and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

Imp. § 220.

Voluntary winding-up where business or property to be transferred to another company. 29. Where any company is proposed to be, or is in the course of being wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or a portion of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, the liquidators of the first-mentioned company may, with the sanction of a special resolution of the company by whom they were appointed, conferring either a general authority on the liquidators, or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive in compensation or part compensation for such transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in such other company, for the purpose of distribution amongst the members of the company being wound up, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the company being wound up may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests, or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of, or receive any other benefit from, the purchasing company; and any sale made or arrangement entered into by the liquidators in pursuance of this section, shall be binding on the members of the company being wound up; subject to this proviso, that if any member of the company being wound up, who has not voted in favour of the special resolution passed by the company of which he is a member, at either of the meetings for passing the same, expresses his dissent from any such special resolution in writing addressed to the liquidators, or one of them, and left at the registered office of the company, not later than seven days after the date of the meeting at which such special resolution was passed, such dissentient member may require the liquidators to do one of the following things, as the liquidators may prefer; that is to say, either to abstain from carrying such resolution into effect, or to purchase the interest held by such dissentient member at a price to be determined in manner hereinafter mentioned, such purchase money to be paid before the company is dissolved, and to be raised by the liquidators in such manner as may be determined by special resolution; no special resolution shall be deemed invalid for the purpose of this section, by reason that it has passed antecedently to or concurrently with any resolution for winding up the company, or for appointing liquidators; but, if an order be made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, such resolution shall not be of any validity unless it is sanctioned by the Court.

Imp. § 192.

Purchase of interest of dissentient member. 30. The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member, may be determined by agreement or by arbitration.

Imp. § 192.

Defunct companies.

Duties and powers of Deputy Keeper of the Records. 31. 1. Where the Deputy Keeper of the Records has reasonable cause to believe that a company, whether registered before or after the passing of this Law, is not carrying on business or in operation, he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation. 2. If the Deputy Keeper of the Records does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall, within fourteen days after the expiration of one month, send to the company by post, a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer has been received by the Deputy Keeper of the Records, and that if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in The Jamaica Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register. 3. If the Deputy Keeper of the Records either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer thereto, the Deputy Keeper of the Records may publish in The Jamaica Gazette and send to the company a notice that at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice, the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register, and the company will be dissolved. 4. At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the Deputy Keeper of the Records may, unless cause to the contrary be previously shown by such company, strike the name of such company off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in The Jamaica Gazette, and on the publication in The Jamaica Gazette, of such last mentioned notice, the company whose name is so struck off shall be dissolved: Provided, that the liability (if any) of every director, managing officer, and member of the company shall continue, and may be enforced, as if the company had not been dissolved. 5. If any company, or member, or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the name of such company having been struck off the register in pursuance of this section, the company, or member, or creditor may apply to the Supreme Court in which the company is liable to be wound up; and such Court, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business, or in operation, or otherwise that it is just so to do, may order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if the name thereof had never been struck off; and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position, as nearly as may be, as if the name of the company had never been struck off. 6. A letter or notice authorized or required for the purposes of this section to be sent to a company, may be sent by post addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, addressed to the care of some director or officer of the company, or, if there be no director or officer of the company whose name and address are known, to the Deputy Keeper of Records, the letter or notice (an identical form) may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum of the association, addressed to him at the address mentioned in that memorandum. 7. In the execution of his duties under this section, the Deputy Keeper of the Records shall conform to such regulations as may from time to time be made by the Keeper of the Records.

Imp. § 242.

Power of Deputy Keeper of Records when company being wound up and no liquidator is acting, etc. 32. Where a company is being wound up, and the Deputy Keeper of the Records has reasonable cause to believe that no liquidator is acting, or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of six consecutive months after notice by the Deputy Keeper of the Records demanding the returns has been sent by post to the registered address of the company, or to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the provisions of the last preceding section shall apply, in like manner as if the Deputy Keeper of the Records had not, within one month after sending the second letter therein mentioned, received any answer thereto.

Companies to which this Law applies. 33. This Law shall, except as otherwise expressed, apply to every company, whether formed before or after the commencement of this Law.

e) No. 36 of 1906. A Law to facilitate Compromises and Arrangements between Creditors and Shareholders of Companies in Liquidation. (23d June, 1906).

Short title. 1. This law may be cited as The Companies Arrangement Law, 1906.

Power of Court on summary application to sanction arrangement or compromise.

2. Imp. § 109.

Provisional order, when to be made. 23. As soon as may be after the presentation of a petition the Court, if satisfied by ex parte evidence or otherwise: a) In the case of a creditor's petition, of the petitioning creditor's debt and of the act or of one of the acts of bankruptcy alleged, or b) In the case of a debtor's own petition, that the debtor has duly filed the statement required under section 11 of this Law, shall make on the petition an order, in this Law referred to as a provisional order, that the affairs of the debtor shall be wound up and his property administered under the Law of bankruptcy.

Imp. § 5.

Where a provisional order is made on a creditor's petition, a copy of the order shall be served on the debtor in the prescribed manner, together with a notice that within a specified number of days the debtor may show cause why the provisional order should be revoked. Where the provisional order is made on the debtor's own petition it shall not be necessary to give such notice.

Imp. § 13.

Revocation of provisional order. 25. If the debtor within the time appointed shows to the satisfaction of the Court that either the proof of the petitioning creditor's debt, or of the act of bankruptcy, is insufficient, and if upon such showing no other sufficient petitioning creditor's debt or act of bankruptcy is proved, or if any ground is shown to exist which would render the making of a provisional order inequitable, the Court shall revoke the provisional order, and unless it sees good cause to the contrary shall order costs to be paid to the debtor.

Imp. § 7.

Order for debtor to file statement of his affairs, and service thereof. 26. If the provisional order is not so revoked, an order shall be served on the debtor, in the prescribed manner, requiring him to file in Court, within the specified number of days after the date of the service of the order, a statement verified in the prescribed manner, and containing the particulars specified in section 11 of this Law, and giving notice that if he does not do so the provisional order may, on the application of a creditor, be made an absolute order for bankruptcy, and that the bankruptcy will be gazetted.

All proceedings to recover any such debt shall, if not already stayed, be stayed upon notice of such order being given in manner prescribed, but the Court may, on application by any creditor or person interested, allow any proceedings commenced to be continued upon such terms and conditions as it thinks just. The provisions of this section shall not affect the power of any secured creditor to realize or otherwise deal with his security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realize or deal with the same if the section has not been passed.

Imp. § 9.

Relation back of provisional order. 29. The effect of the provisional order shall be deemed to have relation back to and to commence at the time of the act of bankruptcy being completed on which the provisional order is made, hereinafter referred to as the commencement of the bankruptcy, or, if the debtor is proved to have committed more acts of bankruptcy than one, to have relation back and to commence at the time of the first of the acts of bankruptcy proved to have been committed by the debtor within six months next preceding the date of the presentation of the petition; but the effect of the provisional order shall not relate to any act of bankruptcy prior to the one on which such order is made, unless at the time of committing such prior act the debtor was indebted to some creditor or creditors in a sum or sums sufficient to support a petition, and unless such debt or debts are still remaining due at the date of the provisional order.

Imp. § 43.

Imp. § 20. See Law No. 24 of 1892, § 13.

Duty of debtor to aid trustee. 32. When a provisional order has been made against a debtor, it shall become the duty of the debtor to the utmost of his power, so far as he may be required, to aid in the realization of his property, and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors, and subject to the provisions of this Law to submit to such examinations in respect of his property or his creditors as the trustee or the Court may require, and to execute such powers of attorney, conveyances, deeds, and instruments, and generally to do all such things in relation to his property, and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors, as the trustee or Court may reasonably require or as may be prescribed.

Imp. § 24.

When debtor punishable as for a contempt of court. 33. If the debtor wilfully fails to perform any of the duties imposed on him by this Law, or if he fails to deliver up possession of any part of his property, which is divisible amongst his creditors under this Law, and which may for the time being be in his possession or control, to the trustee or any person authorized by the Court to take possession thereof, he shall, in addition to any other punishment to which he may be subject be guilty of a contempt of court and may be punished accordingly.

Imp. § 24.

Meeting of creditors, and resolutions.

Meeting of creditors, when to be summoned. 34. The Court shall, as soon as practicable after the provisional order, summon a general meeting of the creditors of the debtor; but if under any of the foregoing provisions an absolute order for bankruptcy has been made against the debtor before the day appointed for such meeting, the meeting shall not be held.

Imp. § 15.

Meeting, how to be held and conducted, and as to voting thereat. 35. The meeting shall be held in the prescribed manner, and subject to the prescribed regulations as to the quorum of creditors, adjournment of meeting, and all other matters relating to the conduct of the meeting, or the proceedings thereat: Provided that: 1. A person shall not be entitled to vote as a creditor unless he has in the prescribed manner proved a debt that is due to him. 2. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any unliquidated or contingent debt or any debt the value of which is not ascertained. 3. A secured creditor shall, for the purpose of voting, be deemed to be a creditor only in respect of the balance (if any) due to him after deducting the value of his security; and the amount of such balance shall, until the security is realized, be determined or assessed in the prescribed manner. He may, however, give up or abandon the security, and thereupon he shall rank as a creditor in respect of the whole sum due to him. 4. A creditor shall not vote in respect of any current bill of exchange or promissory note held by him under discount, unless he is willing to treat the liability of every person who is liable thereon antecedently to the debtor, and whose estate is not in course of administration under this Law, as security in his hands, and to estimate the value thereof and deduct the same from his proof, in which case he shall, on application being made within the prescribed time by any person interested, give up such security for the benefit of the creditors of the debtor upon payment of such estimated value. Provided, that such estimate (except so far as the creditor may receive any payment as aforesaid in respect thereof) shall not prejudice the right of such creditor to receive from the estate of the debtor a dividend upon the whole amount of such bill or note; 5. Votes may be given either personally or by proxies as may be prescribed.

Imp. Sched. I, §§ 8—11.

Duty and power of trustee at meeting. 36. The trustee shall attend the meeting, and shall receive and decide upon proof of debts in the prescribed manner, and in so far as it may be necessary for determining the right of voting at such meeting.

Resolutions at meetings. 37. At the meeting the creditors may, by the votes of a majority in value of the creditors present, personally or by proxy: a) Resolve that the proceedings under the petition be stayed, and the affairs of the debtor wound up and his property administered under a deed of arrangement, the nature of which may or may not be specified in the resolution, or b) Resolve that adjudication of bankruptcy be made, and c) Resolve at their discretion, that a creditor to be named at such meeting shall be associated with the trustee to assist and advise the trustee in the administration of the debtor's estate, but the appointment of such creditor shall not affect the responsibility of the trustee. A creditor so appointed shall receive out of the debtor's estate such remuneration for his services as the Court may think fit.

Report to the Court as to resolutions. 38. The resolutions come to shall be filed with the proceedings, and reported by the trustee to the Court. The trustee shall report to the Court also in case no meeting is held, or no resolution come to.

Procedure on resolution for deed of arrangement. 39. If the resolution be that the proceedings under the petition be stayed, the Court shall make an order that the proceedings be stayed accordingly for such time as may be necessary to obtain the confirmation of a deed of arrangement as hereinafter provided, and such order may be made on such terms and subject to such conditions as the Court may think just.

Absolute order for bankruptcy, when to be made. 40. If no meeting is held, or if no resolution is come to, or if the resolution be that adjudication of bankruptcy be made, or if it is shewn to the satisfaction of the Court that there is no reasonable probability of the confirmation of a deed of arrangement and that delay will not be for the benefit of the creditors, the Court shall make an absolute order for bankruptcy against the debtor.

Proceedings under an order for a deed of arrangement.

Deed of arrangement how made, executed, proved and filed. Statement to accompany same. 41. Where an order is made that proceedings in bankruptcy against a debtor be stayed for such time as may be necessary to obtain the confirmation of a deed of arrangement, a deed may be entered into between a debtor and his creditors, subject to the following provisions: 1. The deed must be assented to by a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors of the debtor, and no creditor shall be reckoned in such majority unless he has proved his debt in manner prescribed. The assent of a creditor shall be testified by his signing the deed of arrangement, or some document in a form prescribed for that purpose. 2. The deed shall be acknowledged or proved in the manner provided by the Act 27 Victoria, Chapter 17. 3. When the deed has been executed by the debtor an attested copy thereof shall be filed in the Court. 4. There shall be filed with the deed: a) A list showing the debts and liabilities of the debtor, and the time when the same were contracted or incurred, and the considerations for the same, the names, residences, and occupations of his creditors, and the respective amounts due to them, and all securities held by them, and the date when such securities were respectively given; b) A detailed statement of his debts and property, and the estimated value thereof; c) An affidavit in the prescribed form by the debtor, or some person able to depose thereto, verifying such list and statement. The list or statement may be from time to time amended by leave of the Court, and every such amendment shall be in like manner verified by affidavit.

Consideration of deed by the Court. 42. At the time appointed for the confirmation of the deed, the Court shall on the application of any creditor of the debtor take the deed into consideration.

Proceeding when deed is not confirmed. 43. If there is no application to the Court to consider the deed, or if no deed has been filed, or if the Court does not confirm the deed, the Court shall order that the proceedings in bankruptcy shall forthwith continue from the point at which they were stayed, or if it thinks fit may order the adjournment of the consideration to allow time for the execution of the deed or another deed.

Proceeding on confirmation of deed. 44. If upon the consideration of the deed the Court is satisfied that the requirements of this Law have been complied with, it may in its discretion, by order, confirm the deed, and may make such order as to the further staying of any proceedings, or the annulling of any provisional order under the petition, as it thinks fit.

Confirmation of deed conclusive as to its validity. 45. The order of the Court confirming the deed shall be conclusive evidence of the validity of the deed, and after such order the deed shall not be liable to be impeached or disturbed in any Court on the ground of any thing being contained therein or omitted therefrom, or on any other ground whatsoever except in manner provided by this Law.

Administration of estate under confirmed deed. 46. If the deed is confirmed it shall be binding on all creditors, and all questions under it shall be determined by the Court according to the Law of Bankruptcy and every creditor under the deed shall be entitled to be paid his debt or, as the case may be, a dividend or composition thereon rateably with the other creditors of the arranging debtor, but all creditors who would be entitled to priority of payment under an adjudication of bankruptcy against the arranging debtor shall be entitled to the like priority under the deed, and regard shall be had to the rule in bankruptcy as to the application of joint or separate estate in payment of creditors.

Discharge of debtor when deed carried out. 47. The Court may at any time after the confirmation of the deed make an order for the discharge of the debtor in accordance with the terms of the deed, or if there are no terms relating to discharge then upon the report of the trustee that the arrangements under the deed have been fully carried out. Such order shall, except in so far as may be otherwise expressly provided in this Law, have all the effect of an unconditional discharge of a bankrupt as hereinafter mentioned made upon proceedings after an absolute order for bankruptcy.

When deed may be declared void, and effect thereof. 48. If at any time after the confirmation of the deed it appears to the Court that the debtor has not acted in good faith in relation to the bankruptcy proceedings before or under the deed, or is not assisting the trustee to the utmost of his power to administer the estate in accordance with the terms of the deed, or that for other reasons it is expedient or just, the Court may by order declare that the deed so far as regards any release to the debtor therein contained or provided for shall be void, and the deed shall accordingly be void to such extent, and the Court may without any further condition make an absolute order for bankruptcy against the debtor, which shall take effect from the time of the making thereof, provided that no act done in pursuance of a deed which has been confirmed shall be impeached or disturbed by reason of any such order, and in the administration of the property of the debtor thereafter regard shall be had to all payments made in pursuance of the deed.

As to deeds of arrangement in cases of partners. 49. This part of this Law shall apply to any case in which members of a partnership enter into a deed of arrangement with their creditors under the provisions of this Law, and any such deed of arrangement may be entered into with the joint creditors without any of the separate creditors being parties to or included in the deed, or with separate creditors without any of the joint creditors being parties to or included in the deed. Provided that in a distinct arrangement with any particular class of creditors the rule in bankruptcy respecting the application of joint or separate estate to the payment of creditors shall not be contravened.

As to assent of certain creditors in cases of partners. 50. Where a deed of arrangement is made by members of a partnership with their joint and separate creditors, any delay in obtaining, or failure to obtain, the assent of some or one of the classes of separate creditors shall not prevent the deed being confirmed so as to bind the joint creditors and any other class of separate creditors.

As to debt incurred, or increased, or forborne, by means of fraud. 51. Where a debtor who has executed a deed of arrangement has incurred or increased a debt or obtained forbearance thereof by fraud, he shall be liable to pay to the defrauded creditor the balance of such debt after deducting any sum or sums which may have been received by such creditor by way of composition or dividend under the deed, provided that such creditor has not assented to the deed in manner provided by this Law.

Rights of creditors against third parties not affected. 52. No creditor of the arranging debtor, whether assenting to the deed or not, shall be prejudicially affected by this part of this Law with respect to any right or remedy against any person other than the arranging debtor.

Administration of estate on confirmation of deed. 53. When the deed of arrangement is confirmed, the trustee shall proceed to administer the debtor's estate so as to give full effect to the deed, and subject to the provisions of this Law so far as the same may be applicable, but the debtor shall not be required to submit himself to the public examination of the Court.

See Law No. 24 of 1892, § 5.

The sitting may be adjourned as often as the Court thinks fit, and the debtor shall attend at each adjourned meeting. The Court may at such sitting take such evidence as it thinks necessary, and such evidence as may be rendered by the creditors, or the trustee, or the debtor, or any of them. For the purposes of the examination the Court, may take evidence viva voce, or by affidavit, or by interrogatories, or by commission, as it thinks fit. When the Court is satisfied that the debtor's affairs have been sufficiently investigated it may declare the examination finished.

If at any time after an absolute order for bankruptcy has been made against a debtor it appears to the Court that the debtor, having been engaged in any trading or other business, has not kept and produced proper books of account, papers, or vouchers, by means of which the trustee may be able to obtain a correct knowledge of his affairs, it may if it thinks fit order the debtor to be imprisoned in some convenient prison for any period not exceeding three months, unless good cause is shewn to the Court why such books, papers, and vouchers have not been kept and produced. 2. If the books of account in this section required to be kept and produced shall not have been kept written or printed in the English language, they shall not be deemed to be proper books of account within the meaning of this section unless for good cause shewn by the debtor the Court otherwise determines.

Debts incurred by breach of trust or recklessness or extravagance, how far punishable. 56. If at any time before an order of discharge is granted to a debtor it appears to the Court that the debtor has incurred or contracted any debt by means of a breach of trust, or without having had any reasonable or probable ground of expectation at the time when he incurred or contracted such debt of being able to pay the same, or that he has lived extravagantly or beyond his proper means, it may if it thinks fit order the debtor to be imprisoned in some convenient prison for any period not exceeding three months: Provided that if in the opinion of the Court the conduct of the debtor has rendered him liable to punishment for a misdemeanour under this Law, it may direct the prosecution of the debtor for such misdemeanour, and cause the trustee to prepare a statement of the case for the conduct of the prosecution.

Administration of debtor's estate after order absolute. 57. When an absolute order for bankruptcy has been made against a debtor the trustee shall proceed to administer the debtor's estate for the benefit of the creditors, subject to the provisions of this Law.

Extension of power to avoid certain voluntary settlements, etc., as against the representatives of deceased settlers whose estates are insolvent. 1. In the administration by the Court of the assets of any person dying after the passing of this Law, it shall be lawful for the Court, on the petition of any creditor or creditors of such deceased person whose claim, or claims together, against the estate would have been sufficient to support a petition in bankruptcy against such person had he not died, and on proof that the assets of such person were at the time of his death insufficient to pay his debts and liabilities in full, to order that any settlement of property made by such deceased person within the meaning of section 99 of the said Law of 1879, and except as therein excepted, or any conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon, or any payment, obligation, or judicial proceeding, made, incurred, taken, or suffered, by such person, — he being, at the time of making, taking, paying, or suffering, the same, unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own moneys, — in favour of any creditor or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving such creditor preference over the other creditors, and which settlement, conveyance, transfer, charge, payment, obligation or judicial proceeding, would have been void against the trustee in bankruptcy if a provisional order had taken effect against such deceased person at the moment of his death, shall be void as against the executor, administrator, receiver, or other person, charged with the administration of the assets of such deceased person: Provided that such petition shall be presented within six months after the death of such deceased person: Provided also that the proper funeral and testamentary expenses, incurred by the legal personal representative in and about the deceased person's estate, shall be deemed a preferential debt, and the payment thereof by the legal personal representative shall be valid, or, if the same have not been paid at the time of the making of any order under this section, they shall be payable in full out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts: Provided also that nothing herein shall be deemed to make the legal personal representative of such deceased person personally liable in respect of any payment made, or act or thing done, in good faith before the date of the order for the administration of the assets of such person by the Court.

Voluntary settlement defeasible by settler to be void as against trustee in bankruptcy. 2. Any settlement (within the meaning of the said section 99, and except as therein excepted) of real estate which would, under the provisions of the Statute 27 Elizabeth, c. 4, be void as against a subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration, shall, on a provisional order in bankruptcy taking effect against the settler, be void as against the trustee in bankruptcy; and the property comprised in such settlement shall vest in the trustee in like manner, and to the same extent, as if he had purchased the same from the settler for valuable consideration.

Voluntary expenditure of moneys on the property of another to be deemed a settlement if order in bankruptcy takes effect within two years against the person so expending the same. 3. The voluntary expenditure of any moneys by any person in building or making permanent improvements on the property of another shall be deemed to be a settlement of such moneys on such other person within the meaning of section 99 of the said Law; and if a provisional order in bankruptcy, as mentioned in the said section 99, take effect against the person making such expenditure within two years from the date of such expenditure, the trustee shall be entitled to recover, from the owner of the property benefited by such expenditure, an amount equal to the increase in the value of such property brought about by such expenditure, and shall have a lien on such property for such amount, and on the proceeds thereof if the same have been sold: Provided always that such lien shall not prevail against a bona fide purchaser for valuable consideration who at the time of the purchase, either had no notice of such expenditure as aforesaid, or if he had such notice had no notice of an act of bankruptcy, on the part of the person making the same, available for adjudication against him.

Any creditor may oppose discharge of a bankrupt. 4. In amendment of section 59 of the said Law, it is hereby provided that any creditor may oppose the discharge of a bankrupt, and shew cause why such discharge should be refused or postponed, or made subject to conditions, whether the trustee concur in such opposition or not.

See §§ 3 and 4 of Law 24 of 1892.

Power to grant discharge subject to conditions, extended. 5. And whereas doubts and differences have arisen with reference to the construction to be placed on the last paragraph of section 60 of the said Law, it is hereby provided that it shall under all circumstances be lawful for the Court in granting any order of discharge to a bankrupt, to grant the same subject to such of the conditions mentioned in section 61 of the said Law as appear to be just and reasonable under the circumstances, although it may not appear that the debtor has done any of the things mentioned in section 60 of the said Law, or section 7 of this Law, so as to justify the Court in refusing or suspending the said order.

See note to § 4, supra.

Bankruptcy of a firm, or of one or more partners, effect thereof on the partnership assets and on the property of each partner. 6. When a provisional order has been made against a firm of partners, all the separate property of each of the bankrupts, as well as all the joint property of the partnership, shall immediately pass to and vest in the trustee. Where a provisional order has been made against one partner in a firm, there shall pass to the trustee as well the separate property of such partner as the share to which, as between himself and his partners, the bankrupt is entitled in the assets of the firm after paying or providing for all the liabilities. For the purpose of ascertaining such share, the accounts of the firm shall be taken in such manner as the Court may direct. In the case of bankruptcy of partners, or of any member of a partnership firm, the joint estate shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of their joint debts, and the separate estate of each partner shall be applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. If there is a surplus of the separate estates it shall be dealt with as part of the joint estate. If there is a surplus of the joint estate it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate estates in proportion to the rights and interests of each partner in the joint estate.

Section 60 of Law 33 of 1879 enlarged. 7. In furtherance of section 60 of the said Law, it is hereby provided that if the Court, on an application to grant to any debtor an order of discharge, is of opinion: a) That the debtor has failed to deliver up to the trustee all books, papers, documents, or writings, in his custody or under his control, or to disclose the name of the person or persons in whose custody or under whose control the same may be, or b) That he has wilfully or negligently omitted to keep proper books of account, whether or not such omission has been with intent to conceal the true state of his affairs, or c) That he has failed to satisfy the Court as to the cause of his insolvency, or d) That his insolvency has arisen from rash or imprudent conduct as a trader, or e) That he has wilfully failed to perform any of the duties cast upon him by section 32 of the said Law, it may refuse an order of discharge, or may suspend the same from taking effect for such time as it thinks fit.

Imp. 53 & 54 Vic. c. 71, § 8. See note to § 4, supra.

As to the public examination of bankrupts, and as to evidence given thereat. 8. On the public examination of the debtor under section 54 of the said Law, the debtor shall be examined upon oath, and it shall be his duty to answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him. Such notes of the examination as the Court thinks proper shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to and signed by the debtor, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him; they shall also be open to the inspection of any creditor at all reasonable times.

Imp. § 17.

Creditors to extent of twenty pounds may proceed in bankruptcy against their debtors. 9. Section 8 of Law 33 of 1879 shall be and the same is hereby amended by substituting twenty pounds for fifty pounds in the said section as the minimum debt sufficient to authorize a creditor or creditors to present a bankruptcy petition under the said Law.

Debtor may apply to the Resident Magistrate's Court to be declared bankrupt. 10. Nothing in section 6 of Law 17 of 1877 shall be deemed to prevent any Resident Magistrate's Court from adjudicating a debtor bankrupt on his own petition: Provided that where any debtor presents any such petition he shall file along with it an affidavit of his belief that the whole of his estate is below the value of two hundred pounds.

g) No. 24 of 1892. The Bankruptcy Laws Further Amendment Law, 1892 (25th May, 1892).

Proceedings in bankruptcy against estate of a deceased debtor. 1. 1. Any creditor of a deceased debtor whose debt would have been sufficient to support a bankruptcy petition against such debtor, had he been alive, may present to the Court a petition praying for an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor according to the Law of Bankruptcy. 2. Upon notice being given to the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor, the Court may, upon proof of the petitioner's debt, unless the Court is satisfied that there is a reasonable probability that the estate will be sufficient for the payment of the debts owing by the deceased, make an order for the administration in bankruptcy of the deceased debtor's estate, or may upon cause shown dismiss such petition, with or without costs. 3. An order of administration under this section may be made at any time after the grant of probate or letters of administration. 4. A petition for administration under this section shall not be presented to the Court after proceedings have been commenced for the administration of the deceased debtor's estate; but the Court in which such proceedings have been taken may, in any such case in which it is made to appear that the estate is insufficient to pay its debts, make an order for the administration of the estate of the deceased debtor in bankruptcy, and thereupon the like consequences shall ensue as under an administration order made on the petition of a creditor. 5. Upon an order being made under this section for the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, the property of the debtor shall vest in the trustee in bankruptcy, and he shall forthwith proceed to realize and distribute the same in accordance with the provisions of the Laws of Bankruptcy. 6. In the administration by the trustee in bankruptcy of the assets of any person pursuant to an order under this section, the Court shall, on the petition of the trustee, have and exercise all the powers which, in the case of administration of the assets by the Court, it would have, under section 1 of Law 11 of 1888, on the petition of a creditor or creditors. 7. With the modifications hereinafter mentioned, all the provisions of the Bankruptcy Law, 1879, relating to the administration of the property of the bankrupt shall, so far as the same are applicable, apply to the case of an administration order under this section, in like manner as to an order of adjudication under the said Law. 8. In the administration of the property of the deceased debtor under an order made under this section, the trustee shall have regard to any claim by the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor to payment of the proper funeral and testamentary expenses incurred by him in and about the debtor's estate, and such claims shall be deemed a preferential debt under the order and be payable in full, out of the debtor's estate, in priority to all other debts. 9. If, on the administration of a deceased debtor's estate, any surplus remains in the hands of the trustee, after payment in full of all the debts due from the debtor, together with the costs of the administration and interest as provided by the Bankruptcy Law in case of bankruptcy, such surplus shall be paid over to the legal personal representative of the deceased debtor's estate, or dealt with in such other manner as may be ordered by the Court. 10. Notice to the legal personal representative of a deceased debtor of the presentation by a creditor of a petition under this section shall, in the event of an order for administration being made thereon, be deemed to be equivalent to notice of an act of bankruptcy, and after such notice no payment or transfer of property made by the legal personal representative shall operate as a discharge to him as between himself and the trustee; save as aforesaid, nothing in this section shall invalidate any payment made or any act or thing done in good faith by the legal personal representative before the date of the order for administration. 11. Unless the context otherwise requires, "Court" in this section means any Court in which the deceased debtor might immediately before his death have been adjudicated bankrupt.

Imp. § 125.

Report of trustee, its purport. Ad interim report. Further and full report. 2. It shall be the duty of the trustee, as soon as possible after the close of the public examination of the debtor, to make a report as to the state of the debtor's affairs, and as to the conduct of the debtor both before and during the bankruptcy, and shall note particularly any matters which in his judgment might constitute offences under the Bankruptcy Law, 1879, or any other Law relating to bankruptcy, or which would justify the Court under this Law in refusing, suspending, or qualifying, an order for the debtor's discharge. Such report may be made as to the bankrupt's affairs and estate, although, if the estate has not been fully administered, the trustee may be unable to speak precisely as to details: Provided that in such a case, if it appear to the Court, or the Judge before whom the debtor's examination was held, material to do so with reference to an application on the part of the debtor for an order of discharge, it shall be lawful for the Court or Judge aforesaid to order the trustee to make a further and exact report, and in any case where the estate of the debtor shall have been fully administered, the trustee shall make a further and full report to the Court as to the assets and liabilities of the debtor, and as to the dividend paid.

Certain sections of Laws not applicable to future bankrupts. 3. Section 60 of the Bankruptcy Law, 1879, and sections 4, 5 and 7, of Law 11 of 1888, shall cease to apply in the case of any person adjudicated bankrupt after the passing of this Law, and the provisions of the following section shall be deemed to be substituted for the same, and to be applicable to any such bankruptcy.

Provisions substituted for those sections in case of persons adjudicated bankrupt hereafter. Facts on proof of which Judge may refuse or suspend order of discharge or make it conditional. 4. 1. The debtor may, at any time after the filing of the report aforesaid, apply to the Judge hereinafter mentioned to appoint a day for hearing his application for an order of discharge. The Judge shall thereupon appoint a day and place for hearing such application. The prescribed notice of the time and place appointed shall be given in the prescribed manner. Any such application for an order of discharge shall be made in open Court, before the Judge before whom the examination of the debtor was held unless such Judge is ill, absent from the Island or otherwise incapacitated, in which case it shall be made (in the case of the Supreme Court) before another Judge, or, (in the case of the Resident Magistrate's Court,) before the locum tenens or successor of such Judge: Provided that in the case last aforesaid, it shall be lawful for such other Judge, or locum tenens or successor, to use the notes of the Judge before whom the examination was held, and to take such action upon them as the Judge himself might have taken under the provisions of this Law. 2. The trustee or any creditor may oppose the discharge, and may show cause why it should be refused, or postponed, or made subject to conditions. 3. Whether any such opposition is made or cause shown or not, the Court shall take into consideration the report of the trustee aforesaid, and may either grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge, or suspend the operation of the order for a specified time, or grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the debtor, or with respect to his after-acquired property: Provided that the Judge shall refuse the discharge in all cases where the debtor has been convicted of a misdemeanour under the Bankruptcy Law, 1879, or any other misdemeanour connected with his bankruptcy, or any felony connected with his bankruptcy, unless for special reasons to be stated in the order the Judge otherwise determines; and further if, on a consideration of the report of the trustee, or of representations made by the trustee or any creditor on the hearing of the application, and of the Judge's notes of the examination of the debtor, and of the evidence (if any) adduced at the hearing of the application, and after hearing the debtor in support of the same, it shall appear to the Judge that any of the facts hereinafter mentioned has been proved, the Judge shall either: a) Refuse the discharge, or b) Suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years, or c) Suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than ten shillings in the pound has been paid to the creditors, or d) Require the debtor, as a condition of his discharge, to consent to judgment being entered against him by the trustee for any balance, or part of any balance, of the debts provable under the bankruptcy which is not satisfied at the date of the discharge, such balance, or part of any balance, of the debts to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the debtor in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Judge may direct; but execution shall not be issued on the judgment without leave of the Court, which leave may be given on proof that the debtor has since his discharge acquired property or income available towards payment of his debts: Provided that if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of any order made under this section the debtor shall satisfy the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of such order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it may think fit. 4. The facts hereinbefore referred to are: a) That the debtor's assets are not of a value equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Judge that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible; b) That the debtor has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him, and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his bankruptcy; c) That the debtor has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent; d) That the debtor has contracted any debt provable in the bankruptcy without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (proof whereof shall lie on him) of being able to pay it; e) That the debtor has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets, or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities; f) That the debtor has brought on, or contributed to, his bankruptcy by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs; g) That the debtor has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any action properly brought against him; h) That the debtor has, within three months preceding the date of the act of bankruptcy, incurred unjustifiable expense by bringing a frivolous or vexatious action; i) That the debtor has, within three months preceding the date of the act of bankruptcy, when unable to pay his debts as they become due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors; j) That the debtor has, within three months preceding the date of the act of bankruptcy incurred liabilities, with a view of making his assets equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities; k) That the debtor has on any previous occasion been adjudged bankrupt, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors; l) That the debtor has been guilty of any fraud or fraudulent breach of trust; m) That the debtor has carried on trade by means of fictitious capital; n) That he is indebted for damages recovered in any action for malicious injury to the person, reputation, or property of the plaintiff therein; o) That he has failed to deliver up to the trustee all books, papers, documents, or writings, in his custody or under his control, or to disclose the name of the person or persons in whose custody or under whose control the same may be; p) That his insolvency has arisen from rash or hazardous conduct as a trader; or q) That he has wilfully failed to perform any of the duties cast upon him by section 32 of Law 33 of 1879. 5. For the purposes of this section a debtor's assets shall be deemed of a value equal to ten shillings in the pound on the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that the property of the debtor has realized, or is likely to realize, or with due care in realization might have realized, an amount equal to ten shillings in the pound on his unsecured liabilities, and a report by the trustee shall be prima facie evidence of the amount of such liabilities. 6. For the purposes of this section the report of the trustee shall be prima facie evidence of the statements therein contained. 7. Notice of the appointment by the Judge of the day for hearing the application for discharge shall be published in the prescribed manner, and sent fourteen days at least before the day so appointed to each creditor who has proved, and the Judge may hear the trustee, and may also hear any creditor. At the hearing the Judge may put such questions to the debtor and receive such evidence as it may think fit. 8. The powers of suspending and of attaching conditions to a debtor's discharge may be exercised concurrently. 9. A discharged bankrupt shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the trustee may require in the realization and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the trustee, and if he fails to do so he shall be guilty of a contempt of court; and the Court may also, if it thinks fit, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice to the validity of any sale, disposition, or payment, duly made or thing duly done, subsequent to the discharge but before its revocation.

Law 33 of 1879, section 53 modified. 5. Anything in section 53 of Law 33 of 1879 to the contrary notwithstanding, no deed of arrangement shall be taken into consideration by the Court until the debtor shall have submitted himself to the public examination of the Court, and the trustee shall have made a report to the Court as provided by section 2 of this Law; and no such deed as aforesaid shall be confirmed by the Court unless on a consideration of the report aforesaid it shall appear to be in the interest of the creditors generally that it should be confirmed. All applications to confirm any deed as aforesaid shall be made to the Judge before whom the public examination of the debtor was held, save as in section 4 (1) provided in cases where the services of such Judge are not available.

Appeal. 6. Where any application is by this Law required to be made in the first instance to a single Judge, an appeal shall lie from his order to the full Court.

Law 33 of 1879, section 8 enlarged. Further act of bankruptcy. 7. In furtherance of section 8 of Law 33 of 1879, it is hereby enacted that the following act on the part of any debtor may be alleged as an act of bankruptcy as the ground of any bankruptcy petition against such debtor. (that is to say): That the debtor has, in Jamaica or elsewhere, made any conveyance or transfer of his property or any part thereof, or created any charge thereon, which would, under any Law relating to bankruptcy, be void as a fraudulent preference if he were adjudged bankrupt.

Petition by debtor, requisites to order thereon. 8. No petition by a debtor against himself shall be received unless accompanied by the statement required by section 11 of Law 33 of 1879, nor shall any order be made on any such petition, unless a copy thereof shall have been served on the trustee, and the trustee, admitting such service, shall apply for such order. Any order made on such petition shall be an absolute order.

Power to trustee to sell bankrupt's land discharged from dower under order and terms protecting widows. 9. When any debtor married before the passing of the Dower Law, 1881, (Law 33 of 1881,) shall at the time of his bankruptcy be possessed of any land subject to dower, it shall be lawful for the Court or any Judge thereof, to order that the same be sold freed and discharged from all claim to dower; and the said land may thereafter be sold freed and discharged from all claim to dower in respect of the same on the part of the debtor's wife: Provided that no such order shall be made except on the term that the trustee selling the same shall set apart and invest in such manner as the Judge making the order shall direct, and subject to the order of the Court, such portion of the purchase money as to the Court may seem right as a provision for the debtor's said wife in lieu of her right to dower: Provided, however, that no purchaser shall be concerned to enquire whether such direction has been given or not, or whether the same, if given, has been complied with.

Warrant for seizure of debtor's property in possession of third party. 11. In furtherance of section 135 of Law 33 of 1879, it is hereby provided that if any person, on examination before the Court as in the said section provided, admits having in his possession any property of the debtor vested in the trustee under this Law, the Court may, on the application of the trustee, grant a warrant for the seizure of the same: Provided that if on such examination as aforesaid such person claims a lien on such property, such warrant shall authorize the seizure of the same only on satisfaction of such lien.

[12. Amends Law No. 33 of 1879, § 66, and is there incorporated.]

Law 33 of 1879. Proviso to section 31. 13. Section 31 of the said Law shall be read subject to the proviso that, until the provisional order is made absolute, it shall be the duty of the trustee, as far as the nature of the property seized permits, to preserve all such property in such state as to permit of its being returned to the debtor in the condition in which it was when it was seized, in the event of the revocation of the provisional order: Provided always that it shall be lawful for the trustee, before any such order is made absolute, to make sales of any part of the debtor's stock-in-trade or other property, and take such other action in the interests of the debtor's estate, as in the ordinary course of the debtor's business may seem expedient.

Incorporation of Laws. Short title. 14. Laws 33 of 1879, 21 of 1882, 8 of 1885, 11 of 1888, and this Law, shall be taken and read together as one Law, and may be cited as the Bankruptcy Laws, 1879—1892.

h) No. 38 of 1911. A Law further to amend Law 33 of 1879, entitled the Bankruptcy Law, 1879 (23d May, 1911).

Short title. 1. This Law may be cited as The Bankruptcy Amendment Law, 1911, and shall be construed as one with The Bankruptcy Law, 1879, hereinafter called the principal Law, and any Law amending the same or construed therewith.

[2—9. Amend Law 33 of 1879, §§ 8, 55, 145, and 153, and are there incorporated.]

Undischarged bankrupt obtaining credit to extent of £20 without informing creditor of his bankruptcy, guilty of misdemeanour. 10. Where an undischarged bankrupt under the principal Law or any Law amending the same, or this Law obtains credit to the extent of £20 or more from any person without informing such person that he is an undischarged bankrupt, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour, and on conviction thereof shall be liable to be imprisoned for any time not exceeding two years, with or without hard labour.

Bahamas.

Introduction.

History and government.

The Bahama Islands were discovered by Columbus in 1492. The Carib inhabitants were all transported to Cuba and the islands were abandoned. English settlers from the Bermudas then found their way to the islands, occupying one of them (Eleuthera) in 1646, and another of them (New Providence) in 1666. In the reign of Charles II., several of the islands were by Royal Charter granted to a proprietary body. No effective settlement by a regular government was made and the islands continued nominally under the English Crown until 1781, when they were surrendered to Spain; but, at the conclusion of the war, they were recovered by Great Britain, which was confirmed in their possession by the Treaty of Versailles of 1783.

The Treaty of Peace between the sovereigns of Great Britain and Spain signed at Versailles the 3d September 1783, by Article 7 stipulated that His Catholic Majesty should restore to Great Britain the islands of Providence and the Bahamas without exception in the same condition they were in when they were conquered by the arms of the King of Spain.

These historic facts of original occupancy by English subjects, subsequent conquest by Spain and ultimate cession to England by the Treaty of Versailles raised some questions as to whether the common law prevailed: these doubts, however, were settled by the House of Assembly in 1799, which by the Act of Assembly (40 George III. c. 2) declared that the common law of England, in all cases where the same had not been altered by any of the Acts or Statutes thereafter enumerated, or by any Act or Acts of Assembly of those Islands (except so much thereof as had relation to the ancient feudal tenures, to outlawries in civil suits, to the wager of law or of bataille, appeals of felony, writs of attain, and ecclesiastical matters) was and of right ought to be in full force in those islands as the same then was in that part of Great Britain called England.

It was also declared that certain Acts of the Imperial parliament therein enumerated were and of right ought to be in full force and virtue within and throughout that Colony as the same would be if the Bahama Islands had been therein expressly named or as if the aforesaid Acts and Statutes had been made and enacted by the Grand Assembly of those Islands.

By this clause 207 English Statutes were declared to be in force in the Colony. These English Statutes have been varied by reductions and additions by subsequent Acts of the General Assembly.

From the foregoing exposition of the events up to the date of the Treaty of Versailles of 1783 it may be concluded that the Bahamas come into the category of colonies acquired by settlement and are accordingly subject to the English common law.

Law in force.

Contract. The common law of England in respect of contracts prevails in the Colony. The capacity to contract is by Act of Assembly 47 Vic. c. 22 extended to a married woman, who can enter into and make herself liable to the extent of her separate property on any contract, and sue and be sued either in contract or in tort or otherwise in all respects as if she were a feme sole. In procedure for breach of contract the Court has power to decree specific performance. In determining questions arising out of contracts the judicial decisions of the English Courts are followed.

Agency. The law of agency follows the principle of the English common law that, whenever a person has a power as owner, or in his own right, to do a thing, he may do it by an agent. This capacity does not extend to infants, married women, idiots, lunatics, and other persons not sui juris. Frauds by an agent, or other person in a fiduciary relation, are the subject of a penal statute. The Act of Assembly 28 Vic. c. 37, sections 64 to 75 inclusive, renders bankers, merchants, brokers, attorneys, or other agents liable to criminal procedure who, being entrusted with any money or security for the payment of money, either for safe custody, or with directions in writing as to the application or delivery thereof, for any purpose or to any person therein named, in violation of good faith and contrary to the terms of such direction, convert the same to their own use and benefit or the use and benefit of any person other than the person by whom they have been so entrusted.

Factors or agents are liable to criminal procedure who, being intrusted for the purpose of sale or otherwise with the possession of goods or documents of title, contrary to or without the authority of their principals, for their own use and benefit and in violation of good faith, pledge the same for money borrowed or received by them. But no factor or agent is liable to prosecution for pledging such goods or documents if the same are not made a security for payment of any greater sum of money than the amount which at date of such pledge was due and owing to the agent from his principal, together with the amount of any bill of exchange drawn by, or on account of, the principal and accepted by the factor or agent.

Partnership. The Partnership Act, 1904 (Act of Assembly 4 Edw. VII, c. 36) follows the Imperial Partnership Act 1890 (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39) with such slight variations as the institutions of the Colony require. In the Act the expression "Court" means the Supreme Court (Bahamas) and includes the Chief Justice sitting in Chambers. The following Acts of the Imperial Parliament ceased to be applicable to the Colony, viz., 19 & 20 Vic. c. 97, as regards section 4 (under which a guarantee to or for a firm ceases upon a change in the firm unless otherwise agreed), and 28 & 29 Vic. c. 86, an Act to amend the Law of Partnership.

The Act fixed the 1st January, 1905, as the date on which it should come into operation.

Limited Partnerships. The Partnership Limited Liability Act, 1861 (Act of Assembly 24 Vic. c. 13), enables partnerships with limited liability for the transaction of any mercantile, mechanical, or manufacturing business within the Colony, except banking or insurance, to be formed by two or more persons upon the terms, with the rights and powers therein provided. In any such partnership one or more of the members thereof are called the general partners, and are jointly and severally responsible, as partners are by law; and the other members thereof are called the 'special partners', who each contribute a specific amount of capital in cash or other property at cash value to the common stock; and such special partners are not liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the amount of the fund so contributed by them respectively to the capital. The persons desirous of forming such a partnership must make and severally sign a memorandum of co-partnership in a form which is given in the Schedule to the Act and acknowledge the same before a notary public. This memorandum must contain: 1. The name and business address of the firm; 2. The general nature of the business; 3. The names and addresses of all the general and special partners, distinguishing which are general and which special partners; 4. The amount of capital stock contributed by each special partner to common stock; 5. The duration of the partnership, viz., dates of its commencement and termination.

The memorandum must be recorded in the office of the Registrar of Records for the Colony.

Companies. The Companies Act, 1866, (Act of Assembly 29 Vic. c. 5), enables any five or more persons by subscribing their names to a memorandum of association, and otherwise complying with the requisitions contained in the Act in respect of registration, to form an incorporated company with or without limited liability.

The liability of the members may by the memorandum of association be limited either to the amount (if any) unpaid on the shares held by them, or to the amount they undertake to contribute to the assets in the event of its being wound up.

The memorandum of association must contain: 1. The name of the proposed company with the addition of the word "Limited"; 2. The part of the Colony in which the registered office is situated; 3. The objects of the company; 4. A declaration that the liability of members is limited; 5. The amount of capital divided into shares of certain fixed amount therein specified.

No subscriber may take less than one share and each subscriber must write opposite his name the number of shares he takes.

The memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee follows the form prescribed in the Companies Act (Imperial) 1862.

The memorandum of association may be accompanied by articles of association prescribing such regulations for the company as the subscribers to the memorandum of association deem expedient, expressed in separate paragraphs and signed by them. The memorandum of association and the articles of association, if any, must be delivered to the Registrar of Records for the Colony, who must enter the same in the book of record and issue his certificate that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company, that the company is limited. Thereupon the company is a body corporate with like power and capacities as follow the incorporation of an English company under the Companies Act, 1862. The provisions of the Imperial Companies Act are followed in most respects as to distribution of capital, and liability of members on winding up, and for the protection of the creditors and the members, and as to service of writs, notices, or other documents.

The Companies Act, 1868 (Act of Assembly 31 Vic. c. 4), came into force on 1st July 1868. It amends the principal Act of 1866 by enabling a company formed under it after the commencement of the amending Act to provide by its memorandum of association that the liability of the directors or managers or the managing director shall be unlimited, and varies the principal Act accordingly in respect of the contributions of such directors or managers in the event of winding up. The Act enables the Governor to authorize by licence under his hand and seal any company formed for the purpose of promoting commerce, art, science, religion, charity or any other useful object to be registered under the principal Act with exemption from the requirement as to the use of the word "limited" as any part of its name. The provisions as to contracts in the Companies Act, 1867, (Imperial) s. 37 and the winding-up clauses of the Companies Act, 1862, (Imperial) are adopted. The Companies Act of 1891 (Act of Assembly 54 Victoria Cap. 3) enables companies incorporated in any place outside the Colony to hold lands in the Colony in their corporate name subject to the provisions as to registration and the record of the Act or Charter of incorporation in the office of the Registrar of Records of the Colony, and the enabling power of the Act has a retrospective operation in respect of of grants, leases, or conveyances of lands, made prior to the passing of the Act to companies formed and incorporated outside the Colony, provided that any such company within twelve months (afterwards by a subsequent Act of Assembly extended to seven years) observes and fulfils the provisions therein contained as to registration.

Any question arising on company law will be adjudicated upon by the Colonial Court in accordance with the decisions of the English Courts.

Sale of Goods. The common law of England prevails in the Colony as regards the contract of a bargain and sale of goods. This general law and all decided cases upon it are now subject to the interpretation of the Sale of Goods (Imperial) Act, 1893, which was adopted in the year 1904 by Act of Assembly 4 Edw. VII. c. 37.

Common Carriers. There does not appear to be any Colonial Act which varies the English common law relating to common carriers on land. No Act of Assembly similar to the Imperial Carriers Act 1830 (11 Geo. IV. & 1 Will. IV. c. 68) is on the Colonial Statute book.

Factors. The Mercantile Agents Act 1904 (Act of Assembly 4 Edw. VII, c. 7) follows verbatim the Factors Act (Imperial) 1889. The law established by this Act and the English cases deciding questions of interpretation arising out of it must be taken as the law of the Colony on factors and mercantile agents. The law as to criminal frauds by agents has already been referred to.

Bills of Exchange. The Act of Assembly to declare British Sterling Money to be the money of account throughout the Colony (1838, 2 Vict. c. 4) applies to (inter alia) bills, notes, drafts, acceptances, etc.

The Act of Assembly to regulate interest on moneys and recovery of damages on protested Bills of Exchange (1859, 22 Vict. c. 17) fixes six per cent. per annum as the legal rate of interest, unless otherwise stipulated for and specified. Bills of exchange drawn or negotiated within the Colony upon any part of Europe and returned under protest for want of acceptance or non-payment or other cause are subject to re-exchange as damages for the same at the rate of twenty pounds per centum, and in case of non-payment of such protested bills and damages within three days after demand by the possessor on the drawer or endorser, then the bill with the damages thereon bears the legal interest at the rate of six per centum per annum.

In the case of bills on places other than Europe the above provisions apply except that the re-exchange as damages is fifteen pounds per centum and not twenty pounds.

The Imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1832, was declared to be in force in the Colony by a local Act of 1892, and the changes made therein by the Imperial Bills of Exchange (Crossed Cheques) Act, 1906, were adopted in 1908.

Bankruptcy. The Bankruptcy Act, 1870 (Act of Assembly 33 Vic. c. 13), which came into force on 1st January, 1871, still remains the only bankruptcy statute in the Colony. It enables a single creditor, or two or more creditors, in respect of a debt of not less than fifty pounds to present a petition to the Court for adjudication in bankruptcy. Part I of the Act relates to the adjudication and vesting of the debtor's property, which, on the order of adjudication being made, vests in the Registrar and then in the trustee in bankruptcy on his appointment by the creditors. The property of the bankrupt becomes divisible amongst his creditors in proportion to the debts proved by them in the bankruptcy. Part II of the Act deals with the administration of the property by the trustee in bankruptcy, the payment of dividends and the discharge of the bankrupt. Part III regulates the constitution and powers of the Court having jurisdiction in bankruptcy both in respect of the bankrupt and of all the property devolving on the trustee in bankruptcy.

No privileges as a member of either the Legislative Council or House of Assembly avails any person in bankruptcy. The Act also regulates liquidation by arrangement and composition with creditors.

By Act of Assembly 34 Vic. c. 5 (1871) the Court is enabled to arrest any debtor who appears to be likely to quit the Colony.

Imperial Acts extended to the Colony. By the Supreme Court Act, 1896, it is enacted that whenever by Act of Assembly it is declared that any Act of the Imperial Parliament shall extend to the Colony such Act shall be deemed to extend thereto so far as the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and the local circumstances permit.

Maritime Law. The English maritime law relating to affreightment, bills of lading, marine insurance, average, liens, bottomry and respondentia is followed by the Supreme Court of the Colony. As regards the Admiralty jurisdiction the Imperial Statute — The Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act 1890 — (53 & 54 Vic. c. 27) regulates the procedure.

Courts and procedure.

Legal Procedure. The Supreme Court of the Bahamas is constituted by the Supreme Court Act of 1896. Prior to this year there were several Courts in the Colony: the General Court; the Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes; and the Court of Bankruptcy; each distinct in itself and, except the Court of Bankruptcy, presided over by the same Judge. There were also a Court of Ordinary with jurisdiction in testamentary cases and cases of intestacy, presided over by the Governor of the Colony, and a Court of Common Pleas with a limited civil jurisdiction. By the Supreme Court Act of 1896 all these Courts were united and consolidated with the Colonial Court of Admiralty, and constituted a Supreme Court of Judicature for the Colony, which was declared to be a Superior Court of Record. This Act determines that the constitution of the Supreme Court shall consist of a Chief Justice. It settles the rules for admission of counsel and attorneys to practise. The jurisdiction and powers of the Court are set out, with rights of appeal to Privy Council. Its procedure, whereby law and equity are to be administered concurrently, is defined and regulated: and its arrangements as to Sittings are set out. By subsequent Acts the Supreme Court Act has been amended, but not so as to affect the above general statement of its scope and jurisdiction.

Application of Law.

a) 40 Geo. 3, c. 2. An Act to declare how much of the Laws of England are practicable within the Bahama Islands, and ought to be in force within the Same (1799).

Common law of England, with certain exceptions, declared in force in the colony.

1. The common law of England, in all cases where the same hath not been altered by any of the Acts or Statutes hereinafter enumerated; or by any Act or Acts of Assembly of these Islands (except so much thereof as hath relation to the ancient feudal tenures, to outlawries in civil suits, to the wager of law or of batall, appeals of felony, writs of attaint and ecclesiastical matters), is and of right ought to be in full force within these Islands, as the same now is in that part of Great Britain called England.

Declares certain Acts of Parliament to be in force. 2. The several Statutes and Acts of Parliament, hereinafter particularly enumerated and mentioned, are, and of right ought to be, in full force and virtue within and throughout this Colony, as the same would be if the Bahama Islands were therein expressly named, or as if the aforesaid Acts and Statutes had been made and enacted by the General Assembly of these Islands<sup>3)</sup>.

<sup>1)</sup> Official compilation within the meaning of the Imperial Evidence (Colonial Statutes) Act, 1907. — Acts, 1908, c. 32. — <sup>2)</sup> As in force 1st January, 1912. — <sup>3)</sup> By this clause, 207 Acts of Parliament were originally declared to be in force within the Colony; but as the clause has been from time to time in part repealed by other Acts of Assembly, the titles of the Statutes were set forth in the Acts as they usually appear in the printed copies of the Statutes, and have also been so set forth in the previous reprints, but it has been thought unnecessary to insert them in the present reprint.

In any such partnership one or more of the members thereof shall be called the general partners and shall be jointly and severally responsible, as partners now are by law; and the other members thereof shall be called the special partners, who shall each contribute a specific amount of capital, in cash, or other property, at cash value, to the common stock; and such special partners shall not be liable for the debts of the partnership beyond the amount of the fund so contributed by them respectively to the capital; except as hereinafter provided.

Form of memorandum of co-partnership. 3. In the memorandum of copartnership, to be made and filed as hereinbefore provided, the name or names of the general partner or partners only shall be inserted in the name of the firm under which the business of the partnership is to be carried on, with the word "limited" as the last word of such name, and the business of the partnership shall be carried on under no other name than that inserted in the memorandum of the copartnership, and the general partners only shall be authorized to transact the business of the partnership, and to sign for and bind the same; and if any special partner's name be inserted, with his privity or consent, in the name of the firm under which the business of the said copartnership is carried on, or if any special partner, in any manner, transact business, or contract in the name of the partnership, he shall incur all the liability in respect thereof which he otherwise would have if this Act had not been passed.

Memorandum, declaration and certificate in renewal or continuance of partnership. 12. No capital stock to be withdrawn during continuance of partnership. 17. During the continuance of the partnership, under the provisions of this Act, no part of the capital stock thereof shall be withdrawn, nor any division of interest or profits be made, so as to reduce said capital stock below the sum stated in the memorandum above mentioned; and if, at any time, during the continuance, or, at the termination of the partnership, the property or assets shall not be sufficient to pay the partnership debts, then the special partners shall, severally, be held responsible for all sums by them received, withdrawn, or divided, with interest thereon, from the time when such partnership is declared by the official assignee, or other person authorized by the provisions, of the thirty-fifth clause of this Act, to have become insolvent, such sums with interest thereon, to be over and above the amount which such special partners may have contributed upon the formation of such partnership.

Suits, except in certain cases, to be prosecuted by and against general partners.

15. All suits, respecting the business of such partnership, shall be prosecuted by, and against, the general partnership only; except in those cases in which provision is made in this Act, that the partnership shall not be deemed a partnership; and excepting, also, those cases where special partners shall be held, generally, responsible, on account of any sums, by them received, or withdrawn, from the common stock, as above provided.

No dissolution, except by operation of law, to take place before the time specified, unless with notice given. 16. # Barbados.

Introduction.

History and government.

This Colony was acquired by settlement and the English common law prevails.

The Barbados Act to provide for the celebration of the Tercentenary of the first taking possession of Barbados by Englishmen by setting apart a day to be observed as a public holiday (Act of Assembly, 1905, No. 29) in its preamble recites that in 1605 the passengers and crew of the English ship "Olive Blossom" landed and took possession of the island for their sovereign by erecting a cross and cutting on the bark of a tree the words and letters "James K. of E. and this island": that no settlement was then made: that the possession so taken was never challenged by any other power: that Barbados remained in the constructive possession of the Crown of England until, after the lapse of some twenty years, actual and permanent possession was taken and that the island had never during three hundred years been out of the possession of the Crown of England, or subject to foreign rule.

The historic fact that Barbados was acquired by the settlement of British subjects who on settling there became entitled to enjoy all the rights, liberties, and privileges they had possessed in England, makes it clear that the English common law, written and unwritten, at the date of the first settlement became the law of the community until varied by the House of Assembly. This House of Assembly by the Royal Charter of Charles I. dated 1627 to the Earl of Carlisle possesses irrevocably as against the Crown the right of self-taxation and self-legislation. The King by this Charter recognized that the laws were to be made "de et cum consilio, assensu, et approbatione liberorum tenentium ejusdem provincie, vel majoris partis eorumdem."

Courts and procedure.

Legal Procedure. The Common Pleas Act, No. 18—1911, consolidates and amends the Acts of the island relating to the Court of Common Pleas. It constitutes one Court of Common Pleas for the island to be called "The Court of Common Pleas for Barbados" and to have cognizance of all pleas and jurisdiction in all cases as fully and amply in the island of Barbados as the Courts of Common Pleas, Queen's Bench and Exchequer lawfully had in England on the 29th July, 1853.

The Court consists of the Chief Judge and the sittings are held in Bridgetown on the days appointed by the Act. But for the despatch of such business as may be transacted without a jury the Judge is empowered to sit either in Court, or at his Chambers, on such days as he may appoint and by public notice declare.

Procedure in Chancery. The Chancery Act, No. 5—1906, enacts that the chief judge of Barbados shall be Vice-Chancellor of Barbados and shall have power to hear and determine all causes, matters, and things depending in the Court of Chancery, either as a Court of Law, or as a Court of Equity. The Court of Chancery thus constituted is to determine any questions of law which in the judgment of the Court are necessary to be decided previously to the decision of the equitable question at issue between the parties. In all cases where equitable relief or remedy is sought, whether the title to such relief or remedy is or is not dependent upon a legal right, every question of law or fact cognizable in a Court of Common Law, on the determination of which the title to such relief or remedy depends, is to be determined by or before the Court. The Act consolidates and repeals all Acts relating to the Court of Chancery and prescribes the procedure from the first issue of the Writ to the final decree and the proceedings thereon. Appeals lie to the Court of Appeal. (Vide infra.)

The Court of Appeal. The present Court of Appeal in Barbados stands established by the conjoint operation of Royal Orders in Council and Acts of the Imperial Parliament and the Colony's Legislature.

By the Imperial Act of 1850, (13 & 14 Vic. c. 15), the Queen in Council was empowered to give effect by Order in Council to any Act of (inter alia) the Barbados legislature making provisions for the Court of Appeal for the Colony in pursuance of the enabling powers contained in the Imperial Act. Pursuant to this Act the Barbados legislature by their Act, 1857, No. 1, made provisions for the establishment of a Court of Appeal to consist of the Chief Justices of Barbados, St. Lucia, St. Vincent, Grenada, and Tobago. The Court is a Court of Record, sitting in Bridgetown, Barbados, and entertains appeals against judgments, decrees, etc., of the Chief Justice of Barbados in his legal, equitable and ecclesiastical jurisdiction. By an Order in Council made on 3rd March, 1859, the Court of Appeal, thus provisionally created by the Barbados Act, is established under the name of "The Court of Appeal of the Windward Islands." Pursuant to the Imperial Act of 1850 the Order gives power for any person by leave of the Court to appeal to the Privy Council from any final judgment, etc., of the Court of Appeal in cases where the sum, claim, or matter at issue, is of or above the amount or value of £300.

Consequent upon Tobago being annexed to Trinidad by Imperial Act of 1887 the House of Assembly passed an Act (No. 11—1890) amending the Barbados Court of Appeal Act of 1857 by making the Court consist of the Chief Justices of Barbados and Grenada, and the Chief Justice of St. Vincent and St. Lucia. The amendment is in fact the exclusion of the Chief Justice of Tobago. By an Order in Council made on 9th February, 1901, the original order in Council of 3d March, 1859, was amended by excluding the Chief Justice of Tobago from being one of the judges of the Court of Appeal.

Law in force.

Contracts. The English common law is followed in questions arising out of contract. Among the Barbados Acts having reference to contracts are the following:

The Currency Act, (No. 1—1848), declares that the currency of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland shall be the currency of Barbados and all contracts involving payment of money are to be executed according to the currency of the United Kingdom so becoming the currency of the island.

The Act for the Prevention of Frauds and Perjuries, (No. 1—1762), enacts that no action shall be brought to charge the defendant upon any special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person or to charge any person upon any agreement (inter alia) that is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof unless the agreement upon which such action shall be brought or some memorandum or note thereof shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith or some other person thereunto by him lawfully authorized.

Contracts by infants, whether by specialty or by simple contract, for the repayment of money lent or for goods supplied (other than contracts for necessaries) are by the Infants Relief Act of 1881 made absolutely void.

Gaming contracts, being contracts where the consideration or any part shall be for money won by gaming, etc., or betting, etc., are by the Gaming Act, (No. 4—1891), made utterly void and of none effect.

Contracts by Married Women. A married woman is by the Married Woman's Act, (No. 33—1891), made capable of entering into and rendering herself liable in respect of and to the extent of her separate property on any contract and of suing and of being sued thereon in all respects as if she were a femme sole, and her husband need not be joined with her as plaintiff or defendant. By the Married Woman's Amendment Act, 1896, (No. 32—1896), bearing date 22d October, 1896 it is enacted that every contract thereafter entered into by a married woman otherwise than as agent shall bind her separate property then possessed by her or at any time thereafter coming into her possession, and such liability may be enforced by legal process against all property which she may thereafter while discoverd be possessed of or entitled to, but not to affect property subject to restraint of anticipation. By further Act of Assembly, (No. 22—1899), the Court of Chancery may by judgment or order with consent of the married woman bind her interest in any property notwithstanding she is subject to a restraint upon anticipation.

Contract for Dutiable Goods. By the Trade Act of 1910, (No. 15—1910, § 183), in the event of a change in the duties of customs chargeable upon goods after the making of any contract for the sale or delivery of the goods duty-paid, the seller, in case of increase of duty before clearance and delivery at such increased duty and after payment thereof, may add so much money to the contract prices as shall be equivalent to such increase of duty and he shall be entitled to be paid and to sue for and recover the same.

The purchaser of goods under any contract for the sale or delivery of goods duty-paid may, in case a decrease or repeal of duty shall take effect before the clearance and delivery of the goods at such decreased duty, or free from duty, as the case may be, deduct so much money from the contract price as will be equivalent to such decrease of duty or repealed duty, and he shall not be liable to pay or be sued for or in respect of such deduction.

Rum Contracts. By the Rum Duty Act, (No. 11—1892), it is enacted that in the event of any increase, decrease or repeal of the duty on rum after the making of any contract for the sale or delivery of such rum duty paid, it shall be lawful for either the seller or the buyer by notice given the one to the other to cancel the contract so far as it remains unexecuted, provided that the seller may recover the contract price of any rum delivered prior to the cancellation of the contract and the buyer may enforce delivery at the contract price of any rum for which he shall have fully paid before the avoidance of the contract.

Agency. The decisions of questions of agency by the Barbadian courts is based upon the principles of common law and equity which govern the decisions of the English courts. Frauds and embezzlement by Agents or Factors are criminal acts punishable as such by the Larceny Act, 1868, (No. 1—1868). The provisions in this respect of this Barbadian Act are similar to those already referred to in the Bahamas Act of Assembly, 28 Vict. Cap. 37.

Powers of attorney constituting any person the agent of another, for the purposes set forth in the writing or document creating such power, by the "Property and Conveyancing Act, 1891" operate so as to save and indemnify any person making a payment or doing an act in good faith in pursuance of the power, before the event of the death, lunacy, insanity, or bankruptcy of, or revocation by, the creator of the power, has become known to such person.

Partnership. The Common Law and decisions of the English courts in all matters of partnership are followed by the Barbadian courts. There does not appear on the Barbadian Statute Book, up to and including the year 1911, any Act of Barbados having any exclusive and special reference to partnerships. The law of partnership as expounded in the Partnership (Imperial) Act, 1890, (53 & 54 Vic. c. 39), indicates generally the existing law in Barbados, because that Act is based on the judicial decisions of equity and common law courts in relation to partnerships.

Limited partnerships are not to be found in the Statute Books of Barbados up to and inclusive of the year 1911.

Companies. Before the adoption by the House of Assembly in 1892 of the principles of the imperial legislation under the Companies Act the Barbados Statute Book had no general legislation in respect of Public Companies. By the Larceny (Consolidation) Act of 1868, directors, members, managers, and other officers of companies are made penally liable for fraudulent appropriation, keeping fraudulent accounts, etc.

The Companies Act, 1910 enables any five or more persons to form an incorporated company with or without limited liability. The Act follows the Imperial Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908.

Sale of Goods. The Sale of Goods Act, 1895, (No. 9—1895), follows the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, 1893, (56 & 57 Vic. c. 71), with some variations. It omits the 4th section of the Imperial Act, which makes contracts for the sale of goods of the value of £10 and upwards not enforceable by action unless the buyer shall accept part of the goods so sold, and actually receive the same, or give something in earnest to bind the contract or in part payment, or unless some note or memorandum in writing of the contract be made and signed by the party to be charged or his agent in that behalf. The provision as to sale in market overt contained in the 22nd section of the Imperial Act is also omitted. The 26th section of the Imperial Act, as to the effect of writs of execution, is varied so as to accord with the provisions of the Provost Marshal's Act of 1891, and executions thereunder by the Provost Marshal.

The English code of law on the sale of goods, as established by the Imperial Act, is now, by virtue of Barbadian Act, the law in Barbados. But it must be remembered that the Statute of Frauds, (29 Car. II. c. 3), was passed in 1676 after Barbados had become a settled Colony; it therefore could not extend to the Colony, nor has it been adopted by the Barbadian legislature; therefore the 17th section of this Statute, as to contracts for the sale of goods, has no equivalent in the law of Barbados; hence the omission above noted in the Colony's Sale of Goods Act, 1895, of the 4th section of the Imperial Sale of Goods Act, which was the virtual reproduction of the 17th section of the Statute of Frauds and an amendment thereof by Section 7 of 9 George IV. c. 14.

In the result the original Common Law prevails, whereby all that is required to give validity to a contract for the sale of goods, is, irrespective of amount of price or value, the mutual assent of the parties to the contract, provable by verbal or written evidence.

Common Carriers. The Barbados Statute Books contain no Common Carriers Act. The law as to carriage of goods on land in the Colony follows therefore the English common law.

Factors. The law relating to factors and other mercantile agents is not the subject of any special legislation. The Imperial Factors Act of 1889 has not been extended to the Colony by Act of Assembly and this being so the principles of the English common law and equity govern cases of agency in respect of factors and mercantile agents.

Under the Larceny Consolidation Act, No. (1—1868, S. 63), merchants, brokers, and other agents fraudulently selling securities or goods entrusted to them are made guilty of a misdemeanour and on conviction become liable to penal servitude.

Merchandise Marks. By Act of Assembly, (No. 3—1889), the Imperial Merchandise Marks Act, 1887, is, with slight variations to suit local jurisdiction and procedure, extended to the Colony. An amending Act of Assembly, (No. 7—1896), extends the provisions of the principal Act to proprietary trade marks registered at the record branch of the Colonial Secretary's office in the Colony. It regulates the registration in the Colony of proprietary trade marks, imposes certain restrictions as to the user of the registered trade marks and their assignment. A further slight amendment is made by the Merchandise Marks (Amendment) Act, 1897, which requires the trade marks to be shewn in some particular or distinctive manner.

Imports and Exports. The Trade Act, 1910, as amended by No. 4—1911, contains 173 Sections and several Schedules. It is divided into eleven parts as follows: Part I: Ports and Quays. Part II: Entry and Clearance Ships. Part III: Tonnage Dues. Part IV: Importation. Part V: Warehousing. Part VI: Exportation. Part VII: Passengers and Baggage. Part VIII: Bilge water. Part IX: Smuggling. Part X: Legal Procedure. Part XI: Miscellaneous.

Under the above divisions the Act regulates the import and export trade of Barbados.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Act, 1893 (No. 7—1893), extends to Barbados the Imperial Act of 1882, (45 & 46 Vict. c. 41). The Colonial Act omits section 94 of the Imperial Act, whereby when the services of a notary cannot be obtained, a householder in the presence of two witnesses may give a certificate to be signed by them attesting the dishonour of the bill. The schedule of the Imperial Act containing a form of protest is not included. There is no repealing clause in the Act. Therefore it would seem that the following Acts of Assembly remain in force.

Act 1754—1. An Act to reduce the rate of interest to six per cent. per annum on all loans and to allow ten per cent. for damages and interest upon bills protested.

Act 1848—1. An Act to provide for the assimilation of the Barbados Currency and Moneys to the currency and moneys of the United Kingdom, whereby all bills, etc., after the commencement of the Act are to be paid, discharged and satisfied in the currency of the United Kingdom.

Act 1890—17. The Colonial Secretary's Office Act 1890 empowers the Colonial Secretary to act as notary public to protest bills of exchange for non-acceptance or for non-payment.

Act 1891—5. The Gaming Act 1891 makes all notes, bills &c. given for gaming debts utterly void.

Act 1890—30. The Petty Debt Act 1890 makes bills of exchange, promissory notes etc., liable to seizure on an execution for debt and to subsequent realization by the execution creditor.

Act 1891—52. The Provost Marshal's Act 1891 requires the Provost Marshal to hold any promissory notes, bills of exchange, etc., attached by him under any writ of execution as security for the amount of the execution in his office against the judgment debtor and enables the Provost Marshal to sue and recover the amount of such notes and bills.

By Act 1907—36 the Bills of Exchange Act, 1893 was amended in its Section 82 as to bankers' cheques.

Maritime Law. The maritime law for the colony follows the maritime law of the English Admiralty Court.

Affreightment. Contracts of affreightment are governed by the English common law and the decisions of English Courts.

The Bills of Lading, Act, 1892, transfers to every consignee named in, and indorsee of a bill of lading — to whom the property in the goods therein shall pass by such consignment or indorsement — all rights of suit, and subjects such consignee or indorsee to the same liabilities as if the bill of lading had been made with him. It makes bills of lading in the hands of a consignee or indorsee conclusive evidence of shipment as against the master or other person signing the same. In any proceedings in the colony against owner or charterer of any ship or other person in respect of any bill of lading or contract of affreightment relating to merchandize brought to the Colony by such ship the agent in the colony of the owner or charterer or, if there be no such agent, the master of the ship is to be the agent of such owner or charterer, on whom all process issued in proceedings taken against such owner or charterer is to be served, and such agent or master is to represent the owner or charterer, and the proceedings are to be binding on the owners or charterers. Moneys in the hands of such agent or master belonging to the owner or charterer are for the purposes of the Act to be deemed a debt within the Judgment Creditors Remedies Act, 1891, and the agent or master is for the purpose of that Act to be deemed a garnishee.

Marine Insurance. The law in Barbados on marine insurance follows the English common law. The fact that the local legislature has not extended to the colony the Marine Insurance Act, 1906, (6 Edw. 7, Ch. 41), does not prevent questions of marine insurance being determined by that Act, so far as it is an Act to codify the Law relating to marine insurance.

Average. The law as to average in Barbados is the same as the English law.

Maritime Liens. Claims upon a maritime res, i. e., ship, freight, or cargo which may arise ex contractu, such as salvage, or ex delicto, such as compensation for damage by collision if enforced in the Colonial Court of Admiralty by arrest in Admiralty are adjudicated upon by English law.

Bottomry and Respondentia. Contracts of bottomry and respondentia are adjudicated upon in the Colony according to English law.

Collisions. Claims for damages arising from collision are adjudicated upon in accordance with the principles of maritime law adopted by the English Admiralty Court.

Bankruptcy. The Debtors Act, 1879, (No. 4—1879), provides for the abolition of imprisonment for debt with certain exceptions and for the punishment of fraudulent debtors. This enactment extends to Barbados, with necessary variations to meet the local circumstances, the (Imperial) Debtors Act, 1869, (32 & 33 Vict. Chap. 62).

The Bankruptcy Act, 1892, (No. 3—1892), enables the Governor to appoint an Official Assignee in bankruptcy whose duties and remuneration are regulated by the Act. A creditor or creditors in a debt of not less than £50 may present a bankruptcy petition alleging as grounds for the petition any one or more of the certain acts or defaults therein specified and referred to as "acts of bankruptcy." A debtor may present a bankruptcy petition against himself, therein alleging that he is unable to pay his debts. All bankruptcy petitions must be verified on oath by affidavits. Upon an order for bankruptcy having been made the bankrupt must deliver to the Official Assignee a statement of affairs made out in the form prescribed by the Act. When an order of bankruptcy has been made against a debtor his adjudication as bankrupt must be gazetted and a public sitting be held by the Court to examine into the affairs of the bankrupt. All property whatsoever of the bankrupt, when an order for bankruptcy is made, vests absolutely without conveyance or assignment in the Official Assignee. The commencement of the bankruptcy relates back to the date of the act of bankruptcy on which the petition was based. Further provisions of the Act relate to the discharge of the bankrupt, the effect of his discharge, the administration by the Official Assignee under the control of the Court of the bankrupt's estate, and the proof of debts. The property of the bankrupt divisible amongst his creditors and vesting in the Official Assignee comprises property belonging to the bankrupt at the commencement of the bankruptcy or devolving upon him previously to his discharge, all powers exercisable by the bankrupt over property for his benefit at commencement of the bankruptcy, and all goods and chattels at the commencement of the bankruptcy in the possession, order, or disposition of the bankrupt by the permission of the true owner, but not property held in trust for any other person than his creditors, or trade tools, and wearing apparel &c not exceeding £20 in all. Any voluntary settlement, if the settlor becomes bankrupt within two years after date of the settlement, is to be void and if the settlor becomes bankrupt within five years of the date of the settlement it is to be void unless beneficiaries under the settlement can prove that the settlor at the date of the settlement was able to pay all his debts without the aid of the property in the settlement.

The remaining provisions of the Act, comprised in sections 60 to 107 inclusive, relate to fraudulent preference, debts provable against bankrupt's estate, compositions and schemes of arrangement, secured creditors, mutual dealings and set-off, calculation and distribution of dividends, discovery of property, arrest of bankrupt, liability in respect of her separate estate and rights in respect of debts of married women under the Act, offences against bankruptcy law and punishment thereof.

The Bankruptcy (Amendment) Act, 1898, (No. 7—1898), provides that in all cases in which the Official Assignee is authorised to sell the real estate of any bankrupt under the provisions of the principal Act of 1892 his receipt shall be an absolute discharge to the purchasers, and the conveyance by the Official Assignee shall effectually pass the real estate thereby conveyed discharged from liens and incumbrances of all persons (including the Crown and parochial authorities) save and except such as are specified in the conveyance and subject to which the Official Assignee shall have made the conveyance. Such conveyance shall, without the joinder as parties of any persons having a mortgage or other legal or equitable lien on the property pass the property to the purchasers as effectually as if the said persons had executed the conveyance. The signature of the Official Assignee to the conveyance shall be conclusive evidence that all the provisions of the principal Act and this amending Act and all necessary proceedings thereunder have been complied with and duly taken. The Bankruptcy (Amendment) Act, 1903, (No. 19—1903), gives priority of payment next after Crown debts to public taxes or rates imposed by law, due from the bankrupt at the date of bankruptcy, not exceeding one year's taxes or rates. The Bankruptcy (Amendment) Act, 1903 (No. 47—1903), enables the Court to stay any action, execution or other legal process against the bankrupt or on such terms as the Court deems just to allow them to continue. The provisions of the principal Act of 1892 relating to remedies against the property of the debtor, the priorities of debts, the effect of a composition or scheme of arrangement and of a discharge are to be binding on the Crown.

Bankruptcy proceedings may be taken by a petitioning creditor against the legal representatives of a deceased debtor: and on an order by the Court to administer the estate in bankruptcy being made the deceased debtor's property vests in Official Assignee and is administered as in case of ordinary bankruptcy subject to preferential payment of the funeral and testamentary expenses of the deceased debtor, and any surplus remaining after payment of debts in full is to be paid over by the Official Assignee to the legal personal representatives of the deceased debtor.

The Leeward Islands.

Introduction.

History and government.

The British Leeward Islands, comprising Antigua (with its dependencies Barbuda and Redonda), Montserrat, St. Christopher, Nevis (including Anguilla), Dominica, and the Virgin Islands, were constituted the single Federal Colony of 'The Leeward Islands' in 1871 by an Act of the Imperial Parliament, 34 & 35 Vict. c. 107. This Act, after reciting that the several legislative bodies of the Leeward Islands had by resolutions signified their desire for a union under one government, and that their resolutions for such a union should be embodied in an Imperial Act with provisions necessary to give them effect, constituted a legislative body for the Leeward Islands, styled "The General Legislative Council", and empowered the Governor with the consent of this Council to make laws for the Leeward Islands or any part thereof on the following subjects: 1. The Law of real and personal property; 2. The Mercantile Law; 3. The Law of husband and wife, parent and child, marriage, divorce, and guardianship; 4. The Criminal Law; 5. The constitution of Courts of Law, the criminal and civil administration of justice, including the jurisdiction, practice, and procedure of all courts of law, criminal and civil; 6. Prisons; 7. Police; 8. Postal and Telegraphic administration; 9. Quarantine; 10. Currency; 11. Weights and Measures; 12. Audit of Public Accounts; 13. Education; 14. Immigration;

15. Lunacy; 16. Copyrights and Patents; 17. The constitution and procedure of the Council; 18. Subjects referred to the Council by the legislature of any Presidency.

Subject to repeal or variation by the General Legislative Council the Governor, with the consent of the Legislative Body of any presidency, was empowered to make laws for the peace, order, and good government thereof.

Laws passed by the Council might be disallowed by the Crown within eighteen months from the date of the copy received by the Imperial Secretary of State. Laws reserved for the assent of the Crown were to come into operation by Royal Order in Council and Proclamation of the Governor. By Royal Letters Patent dated 17th July 1869 the island of Rodenda was included in the Governorship of the Leeward Islands and annexed to the island of Antigua. By Royal Letters Patent dated 2nd October, 1902 after revocation of the existing Letters Patent dated 20th February, 1895 it was declared: That there should be a Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the colony of the Leeward Islands to be appointed by Commission under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet, and with such Powers and Authorities as belonged to the Office by the provisions of the Imperial and Colonial Acts, (34 & 35 Vic. c. 107, Imperial) and No. 1, 1899, (Leeward Islands Act), and the Royal Letters Patent, Commission, Instructions, and Orders in Council.

By Royal Letters Patent dated June 9th, 1898, effect was given to an Act of the legislature of Antigua, (No. 1, 1898), enabling the Crown to appoint members of the legislative Council of Antigua either directly by Royal Instructions or Warrant, or by delegation to the Governor of the Leeward Islands. The powers so vested in the Crown were delegated to the Governor with reservation of a power of revocation and amendment.

By Letters Patent dated 7th November 1898, the Crown delegated to the Governor the exercise of the power given to the Crown by the legislature of Dominica (The Constitution Act, 1898) of appointing members of the Legislative Council of Dominica.

The Antigua Act (No. 1) of 1898 constitutes a Legislative Council for the island.

The Dominica Act (No. 4) of 1898 abrogates the Legislative Assembly as re-constituted by Act (No. 4) of 1895 and creates a Legislative Council for the island.

By a Dominica Ordinance (No. 2) of 1899 the Legislative Council of Dominica amended its constitution.

The Constitution of St. Christopher and Nevis was amended by the Leeward Islands Acts (No. 2) of 1882, under which they were united into one Presidency, and (No. 7) of 1900 under which, pursuant to an enabling Ordinance of St. Christopher and Nevis (No. 1) of 1900, the Legislative Council of St. Christopher and Nevis was constituted.

The Constitution of The Leeward Islands was amended by Act (No. 1) of 1899 under which The Leeward Islands are to consist of the five Presidencies of Antigua, St. Christopher and Nevis, Dominica, Montserrat and Virgin Islands, confirmed by an Order in Council of 27th December, 1899.

Law in force.

The common law of England prevails in the Leeward Islands, partly by original settlement and partly by Royal proclamation. The General Assembly in 1706 and again in 1798 expressly declared that the common law of England, as far as it was unaltered by Colonial Act or by Act of Parliament was in force in each of the Leeward Islands. The several islands in the wars between France and England had been captured and recaptured and subsequently restored by the Treaties of Peace.

The Treaty of Breda, 1667, restored to England Antigua and Montserrat and that part of St. Christopher and the other colonies as were possessed by England on 1st January, 1665, before the war, then concluded, began: under the Treaty of Utrecht, 1713, St. Christopher was to be possessed solely by Great Britain: under the Treaty of Paris, 1763, Grenada, St. Vincent, Dominica and Tobago were to remain in full right to England, and by the Treaty of Versailles, 1783, Grenada, St. Vincent, St. Christopher, Nevis and Montserrat were restored to Great Britain. Notwithstanding the period in which the sovereignty of France prevailed, the English common law does not seem to have been displaced, and on the restoration of English rule any doubts were set at rest either by Royal Proclamation or Legislation. In Art. 22 of the Treaty of Paris it was provided that in law-suits ended in the islands conquered by either of the high contracting parties the judgment pronounced should be confirmed and executed according to their form and tenour. No Article in any of the Treaties makes any stipulation as to the French law.

Contract. The English common law prevails throughout the Leeward Islands with respect to contract generally, subject to any Colonial Acts or Ordinance as to forms of contract, evidence and legal procedure.

Agency. The law of agency follows English law in the same way as that of contract.

Partnership. The Act to amend the Law of Partnership, No. 2, 1888, enacts that the advance of money on a contract to receive a share of profits is not to make the lender a partner. (See similar law, Windward Islands).

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Act, 1887, follows the Bills of Exchange (Imperial) Act of 1882 and the Bills of Exchange (Crossed Cheques) Act No. 3, 1907, follows the Imperial Act of 1906.

Banking. The Bankers' Book Evidence Act, 1881, makes an examined copy of an entry in a banker's book prima facie evidence in all legal proceedings if it is proved that the book was at date of the entry one of the ordinary books of the bank and that the entry was made in the ordinary course of business and that the book is in the possession of the banker. Such proof may be oral or by affidavit of a partner or an officer of the bank. Bankers need not in legal proceedings produce books, entries in which can be proved under the Act, but inspection of the same on application of any party may be had on an Order of the Court.

Companies. The Companies Act, 1884, is based on the Imperial Act, 1862, and amending Acts of 1867, 1877, 1879 and 1880.

Bankruptcy. By the Administration of Insolvent Estates Act of 1887 all specialty and simple contract debts of deceased persons are to stand in equal degree.

The law of bankruptcy is to apply to the administration by the Court of the estates of deceased persons and in the winding-up of companies, where assets are insufficient for payment of debts in full.

The Bankruptcy Act of 1889 (No. 11) amends and consolidates the law of bankruptcy.

Maritime Law. Similar to that in the Bahamas and Barbados (q. v. supra).

Local legislation.

The preceding sketch of the constitution and of the mercantile and maritime laws of the Leeward Islands Federation may be supplemented by the following detailed particulars of each of the five presidencies of the federation.

From the year 1871, — when the Imperial Federation Act was passed which created the General Legislative Council and assigned to it the legislative powers over the defined subjects above enumerated —, until the present date, the mercantile and maritime laws of each of the Presidencies must be ascertained from the Acts of the federal legislature so far as they vary the English common law.

Each of the Presidencies has a legislative Council with powers of legislation concurrent with those of the federal legislature; but any island enactment is void if repugnant to an enactment of the federal legislature. The island enactments have since 1871 related chiefly to matters of local revenue, and sanitary and other local subjects.

Antigua.

Before 1867 the legislative power in Antigua was vested in the Governor, the Legislative Council, and the Legislative Assembly of the island. In 1866 by an island Act of that year the Council and Assembly were abrogated, and all their powers were vested in the legislative Council of Antigua then constituted.

The laws of Antigua, apart from the enactments of the Federal legislature, must be sought in the statute books of the island. In 1865 an edition of the laws of Antigua from 1668 to 1864, revised by Commissioners appointed by local Act for that purpose, was officially published. This edition and the annual Acts since passed by the island Council must supplement the statute books of the Federal legislature for the ascertainment of the mercantile and maritime laws in operation.

Changes in the constitution of the legislative body were made by Acts Nos. 1 and 10, 1898; Act No. 30, 1899; and Act No. 6, 1903 whereby the whole legislative body was constituted of Crown nominees, of whom eight were official and eight unofficial members.

St. Christopher and Nevis.

In 1866 by an Act of the legislature of St. Christopher the Council and House of Assembly were abrogated and their powers vested in a single legislative Assembly. In 1877 the legislature of Nevis abrogated the Legislative Assembly and vested its powers in a legislative Council consisting of members nominated by the Crown.

As regards the legislation of Nevis a volume of the Statutes from 1681 to 1861 inclusive, compiled by Hastings Charles Huggins, was published by Authority of the Nevis legislature in 1862.

Dominica.

An edition of the Statutes up to 1859 was published by Authority in 1860 and except this edition no official compilation or general index of the Acts appears to exist.

Montserrat.

A volume intitled the Montserrat Code of Laws from 1668 to 1788 was published in London by order of the Council and Assembly of Montserrat in 1790 and except this edition no official compilation or general index of the laws appears to exist.

Virgin Islands.

This small Presidency has been British since 1666. In 1867 an ordinance was enacted creating a legislative Council and in 1902 by Acts of the legislatures of the Virgin Islands and the Leeward Islands the legislative power over local matters was vested in the Governor of the Leeward Islands.

With reference to the laws of each of the Presidencies one observation is common to them all: namely, that the mercantile and maritime laws of Great Britain prevail except so far as the same are varied by the local legislatures. These local laws must be ascertained by reference to the annual Acts of the several island legislatures prior to the Federation in 1872; and, since 1872, to the annual Acts of the General Legislative Council of the Leeward Islands Federation and the several island legislatures.

Courts and procedure.

The Supreme Court is both a Court of appeal and a Court of original jurisdiction. This Court has the jurisdiction of the English Courts of Queen's Bench, Chancery, Probate, and Admiralty, at the time of the passing of the Act of Parliament, 37 Vic. c. 66, is a Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery and has the powers of the Courts of Bankruptcy in London. An appeal lies to the Full Court, sitting as a Court of Appeal, from all final judgments of one or more judges, sitting as a Court of First Instance<sup>1</sup>).

An appeal lies from the Supreme Court to the Privy Council in cases where the amount involved is £500 or upwards. Leave to appeal must be obtained within twenty-one days, and the defendant must furnish security in a sum not exceeding £500 within three months.<sup>2</sup>)

Provided such consignee shall not have notice by the bill of lading for the delivery of such goods, wares, or merchandize or otherwise at or before the time of the advance of any such money or negotiable security or of such receipt of money or negotiable security in respect of which such lien is claimed that such person so shipping in his own name or in whose name any goods, wares, or merchandize shall be shipped by any person is not the actual and bona fide owner or proprietor of such goods, wares, and merchandize so shipped as aforesaid, any law, usage, or custom to the contrary thereof in anywise notwithstanding. ## The Windward Islands.

Introduction.

Government.

By virtue of Letters Patent dated the 30th May, 1877, the 1st October, 1880, the 17th March, 1885, as amended by Letters Patent dated 14th June, 1897, and Instructions under the Royal Sign Manual and Signet to the Governor dated 17th March, 1885, and subsequent Instructions at various dates up to 31st May, 1909, the Islands of Grenada, St. Vincent, (Tobago), and St. Lucia are now consolidated as the Windward Islands under one Governor and Commander-in-Chief appointed by Commission under the Royal Sign Manual and signet. The conjoint operation of these Letters Patent and Instructions created for each of the said islands an executive council to consist of government officials and such other persons as should be nominated by the Crown: and a legislative council to consist of official members and such other persons as should be nominated by the Crown. All legislation for each island is by virtue of Act 39 & 40 Vict. c. 47, and Royal Orders pursuant thereto vested in the Governor and the legislative Council of the islands. The Governor has a veto over all legislation, and the Crown reserved power to disallow any law and also the right to make laws for the said islands by Order in Council. The Governor is empowered to appoint such judges, commissioners, justices of the peace, and other necessary officers in the several islands as may lawfully be appointed by the Crown. The persons appointed hold their office subject to the Royal pleasure and are liable to suspension from office by the Governor. Power is reserved to the Crown to revoke, alter, or amend the Letters Patent.

By Order in Council of November 17th 1888 the island of Tobago was severed from the Windward Islands and annexed to Trinidad to form the Colony of Trinidad and Tobago.

Courts.

Courts of Justice. By an Order in Council of March 3rd 1859, as amended by Orders in Council of 20th April 1883, 17th November 1888 and 9th February 1901, after reciting that each of the legislatures of Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent, (Tobago), and St. Lucia, pursuant to the Imperial Act 13 & 14 Vic. c. 15<sup>1</sup>), enabling the Court of Appeal to be established in the West Indian Colonies, had made provisions for the establishment and maintenance of a Court of Appeal for those Islands and for defining its jurisdiction, it was ordered that a Court of Appeal to be called the Court of Appeal of The Windward Islands should be erected and established to consist of and be holden before the Chief Justices of Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent, Tobago (since excepted by Order in Council of 9th February 1901), and St. Lucia. The jurisdiction of this Court of Appeal in relation to each of those Colonies was defined by the local Acts — specified in the schedule — of Barbados, Grenada, St. Vincent and Saint Lucia.

Grenada.

History and government.

Historic Incidents of Constitution. The island was discovered by Columbus on 15th August 1498; it was then inhabited by Caribs. An unsuccessful attempt to settle the island was made by London merchants in 1609, and after various and successive changes in the ownership of the island it was in 1674 annexed to France. It was ceded to Great Britain by the Treaty of Paris of 10th February, 1763, captured by the French in 1779, and in 1783 restored to Great Britain by the Treaty of Versailles.

These treaties of cession originated the power of the Crown over the Colony: in exercise of this power Royal Proclamations were issued, of which the following extracts shew that the laws of Great Britain were made the law of the Colony.

Law in force.

Proclamation of King George III of 19th December, 1764, publishing and declaring that the laws of Great Britain are in force in the island as far as the nature and circumstances of the Colony would permit and that all other jurisdictions, offices, commissions, and proceedings for the future not founded on those laws of England are thereby declared to be absolutely determined utterly void and totally.

The Proclamation of King George III of 10th January, 1784, after reciting the treaty of peace with France of the 3d September, 1783, declared that by the restitution of the island the inhabitants, being British subjects, became entitled to the enjoyment of the laws of England as far as the state and circumstances of the Colony permitted and that such laws accordingly became in force.

By an Act passed on 17th March, 1784, to remove doubts as to the revival of the English law in force in 1779 when the Colony was taken by the French, it was declared that such English law — common and statute — as was in force at the time of the capture in 1779 should be in force on and since the restitution of the island to England.

The Colony may therefore be deemed under English common and statute law so far as applicable, and the enactments of its own Statutes. (See Campbell v. Hall, 1 Doug. 204, and Attorney-General v. Stewart, 2 Mer 143.)

Statute Law. The Laws of Grenada have been collected together in a volume published by authority in 1912. Up to the year 1875 the Acts were passed by the Governor, the Council and Assembly of the Colony. The House of Assembly consisted of 26 elected members.

In 1875, by an alteration in the constitution, Acts were passed by the Governor and Legislative Assembly in lieu of the Governor, the Council, and Assembly. In 1876 the House of Assembly voted an Address to the Crown and passed an Act for the abolition of the constitution of the island, and by the Imperial Act 1876, (39 & 40 Vic. c. 47), after reciting the foregoing colonial Act, the Crown was empowered to create and constitute a Government and Legislature, and in 1877 the existing Legislative Council, consisting of the Governor and six official members and seven unofficial members nominated by the Crown, was constituted as the Legislature.

Since 1877 Ordinances have been passed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Legislative Council.

Contract. The common law of England prevails. Stipulations not deemed of the essence of the contract by a Court of Equity are in the Supreme Court to receive the same construction and effect as they would receive in equity.

Ordinance No. 21, 1897 (The Law of Real and Personal Property) makes written documents necessary in the case of certain contracts, sale of goods, guarantee etc.

Contracts by infants, except for necessities, are declared void. No actions are maintainable on ratification after full age of contracts made during infancy.

Agency. The law of agency is governed by English law and the doctrines of equity as administered by the English Courts.

Partnership. No Ordinances have been passed on the law of partnership, either ordinary or limited. The law governing partnership questions must be sought from English law.

Companies. The Companies Ordinance No. 5, 1880, now Rev. Laws, 1911, c. 84, provides for the incorporation, management, and winding up of trading companies and other associations.

Sale of Goods. The Merchandise Marks Ordinance (Rev. Laws, 1911, c. 110) provides that in the sale of goods under a mark or trade description the vendor warrants the genuineness of the mark or trade description unless the contrary is expressed in writing by the vendor at the time of sale.

The Ordinance No. 21, 1897 above referred to, requires in the sale of goods of the price of £10 and upwards some memorandum in writing to be signed by the party to be charged by the contract or his authorised agent.

Common Carrier. There does not appear to be any ordinance varying the English common law relating to common carriers on land.

Factors. There is no ordinance applying the Imperial Factors Act, 1889.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Ordinance Rev. Laws, 1911, (c. 101) follows the Imperial Acts. (Rev. Laws, 1911, c. 158.)

Bankruptcy. The Bankruptcy Ordinance makes provision for the administration of the estates of bankrupts and follows closely the English Bankruptcy Act, 1883.

Maritime Law. The Supreme Court is a colonial Court of Admiralty within the meaning of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty (Imperial) Act 1890. The Court follows the decisions of the English Courts in questions of maritime law.

St. Lucia.

History and government.

The island of St. Lucia was discovered by Columbus in 1502. It was then inhabited by the Caribs, who held possession until 1635, when it was made the subject of a grant by the King of France, who in 1642 still claimed the sovereignty, which was disputed by the Caribs until peace was concluded with them in 1660. In 1663 the English entered the island and continued in possession until the Peace of Breda in 1667, when the island was restored to the French.

It was annexed to the Crown of France in 1674 and made a dependency of Martinique. After the Peace of Utrecht in 1713 it became the subject of contest between France and England, but the English settlers were forced to evacuate the island and it was declared neutral.

In 1744 the French re-occupied the island and held it until 1748, when by the treaty of Aix-la-Chapelle its neutrality was again declared. On the renewal of war between France and England it was in 1762 surrendered to the English forces, but by the treaty of Paris in 1763 was assigned to France. It was captured by the English in 1782, but again restored to France by the Treaty of Versailles. During the war between England and France, which commenced in 1793, it surrendered in 1794 to the British forces, who made good their conquest and held possession until 1802, when it was restored to France by the Treaty of Amiens; but on the renewal of the war it capitulated to England in 1803 and has since remained in the possession of that country.

These historic facts are taken from the Colonial Office List. The same publication states that after the restoration of order in 1800 the island was governed according to the law and ordinances of the French monarchy. The Courts of Justice were an inferior Court called the "Senechaussee" and a higher Court called the "Conseil Superieur" or Court of Appeal, which was invested with certain executive and administrative functions.

Law in force.

Common Law. The Journal of the Society of Comparative Legislation for 1895 contains an authoritative exposition by the Hon. Sir A. Child, Chief Justice of the Island, as to the law then existing: he states that the common law of England prevails where the codes are silent. It had been introduced by the English judges twenty-five years before, previous to which the French judges applied the Coutume de Paris.

Statute Law. As regards the Statutory law the Chief Justice in the same exposition states that it consisted of Ordinances, a Civil Code, a Code of Civil Procedure, a Criminal Code and a Code of Criminal Procedure: these Codes have been made law by Ordinances. Imperial Statutes do not operate in the Colony. But some Imperial Statutes, either wholly, or in part, and some Orders in Council, have been adopted by the legislature. An enactment of 1681 by the French King entitled "Arrêt en Règlement du Conseil Superieur portant que la Coutume de Paris et les Ordonnances du Roi seront suivies en cette Ile", was, subject to the provisions of the Civil Code (Article 2485), still in force, as also were the following: "Ordre du Roi au sujet des Cinquante Pas du Bord de Mer" dated 1704; and "Arrêt du Conseil Souverain concernant les cinquante Pas du Roi", dated 1781.

Publications. The laws of St. Lucia contained amongst other Ordinances the Criminal Code prepared by the then (1882) Chief Justice John Worrell Carrington on the model of one for Jamaica by Mr. Justice R. S. Wright, but not adopted by that Colony. The laws were published by the Government in 1889; the Civil Code, prepared by the then (1869) Administrator Sir George William Des Voeux, in conjunction with the then (1871) Chief Justice James Armstrong, came into force in 1880.

These introductory notes sufficiently indicate the mixed sources of the law of St. Lucia, complicated by the various historic incidents of conquest, surrender, cession, restoration and final conquest by Great Britain which have been detailed.

The existing commercial law must be ascertained by reference to the Civil Code of 1880 and the Ordinances since passed by the island legislature.

Commercial and Maritime Law. The commercial and maritime law is to be found in the Civil Code. This became law on 20th October 1879 by virtue of the Civil Code Ordinance 1877, and Proclamation of the Governor after approval by the Crown.

The Civil Code of St. Lucia was officially published in London in 1879 by the Royal Printers. It contains 2486 separate articles. By the final provisions of the code the laws in force at the time of the coming into force of the code are abrogated in all cases: 1. In which there is a provision in the Code having that effect expressly or by implication; 2. In which such laws are contrary to or inconsistent with any provision in the Code; 3. In which express provision is made in the Code upon the particular matter to which such laws relate: Except always that &c. &c. as above in the Code of Civil Procedure.

The Civil Code is divided into Four Parts as follows: Part First: Persons. Part Second: Property, its ownership and different modifications. Part Third: The Acquisition and Exercise of Right of Property. Part Fourth: Commercial Law. This Part is divided into seven books as follows: Book First: Bills of Exchange, Notes, and Cheques. Book Second: Merchant Shipping. Book Third: Affreightment. Book Fourth: The carriage of Passengers in Merchant Vessels. Book Fifth: Insurance, General Provisions, Marine, Fire and Life Insurance. Book Sixth: Bottomry and Respondentia. Book Seventh: Bankruptcy.

Companies. The Companies Ordinance, 1869, extends to the Colony most of the details and the general provisions of the Companies (Imperial) Act of 1862.

By the amending Ordinance No. 4, 1909, it is enacted that no company shall be registered under a name containing the word "Empire" or the word "Imperial" without the permission of the Governor in writing under his hand.

Merchandise Marks. The Merchandise Marks Ordinance, 1888, extends to the Colony the provisions of the Imperial Merchandise Marks Act, 1887.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Ordinance 1893, repeals the articles relating to Bills of Exchange in the Civil Code and Code of Civil Procedure and extends to the Colony the Bills of Exchange (Imperial) Act, 1882.

By Amending Ordinance 1907 it is enacted that a banker receives payment of a crossed cheque for a customer within the meaning of Section 82 of the principal Ordinance, notwithstanding that he credits his customer's account with the amount of the cheque before receiving payment thereof.

Courts.

Legal Procedure. The Royal Court Ordinance, 1888, constitutes one Supreme Court of Judicature for the Colony to be called "the Royal Court of St. Lucia".

The Court is a Court of Record with all the authorities and functions incident to such a Court according to the law of England.

An appeal lies from the judgment of the Court to the Court of Appeal for the Windward Islands.

Legal procedure is regulated by the Code of Legal Procedure, which by the Civil Procedure Ordinance, 1879, after approval by the Crown and Proclamation by the Governor was to become law. It was duly proclaimed and became law on the 15th April, 1882.

The Code in one volume was officially published by the Government Printers in London in 1881. The Code is divided into 1087 separate articles. Its final provision abrogates all laws concerning procedure at the time of the coming into force of the Code: 1. In all cases in which the Code contains any provision indicating that effect either expressly or by implication; 2. In all cases in which such laws are contrary to or inconsistent with any provision of the code, or in which express provision is made by this Code upon the particular matter to which such laws relate. Except always that, as regards proceedings, matters, and things anterior to the coming into force of the Code, and to which its provisions could not apply without having a retroactive effect, the provisions of law, which without the Code would apply to such proceedings, matters, and things, remain in force, and apply to them and the Code applies to them only so far as it coincides with such provisions.

St. Vincent.

History and government.

The historic facts affecting the constitution and laws of St. Vincent are the assertion of English sovereignty over the island in 1627, when King Charles I of England included it in a grant to the Earl of Carlisle. No settlement by English settlers then followed. Before the year 1779, when the island was captured by the French, it had been included in the Treaties of Aix-la-Chapelle, (1748) when its neutrality was proclaimed, and Paris (1763) when it was ceded to Great Britain. By the Treaty of Versailles in 1783 the island was restored to Great Britain. The successive incidents in the wars between England and France, when the island was captured and re-captured, might raise questions as to what national law prevailed, but it is authoritatively stated in the Second Report of the Commissioner of Inquiry into the Administration of Justice in the West Indies dated 1826 (Parliamentary Paper, printed by order of the House of Commons, 1826) that the laws then in force in the island were, besides their own Acts of Assembly, so much of the laws of England adapted to the circumstances of the Colony as existed prior to the King's Proclamation of the 7th October, 1763, and such Acts of Parliament passed since as were expressly applicable to the colonies. It is stated in an official communication in 1897 to the Society for Comparative Legislation from the then Attorney-General of the Colony (Journal of the Society Vol. 1 p. 177) that the common law of England prevails in St. Vincent.

Law in force.

Commercial Contracts. Sale of goods, common carriers, agents. In questions on these contracts the common law of England and decisions of English courts prevail.

Companies. The Companies Act, 1874, extends to the Colony most of the provisions and regulations of the Companies (Imperial) Act of 1862.

Partnership. The Act to amend the Law of Partnerships, 1874, provides that a person advancing money to persons in trade upon a contract in writing whereby the lender shall receive a rate of interest varying with the profits, or a share of the profits, shall not by reason only of such contract be deemed a partner. Remuneration of servants or agents of traders by a share of profits shall not of itself constitute partnership. Widows and children of a deceased partner, or vendors of the goodwill of a business, receiving by way of annuity a portion of the profits shall not by reason only of such receipt be deemed partners. But in the event of bankruptcy the claims of such lenders and annuitants are postponed to the claims of the other creditors. By The Companies Act, 1874, Amending Ordinance, 1908, companies are not to be registered under a title including words "Empire" or "Imperial" without the consent of the Governor. The Partnership (Imperial) Act, 1890, has not been extended to the colony by any ordinance up to 1911 inclusive.

Merchandise Marks. The Merchandise Marks Ordinance, 1888, consolidates and amends the law relating to fraudulent marks on merchandise. It follows, with some variations necessary to make it applicable to the colony, the principle provisions of the Merchandise Marks (Imperial) Act, 1887.

Bills of Exchange. The Bills of Exchange Ordinance, 1895, extends to the Colony the Bills of Exchange (Imperial) Act, 1882, and by the Amending Act No. 1, 1907, the provision as to crossed cheques, as in Grenada and other colonies.

Bankruptcy. The Bankruptcy Ordinance, 1887, provides for the administration of the estates of bankruptcy. It is based on the Bankruptcy (Imperial) Act 1883. It is amended by the Bankruptcy (Amending) Ordinance, 1889.

Maritime Law. The English law as applied in the Imperial Courts prevails.

Courts.

Legal Procedure. The Code of Civil Procedure Ordinance, 1884, regulates all actions and suits at common law or in equity in the Supreme Court. The Act is divided into the following parts: Part I: Of the Institution of Suits. Part II: Of the Pleadings and Evidence. Part III: Interlocutory Proceedings: the Trial of Causes. Part IV: Of Judgment and Execution. Part V: Miscellaneous, Provisions, Arbitration, &c.

The Schedule contains a list of Acts repealed, table of Forms of pleading, Writs, Orders, and Warrants. Appeals from decisions of the Supreme Court are to the Court of Appeal for the Windward Islands (q. v. supra).

The principal points of difference are the following: 2266. (= Quebec, 2429). The words "observed in the place of delivery" are omitted. 2269. (= Quebec, 2433). Reads as follows: The owner of a seagoing ship is not liable for the loss or damage, occurring, without his actual default or privity: 1. Of anything whatsoever on board any such ship, by reason of fire, or 2. Of any gold, silver, diamonds, watches, jewels, or precious stones on board such ship, by reason of any robbery, embezzlement, making away with, or secreting of the same; unless the owner or shipper thereof has, at the time of shipping the same, inserted in his bill of lading, or otherwise declared in writing, to the master or owner of such ship, the true nature or value of such articles. 2270. (= Quebec, 2434) reads as follows: Where any damages or loss is caused to anything on board a sea-going ship, without the fault or privity of the owner, he is not answerable in damages to an extent beyond the value of the ship, and the freight due, or to grow due, during the voyage; provided that such value shall not be taken to be less than fifteen pounds sterling per registered ton, and that the owner shall be liable for every such loss and damage arising on distinct occasions to the same extent as if no other loss or damage had arisen. 2271. (not in Quebec Code): The freight mentioned in the last preceding article is, for the purpose thereof, deemed to include the value of the carriage of any goods belonging to the owners of the ship, passage money, and the hire due or to grow due under any contract; except only such hire, in the case of a ship hired for time, as may not begin to be earned until the expiration of six months after the loss or damage. 2272. (not in Quebec Code): The provisions contained in articles 2269 and 2270 do not apply to any master or seaman, being also owner or part owner of the ship to which he belongs, in such manner as to take away or lessen the liability to which he is subject in his capacity as master or seaman. 2277. (= Quebec, 2441). The St. Lucia Code adds: The judge may also make further deduction in consideration of any unreasonable conduct of the master which has prevented the carrying of freight on the return voyage. 2268. (not in Quebec Code): The owner or master is not liable for loss or damage occasioned by the fault or incapacity of any qualified pilot acting in charge of the ship within any district where the employment of such pilot is compulsory by law.

[2303—2401. These articles are identical in all material respects with the Quebec Civil Code, arts. 2468—2567, reprinted, supra, pp. 629—636.]

The principal points of difference are the following: 2305. (= Quebec, 2471). Insurance is always a commercial contract. 2340. (= Quebec, 2506). In insurance for a shipowner it is an implied warranty that the ship shall be furnished with the necessary papers, and that there shall have been fulfilled with respect to her the conditions required by the laws and treaties of the country to which she is bound, and by the law of nations. 2386. ## Bankruptcy.<sup>1)</sup> Civil Code, 1879.

1. By adjudication; and 2. By assignment of his property.

2449. Adjudication of bankruptcy is upon the petition of any creditor for an amount of fifteen pounds or upwards, after proof of any of the following allegations:

1. That he (the debtor) has declared in writing that he is unable to pay his debts;
2. That he (the debtor) is notoriously unable to pay his debts, and has refused to make an assignment of his property according to the provisions of this Chapter;
3. That being unable to pay his debts, he remains out of the Colony;
4. That he has permitted any of his property to be taken in execution;
5. That he is confined in gaol, in virtue of a writ of capias, and has remained so confined for fourteen days;
6. That having been arrested in virtue of a writ of capias, he has given security that he will not leave the Colony;
7. That he has been condemned to imprisonment for any of the causes for which imprisonment may be awarded under this Code;
8. That he is concealing himself or secreting his property in order to avoid attachment or execution;
9. That he has assigned, removed, or disposed of his property with intent to defraud any creditor, or to delay the payment of any debt.

2450. On adjudication of bankruptcy, the bankrupt is required to make, upon pain of imprisonment, within such delay as may be allowed by the Court or Judge, or in the absence, neglect, or refusal of the bankrupt, the Colonial Trustee shall make in his place a schedule supported by affidavit, and containing a statement of:

1. All his debts, whether due by him alone or jointly with others.
2. All the liabilities, whether privileged, hypothecary, or otherwise, to which he or his property is subject.
3. All claims made upon him, including those not admitted to be valid or just.
4. The names and addresses of all his creditors, of the persons who have made claims and of the persons to whom his property is hypothecarily liable.
5. All the debts due or to become due to him.
6. All his property, moveable or immoveable, whether in his possession or substituted in his favour.
7. All his rights and interest in any property or action which may be of value and available to his creditors.
8. A list of all his books of account.
9. The names and addresses of all persons indebted to him.

2451. The assignment of property which constitutes bankruptcy is made by notarial deed to the Colonial Trustee as curator for the benefit of all the creditors of the debtor making the assignment, and must be accompanied by a schedule alike in all respects to that described in the last preceding article.

2452. The schedule mentioned in the two last preceding articles is filed in the office of the Colonial Trustee who advertises a notice of its having been so filed in the Gazette.

<sup>1)</sup> The Civil Code, 1879, further contains the following provisions: 965. Creditors may impeach the fraudulent acts of their debtors, according to the rules provided in this section. 966. A contract cannot be avoided unless it is made by the debtor, with intent to defraud, and will have the effect of injuring the creditor. 967. A gratuitous contract is deemed to be made with intent to defraud, if the debtor be insolvent at the time of making it. 968. An onerous contract made by an insolvent debtor to a creditor knowing his insolvency is deemed to be made with intent to defraud, and the creditor may be compelled to restore what he has received or the value thereof, for the benefit of the creditors according to their respective rights. 970. An onerous contract made with intent to defraud on the part of the debtor, but in good faith on the part of the person with whom he contracts is not voidable; saving the special provisions applicable in cases of bankruptcy. 971. No contract or payment can be avoided under this section at the suit of a subsequent creditor, unless he is subrogated in the rights of an anterior creditor, except in the cases mentioned in the Chapter on Bankruptcy.

2453. The bankrupt may, with the leave of the Court or Judge, from time to time, add to or alter the schedule filed by or for him.

2454. The bankrupt may retain, but must include in his schedule under a separate head, such property in his possession as, against himself, cannot be attached or taken in execution.

2455. With the exception referred to in the last preceding article, all the property of the debtor, including all books of account and all rights of action, and all the property which he may acquire until he obtained his discharge from bankruptcy, vest in the Colonial Trustee, as curator, from the date of the petition in the case of adjudication (the adjudication having for such purpose a retroactive effect) or from the date of assignment is or is not in due form and accompanied by the prescribed formalities.

2456. After the adjudication or assignment, as the case may be, the Court or Judge may, on the application of any creditor (notice of such application and of the day and hour at which it is to be made having been given by advertisement in two numbers of the Gazette), appoint another curator in the place of the Colonial Trustee.

2457. The petition mentioned in the last article may be contested by the bankrupt, by any creditor, or by the Colonial Trustee, and the Court or Judge decides upon it only after hearing all the parties.

2458. A curator other than the Colonial Trustee must give security to the satisfaction of the Court or Judge.

2459. The property of a bankrupt, whether by assignment or adjudication, devolves upon the curator, and vests in him, without any formal transfer from the Colonial Trustee, and he is responsible for the management up to the time of delivery to the purchase after its sale.

2460. The bankrupt, however, up to the time of its sale by the curator, may recover his property by the discharge of all the debts due by him, and the payment of all legal costs connected with the bankruptcy, and of the curator's administration, and upon the Court or Judge certifying that such discharge and payment is made, and, upon the registration of such certificate in the registry office, the property remaining unsold reverts in the bankrupt without any formal transfer from the curator.

2461. The curator obtains the sale of the bankrupt's property by the sheriff, and such sale, whether of moveables or immoveables, is subject to the same conditions and formalities and has the same effect as a judicial sale.

2462. The purchaser from the sheriff of a debt belonging to the assigned property may sue for it in his own name, but no warranty, except as to good faith is created by the sale, not even that the debt is due.

2463. Opposition may be made to the sale in the same manner as to any other judicial sale.

2464. The curator distributes the proceeds of the sale, and with this object makes a scheme of collocation. He takes notice only of claims supported by affidavit, and he may require any creditor to declare upon oath if he has or has not received any amount in part payment of the debt on which his claim is founded, and if he has received any to declare also the amount and particulars of the payment, and any creditor who refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to make such declaration shall not be collocated.

2465. The costs properly incurred in legal proceedings against the debtor up to, but not those incurred after, the time when the insolvency is made known to the creditor by advertisement in the Gazette, or otherwise, are added to the claim of the creditor.

2466. The curator, when the scheme or collocation is prepared, gives notice in the Gazette that it may be inspected at his office.

2467. Any item of the scheme may be contested before the curator, and an appeal lies from this decision to the Court or Judge.

2468. When the proceeds of the property have been paid to the creditors, the curator lodges with the prothonotary all documents connected with the estate.

2469. The curator is regarded as an officer of the Court. The performance of his duties may be enforced.

2470. A debtor notoriously insolvent, who refuses to make assignment of his property or to arrange with his creditors, may be arrested by capias in the manner set forth in the Code of Civil Procedure.

2471. All contracts without consideration of with a merely nominal consideration, made by a trader afterwards becoming a bankrupt, with any person within three months next preceding the assignment or petition for adjudication of bankruptcy and all contracts by which creditors are injured or delayed, made by a trader unable to meet his engagements, and afterwards becoming a bankrupt, with a person knowing such inability or having probable cause for believing such inability to exist, or after such inability is public and notorious, are presumed to be made with intent to defraud creditors, and may be avoided by the Court.

2472. A contract for consideration by which creditors are injured or delayed, made by a trader unable to meet his engagements with a person ignorant of such inability, and before it has become public and notorious, but within thirty days before the assignment of property or petition for adjudication of bankruptcy may be set aside by the Court, upon such terms as to protection from actual loss or liabilities by reason of such contract as the Court may order.

2473. Any sale, deposit, pledge, or transfer made by a trader, within three months of the assignment of property or of the petition for adjudication whereby any creditor obtains an unjust advantage over the others, may be set aside by the Court, and the subject or its value may be recovered by the curator for the benefit of the estate.

2474. A payment made within three months next before the assignment of property or of the petition for adjudication by a trader unable to meet his engagement in full, to a person knowing or having probable cause for knowing the existence of the inability, may be recovered for the benefit of the bankrupt's estate. But if any valuable security has been given up in consideration of such payment by the person from whom repayment is demanded, such security, or the value thereof, must be restored to such creditor.

2475. If within three months of the assignment or petition for adjudication, a debt due by the trader who becomes bankrupt be purchased with a view to set off by a person indebted to him, who knows or has probably<sup>1)</sup> cause for knowing his inability to meet his engagements the set off is not allowed. The purchaser remains liable for his whole debt to the insolvent's estate, and as regards the purchased debt, he obtains satisfaction only to the extent that the original creditor would have obtained it.

2476. Gifts made by an insolvent within three months previous to the assignment or petition for adjudication may be set aside, and the subject of the gift, or its value, recovered from the donee by order of the Court.

2477. If the insolvent holds under a lease extending beyond the current year, the curator may keep the property and lease the same, or he may by advertisement in two numbers of the Gazette advertise the lease for sale and such sale shall be made subject to the payment of the rent and to all the covenants contained in the lease, and all such covenants shall be binding upon the lessor and purchaser as if the lease had been made between them.

2479. A notarial deed of composition executed by the majority of creditors for sums of £15 and upwards, who represent at least three-fourths of the liabilities of a bankrupt trader, is binding upon the other creditors as though they were parties to it.

2480. The bankrupt desirous of obtaining his discharge gives notice by an advertisement, published in two numbers of the Gazette, that he will on a day to be therein named, and which must not be less than two months after the last publication, and not less than twelve months from the date of the assignment of property or petition for adjudication, apply to the Court for his discharge from liability or for the confirmation of a deed of composition, as the case may be.

2481. Any creditor may oppose the granting of the discharge or confirmation of the deed, either upon the ground of fraud or fraudulent preference, or of the fraudulent retention and concealment by the bankrupt of some portion of his estate or effects, or of his evasion, prevarication, or false swearing upon examination as to his estate or effects, or of fraud or of fraudulent preference in procuring the consent of the creditors to the execution of the deed of composition, or of the insufficiency in number or value of the creditors executing the same, or because subsequent to the coming into force of this Code the insolvent has not kept a book showing his receipts and disbursements and such other books of account as are necessary for his trade, or because he has failed to deliver to the curator any such books which have been at any time kept by him.

2482. A discharge does not affect the position of a person secondarily liable for the debt of the bankrupt, either as drawer or endorser of negotiable paper, as guarantor, surety, or otherwise, nor of a partner, or other person liable jointly or severally with the insolvent for a debt, nor does it affect a mortgage, lien, or collateral security held by a creditor.

2483. The Court, after hearing the parties, either confirms or annuls the deed of composition or grants a discharge from liability; and such discharge may be either absolute or conditional, and ordered to take effect at once or after any stated time.

2484. A judgment in confirmation of a deed of composition, or of discharge from liability may be revoked by the Court, if it should subsequently be made to appear that any fraud or false representation has in any way contributed to it.

THE COMMERCIAL LAWS OF THE WORLD

In their original languages, accompanied by an English translation.

In 35 large volumes, handsomely bound in leather.

Price for the set £1.15s, net a volume. Separate volumes £2.2s, net each.

THE ceaseless expansion of the world's trade has made it a necessity for merchants and lawyers to study the commercial, exchange, bankruptcy and maritime laws of the countries with which they, or their clients have dealings. The man of business who has to deal with foreign countries soon finds himself in difficulties unless he is "au courant" with the laws of such countries. The lawyer who advises, the judge who gives decisions, are often at a loss when they come into contact with the laws of other countries. Consequently the time has come when it is necessary to collect the Commercial Laws of the World in an accessible form, to interpret them, and to place them in a reliable and exhaustive work ready to hand. Lawyers, commercial men, export merchants and trading corporations will find in this work convenient and trustworthy information as to the legal obligations arising from operations abroad. In commercial life it will remove that feeling of uncertainty in regard to points of law which has often checked the prosperous development of important international trade relations. From its pages lawyers will be in a position to obtain exhaustive information on points of law on behalf of their clients engaged in commerce with foreign countries. Governments, Consulates and Judges may feel confident of being in a position to refer in this work to a consensus of authoritative opinion on commercial law. In recognition of its significance for the trade and commerce of the world, governments of all nations have placed official material at its disposal.

THE WORK DOES NOT PRESENT A MERE REPRINT OF THE CODES OR STATUTES, BUT IN ITS NOTES AND COMMENTARIES SUMMARISES EVERYTHING NECES-SARY TO A THOROUGH GRASP OF THE PRINCIPLES OF COMMERCIAL LAW.
